SUMMARY.

The German position on the Belgian seaboard and in the vicinity of Bruges and Ghent is becoming critical.

The British naval gun fire killed General Von Trip and his staff, near Middelkerke, six miles from Ostend.

A French squadron is now supporting the British fleet.

The Germans are reported to have brought new guns from Ostend to Zeebrugge, to shell the warships.

The Allies persistently repulsed the German attempts to cross the Yser dykes, which were cut, and the banks flooded.

Ten thousand German marines, with machine guns, left Antwerp. It is rumoured that their destination is Namur.

The German General Staff has quitted Ghent and there are rumours of severe eGrman defeat.

A French officer declares that the retreat of the German right threatens to become a rout.

Seventeen hundred German dead have been buried near Nieuport. The total casualties in the district number 10,000.

Many of the killed and wounded are raw, almost untrained recruits.

It is reported that the British fleet's bombardment of the German lines destroyed a convoy eight miles long.

A violent battle was fought on the left wing, from the North Sea to La Bassee, the Allies holding their positions everywhere.

The Allies have made slight progress in the Argonne and southern Woevre.

The German commander at Brussels has notified the inhabitants to leave the town within 48 hours.

This is interpreted to mean that the military authorities are unable to guarantee their uninterrupted occupation of the city.

Count Von Moltke, the German Chief of Staff, is reported to be dying of a liver complaint.

It is officially stated that the British submarine E3 is missing. It is feared that she has been sunk.

There is an alarming spread of disease amongst the Austrian troops.

Typhoid and smallpox have broken out at Trieste. The diseases were brought by wounded soldiers from Galicia.

The first phase of the battle on the Vistula has ended in the complete defeat of the Austro-Germans.

The German troops occupying the roads to Warsaw, northward of the River Pilica, have been repulsed.

The Russians are taking the offensive vigorously along the whole front.

They have occupied a secure position on the left bank of the Vistula.

A violent bombardment of the Cattaro forts in the Adriatic continues. Nine forts are under the fire of the French ships.

Thirteen thousand Germans and Austrians have been arrested in the United Kingdom, including over 1000 in London.

A proclamation has been issued prohibiting the export of wool without the consent of the Minister for Customs.

The Newcastle Chamber of Commerce discussed the proclamation yesterday.

It was feared that if restrictions were imposed there would be a large increase in the unemployed.

Several vessels loaded with coal for South America are waiting at Newcastle till the restrictions are removed.

An affray has taken place on the Fly River, in Papua, between Sir Rupert Clarke's party and a hostile native tribe.

Two white men were injured with arrows, and one of the natives was killed.

The Senate has passed the Trading with the Enemy Bill.

The Bankruptcy Bill was dealt with in committee, and the Judiciary Bill was read the second time.

A deputation to the Minister for Customs urged that efforts be made to relieve the congestion in the meat export trade.

Mr. Tudor said he realised how serious the position was, both for the meat trade and the butter trade.

He undertook to consult his colleagues to see what could be done in the matter.

No certificates of naturalisation have been issued to Germans or Austro-Hungarians for the last 10 days.

Applications from the subjects of the enemy country remain in the hands of the Federal officers.

Referring to arrests in Britain, the Government, it is understood, is prepared to take steps to safeguard the Commonwealth.

M. Marduel flew in a biplane from Richmond to Sydney and back yesterday morning. The flight occupied 35 minutes each way.

Five men were injured by a blasting accident on the railway works at Rockbank, Victoria.

The trustees of the National Art Gallery will spend £1000 this year on works by New South Wales artists.

At the annual meeting of the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Institution, the compulsory education of the deaf and blind was urged.

Comment was made on the fact that the number of the deaf and dumb children greatly exceeded the blind.

It was pointed out that surgical science had made greater progress in eye diseases than in ear treatment.

A fire broke out at the Lake's Creek Meat Works, Rockhampton, and considerable damage was done.

A Church of England Rescue Home was opened at Carlingford yesterday.

The Glebe Council waited on the Attorney-General to complain against the smallness of a fine imposed by a magistrate.

Mr. Hall replied that the magistrates should be unfettered in the administration of justice.

An extensive business block has been destroyed by fire at Stratford, N.Z.

The information against the Australian Gaslight Company, in respect to the quality of the gas supplied, was dismissed.

The Congregational Union, at yesterday's conference, carried a resolution praying for the success of the Allies.

The Minister for Agriculture has taken steps to secure supplies of seed wheat for farmers.

The Necessary Commodities' Control Commission is considering the question of the new wheat.

Whatever is done in the matter of fixing a price will be done in conjunction with the other States.

Investigations are being carried out in Melbourne at places where it is suspected wireless apparatus is used.

It is understood that there is not likely to be a Christmas recess in the New South Wales Parliament.

A moderate amount of business was transacted on 'Change yesterday. Prices were practically unaltered.

The mining market was brighter, but business was dull. The Adelaide and Melbourne Exchanges were more cheerful.

The oil market was quiet, metals steady, and jute was again lifeless.

There was nothing done in either new or old wheat. Some farmers were prepared to sell at 4/9, but there were no buyers.

Flour was available at the proclaimed price of £9 17s 6d a ton. Bran and pollard were quoted at £6 5s.

There was a steady demand for river eggs, and a slight advance was realised.

AN OIL PAINTING.

BY THE NEW PROCESS.

A CHARMING LIFE-LIKE PORTRAIT,

FREE, FREE, FREE,

AS AN ADVERTISEMENT.

READ, MARK, LEARN, AND GET A PRIZE.

In introducing the new and wonderful life-like Oil Colour Portraits to Sydney, we are, for the purpose of a speedy advertisement, offering a beautiful Oil Painting Portrait, size 20 x 16 inches, artistically and massively framed, together with Six Cabinet Portraits, for Twenty-five Shillings, either taken from life or copied from a good photo. The Cabinets and frame are 25/, the Oil Colour Portrait with this offer is given free without any charge whatever, and it is of wonderful value. No man in Sydney twelve months ago could have produced it for Fifty Guineas, but we are now giving it for nothing, just as an introduction, after which the price will be £3/3/ and no less (20 x 16 for head and shoulder is full three-quarter life size).

A column, a page, or a whole paper of talk, could not convey the charm, the true life-like effect, the masterly blending of tones, and the wonderful colour scheme of these speaking and ever-valued art treasures; each one must become a precious family heirloom, to be handed down from generation to generation, and the frame is worthy of the picture.

Twenty-five Shillings, fancy? Twenty-five Shillings and twelve months ago £25 would not have bought it. So get it while you may.

A GOOD MAKE OF SECONDHAND CAR, in first-class order, is a better investment than a new cheap car. A New Car depreciates from thirty to fifty per cent. the first year; a Secondhand Car, bought at the right price, is always a saleable asset.

We have Cars and Lorries that have had very little use, going for half or less than half their original cost; and we are authorised by the owners to guarantee their condition. We have sold hundreds of cars, and can refer you to satisfied clients throughout the country. We have Cars that have been taken as part payment for larger cars or later models, and some that are portions of assigned estates.

Write to us, stating the class of car you want, and we will forward particulars of the car we would recommend for your purpose if we have one that would suit you. We are not dealers in cars in the ordinary sense, as we do not buy Secondhand Cars. Should you purchase a larger car or a new car we would take your small car as part payment. We have cars we can sell on terms.

Assistance given to purchasers, who can also be taught to drive.

THE CAR BUICK. THAT GLIDES.

REPEAT ORDERS.

Repeat orders are claimed by some Agents as an expression of satisfaction, etc., but if we wanted you to buy a new Buick each year, then such a Car would be an expensive one.

MANY OWNERS

when they find they have an unsatisfactory Car, can only get rid of it by exchanging it for a new one of the same make, and so the firm can claim repeat orders.

BUICK OWNERS

generally keep their Cars for years. Of the two hundred Cars we sold during the last twelve months, we made only TWO exchanges.

DO YOU WANT TO BE A REPEAT ORDER OWNER?

On receipt of your inquiry we will furnish you with a list of names of Owners who have been using the Buick for years without change.

REMEMBER—

EVERY BUICK CAR NOW SOLD IN NEW SOUTH WALES IS A SPECIALLY CONSTRUCTED EXPERT MODEL—and is not sold in America.

ONE FAMILY
BUYS
£190. BUILT IN U.S.A.

Could we suggest to you a better recommendation? We think not. Seven times [illegible].

We don't care where you look or what you try—we are absolutely certain you cannot find anything in Sydney to equal the METZ "22" at £190, complete.

One member of the above family has just written:—

> "This is where the METZ comes in handy. To get to the shed I have to climb a very steep hill and a long one, and she climbs it well. We had a splendid run to Temora, and the day was just perfect. The speedometer registered 91 miles from house to house. Time, 4 hours 20 minutes, notwithstanding we drove through four lots of sheep and one big flock was hard to get past. I had to reverse once and seek a fresh passage, and twice we got off the track for a few hundred yards; so the time was good. On several stretches we had the speedometer showing between 40 to 45 miles per hour. I believe on the same road I could get over the 50. She holds the road splendidly, and can be steered with two fingers at that pace. The METZ is a little marvel. Takes the hills at 20 when most cars take the same at 5."

We have over a hundred excellent testimonials to show you, sent in from all parts of N.S.W.

THE STABILITY OF
FOR A HOME OR INVESTMENT.

The ever-increasing demand for Home Sites convenient to the city, makes Rosebery Values a Standard of Security for the Homeseeker or Investor.

The progress of some Estates after subdivision is left, more or less, in the hands of those purchasers of vacant lots who may eventually erect a dwelling to their own design.

Under such conditions the necessary development of an Estate is considerably delayed and even when its development is complete, the result is often not to the individual taste of the several residents.

The prevailing conditions at Rosebery are vastly different. Under advanced Suburb Planning ideas Rosebery will be in every sense of the word—a Suburb, the theoretical scheme for the development of which can, and will, be carried out within the next few years. To the visitor to the Suburb the first signs of progress will be immediately remarked in the formation of the wide, regular streets and their artistic avenue-like setting of tree borders.

Surprise may be expressed at the large number of Homes already occupied. (Over £150,000 worth of land and cottages have been sold to date.) The cottages themselves will attract immediate notice. In architectural design each cottage is individually treated, and all the latest improvements of modern architecture have been employed to make each one attractive and "home-like;" whilst the interior furnishings comprise all the conveniences of present-day requirements.

YOU CAN BUY ONE OF THESE COTTAGES TO-DAY
FOR £685,
AND REQUIRE ONLY £25 DEPOSIT.

Easy Weekly Repayments reduce the balance and pay interest.

It would be hard to find an easier way of acquiring your own home under such ideal conditions, and of having at the same time a sound investment, which is daily increasing in value—increasing, as Rosebery progresses under modern Town-Planning Methods.

Rosebery is only 25 minutes by tram from the city, or 15 minutes from Central Railway. We invite you to come out at your earliest, and see the New Homes we are offering.

HABERFIELD GARDEN [illegible]

LISTEN to the opinion of the greatest TOWN PLANNING EXPERTS that have visited AUSTRALIA up to the present, which is as follows:—

As extracted from their letter to us:

"We were both specially interested to see Haberfield Garden Suburb, because not only is it the pioneer in Australia, but the fact that it grew up contemporaneously with Letchworth Garden City—which is one of the greatest examples we have in England—makes the project all the more valuable to Town Planners generally. You are to be congratulated upon the great success Haberfield has been. It represents a very great advance and striking object-lesson in contrast to the Suburban development that preceded it in Australia."

These are the views of Messrs. W. R. DAVIDGE, F.S.I., A.R.I.B.A., and CHARLES C. READE. Both of these gentlemen have lectured on TOWN PLANNING THROUGHOUT BRITISH OVER-SEA DOMINIONS during the last 6 months.

If you wish further tribute to the neighbourhood take the trouble to make inquiries from a resident Purchaser.

THERE ARE MANY OF THEM.

We have already dealt with over 1000 families in that direction.

VISIT HABERFIELD NOW.

You will witness a show of gardening that has no equal in Australia.

WE VENTURE TO SAY that there is no area of land running into 500 Acres in one block that has anything approaching the horticultural display now to be seen surrounding the

BEAUTIFUL HABERFIELD HOMES.

The Roses surpassing anything in previous years. THESE HOMES we claim are without doubt the most complete and roomy—compatible with economy—and building. The painting and all internal adornments are in keeping with the type of Architecture which has been adopted.

The smallest Cottages are finished as carefully on the same lines as the larger ones.

OUR PRICES ARE from £675 to £1500, and the Designs are distributed over a variety of types.

£50 AS A DEPOSIT

is all that is required for you to discuss business with us, and after that you need only pay what would be your ordinary rental as instalment, Instalments in all cases include

INTEREST AT THE LOW RATE OF 5 P.C.

These terms are far better than the Government Savings Bank are prepared to offer you to-day.

OUR OFFICE at Haberfield is open every Saturday Afternoon for the convenience of buyers to inspect, and it will always pay you to take a walk round on a Sunday, and have a look at this locality.

We are still Building as usual, and have a very large stock.

Cottages are now finished each week, so that we can meet almost any requirement, or we will build to your special order.

HOUSE RENTS.

RENTING A HOUSE means paying 100 per cent. interest, because nothing is credited to the Tenant.

FOR PURCHASERS OF OUR COTTAGES, we are often able to arrange satisfactory terms if the inquirer has suburban land and a little money.

THE COTTAGES WE BUILD are not excelled; for only first-class materials are used, and we have been so many years engaged in this work that we have had unequalled advantages in selecting only highest skilled labour.

THE FACT WE QUOTE PRICES in our Catalogue is a challenge to supply similar sizes and qualities of timber and the standard of skill employed at the prices we offer.

FIRE AT COBURG.

WALKER'S STORES DESTROYED.

WUNDERLICH CEILING SAVES DWELLING AND FURNITURE.

On Sunday morning last, at about half-past 11 o'clock, a fire occurred at Messrs. E. Walker's drapery stores, 359-361 Sydney-road, Coburg.

It is admitted by the firemen and public present that had it not been for the Wunderlich steel ceilings, the Walker family would have suffered considerable loss by damage of their household goods, the ceiling standing the test of the raging fire splendidly, and greatly aiding the firemen to check the outbreak.

ourne.

Referring to the enclosed cutting from the "Brunswick and Coburg Star", we are moved to express our deepest appreciation of the Wunderlich Metal Ceilings consequent on the astounding "save" effected solely through their agency during the recent fire at our Stores.

The fire, which started in the ground floor, gave fair promise of consuming the whole of the premises and there can be no doubt that had the ceilings been of anything but Wunderlich metal, damage to the premises and stock, amounting to thousands of pounds, would have been incurred.

You may be sure that your ceilings will have a no uncertain recommendation from us whenever opportunity offers.

Yours faithfully,
pp WALKER'S STORES.

How Wunderlich Ceilings Prevent the Spread of FIRE!

THAT they DO prevent it, the above grateful letter proves. And this immunity is gained through no sacrifice of esthetic value. Apart from the fire resisting properties, Wunderlich Ceilings provide an atmosphere of dignity and solidity. They are permanently beautiful—beautifully permanent. They cannot fall, rot, warp, wear out or become so soiled but that clean water and soap will restore all the original freshness. A coat of new paint gives a new ceiling. Weight for weight these ceilings have from two to three times the covering capacity of either wood or plaster—with none of the attendant disadvantages of the latter materials. The sheets pack into very small compass and thus enormous freight savings are made. Our catalogue gives the full facts and also illustrations of many patterns. LIFE IN LONDON AND THEREABOUT.

(CHRONICLED BY SIR HENRY LUCY.)

The Press Bureau—Lord Haldane's Legacy—Motherland and the Colonies—German Spies—Lord Salisbury's Benefaction.

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 4.

Whilst Lord Kitchener's desire for secrecy in the despatch of the Expeditionary Force to Belgium was loyally seconded by the British press, there is a growing impression that the system is being carried too far. The Press Bureau, established to supersede the work of the war correspondent, does its best, but it turns out a poor substitute for the old fashion. England and the English speaking race all over the world would have given much had Archibald Forbes been present at Mons, and at subsequent battles in which the little force under Sir John French has day after day stubbornly faced overwhelming numbers. The bald account circulated by the Press Bureau was chilling in its effect. This and other essays in writing history have had a distinctly deterrent effect upon recruiting, which, as long experience shows, is inflamed by picturesque narratives from the battlefield.

On the top of this has come the amazing blunder by which a dismaying account of the state of the British Army was permitted to appear, rounded off by a little homily from the energetic head of the Bureau, in which he pointed the moral—namely, the urgent necessity of fresh recruiting. The new style, whilst abhorrent to the public, is not fair to the officers and men who give their lives for the country. It was some reward to know that their daring deeds would ring through the country on the morrow, and that their names would be familiar as household words in innumerable home circles.

There is a natural disposition to assign to Lord Kitchener the credit of the marvellous organisation and administration at the War Office, the more striking by contrast with the deplorable stupidity that at the opening of the Boer war nearly lost South Africa to the Empire. That Lord Kitchener is the right man in the right place everybody acknowledges. But it is too soon to forget that when he went to the War Office he found existing a state of things inaugurated by Lord Haldane during his term of office, carefully tended by his immediate successor, Colonel Seely. The earliest success which astonished the world, and greatly cheered this country, was the secret landing in France of an army something like 150,000 strong, fully equipped, an enterprise accomplished within twelve days of the declaration of war. Lord Kitchener went to the War Office two days after the order to mobilise had been issued. Doubtless he directed the transport of the Expeditionary Force with his accustomed skill and resource. But he found ready at hand machinery carefully planned and completed by his predecessors.

Another more broadly-planned, further-reaching scheme for which the country is directly indebted to Lord Haldane is the creation of the Territorial Force. During the earlier stages of his establishment of the force he was assailed in the House of Commons, on the platform, and in the party press with harsh criticism, ridicule, and misrepresentation. It was a hard fight. But Lord Haldane, after his constitutional manner, cheerily plodded on, and when he quitted the War Office for the woolsack he was able to hand over to his successor a supplementary force to the regular army of inestimable value. In this hour of peril the stone which the builders rejected has become the chief corner stone in the structure of the reserve forces. The Territorials have not only volunteered by battalions to go to the front; they form a valuable recruiting ground for the regular army.

Well merited resentment against the man responsible for the biggest and bloodiest war that ever ravaged the earth since war began may be modified by reflection on the that the German Emperor has, undesignedly, it is true, performed a signal service to the British Empire. He has welded in one compendious whole the far-flung territories. There is nothing more remarkable in history or more gratifying to the present generation than the enthusiasm with which the colonies have rallied round the mother country in the hour of peril.

In addition to valuable contributions of battleships and stores, they are all equipping and despatching, at their own expense, contingents of armed, stalwart men. Reinforcements from Australia and Canada of a first expeditionary force of 2,000 men each will soon be in the field. New Zealand, whose battleship, proudly bearing the colony's name, is taking her part in hemming in the German fleet in the North Sea, will immediately despatch a force of 8000 picked men. These things were to be expected from loyal colonies. Where William II.'s blood-stained sword has instantly worked a magic spell is in Ireland and in India. In both these countries there was unrest, even threatened revolt. On the declaration of war from Berlin the ranks closed up in both countries, each declaring itself eager to stand shoulder to shoulder with England on the battlefield.

I hear a story that flashes a lurid light upon the system of espionage under which this country has long been enmeshed. A lady had a German governess who had been in her service for fifteen years, during which time she had been treated as one of the family. When, at the outbreak of the war, the maid was taken to be registered, the authorities informed her that it would be necessary to examine her boxes. The mistress, who accompanied her, protested that such procedure was unnecessary, even absurd. She had known Fraulein intimately for all these years, and was convinced she was absolutely trustworthy. The police insisted upon doing what they described as their duty. They searched the governess's boxes and found abundant evidence covering a long series of years that she had been in the pay of the German Government, supplying them with what, in view of money paid her, they evidently regarded as valuable service.

How such relations are established is made known in the confession of the youth at Liverpool recently arrested on a charge of espionage. Thinking he would like to add something to his office wages, he wrote to the German Ambassador in London, offering to supply information with respect to the forts on the Mersey. He received no direct reply from the Embassy, but in due time was communicated with from Berlin, and found his offer accepted. That his source of information was a local guide-book which anyone could buy for a shilling suggests that those in charge of the German Spy Department are as stupid as they are treacherous. The grave aspect of the incident is that here in London, in a sense, an honoured guest of the nation, we had the representative of an avowedly friendly monarch acting between an obscure, traitorous spy, and an elaborately organised department of his sovereign's Government.

News that the navy has had a glorious fight with the German fleet off Heligoland recalls the sad story of Germany's possession of the island. Up to 1890 it was a thread of slight but not less valuable embroidery on the skirts of the British Empire. The Germans had for years cast longing eyes upon it. In 1890, Bismarck, whose scornful estimate of the late Lord Salisbury is crystallised in a famous remark, bamboozled that eminent statesman into exchanging for some territory in South Africa this island so precious to Germany, so essential to furtherance of the schemes which came to a head when the present German Emperor went on the war path. A Russian military authority of high standing wrote, when news of the bargain amazed Europe: "The acquirement of Heligoland by the Germans makes the blockade of the North Sea coast from Borkum to Sylt, an extremely difficult problem. A blockading fleet (English, for instance) would not only have to expect attack from the front, but both its flanks would be constantly threatened. On this account opportunities would often occur for raids on the estuaries and ports of the east coast of Britain, and attacks there by means of the torpedo and submarine mining flotilla on the ships of the English fleet." We are now realising the accuracy of this forecast.

A WOMAN'S LETTER.

War and Women.

LONDON W., Sept. 4.

One seems to live in an eternal state of tension. One goes to bed with the latest war news in one's head, aided by a discussion between the members of one's family, which does not conduce to peaceful slumber. Nerves are irritated; in short, one feels just that awful suspense that you go through whilst outside the door of a room where someone dearly loved is being operated upon. Yesterday the removal of the Government of France from Paris to Bordeaux seemed like a culmination of all our fears. I know it is a wise move to keep the civil Government of a country in an independent state during the acute phase of warfare; but to those who love Paris, and know her as well as I do, it seems a terrible thing to see so beautiful a city in the grip of war. She is fascinating, and always so interesting that one comes back after a stay there with one's artistic inclinations fully nourished.

Not the least of all the effects of this state of war and martial law will be the difficulties about producing the winter fashions. I do not say this in any spirit of levity. Women are not thinking of fashion or dress at this moment. One has only to go to any of the centres where work is carried on to see how cheerfully the most perfectly-turned-out women are working shoulder to shoulder with their sisters in what I call working clothes—shabby coats and skirts, hats which have seen better days—all doing something to try to aid the sufferers hit by the war. Well, this class of woman is bound in the course of a few weeks to have worn out the lovely things in which you see her, and will be wanting to write to her tailor in Paris or to the woman who does her hat, and all that sort of thing. You know when women have been used to the very best style of cut and material the second best does not suffice. I expect the designers of Paris fashions will at once open house here and bring cutters and workmen and women into London. A good many of them have dependances here already, witness Paquin, Worth, Jules Poiret, and many more. American and Australian women also spend a large amount of money in Paris, and thus in some respects London will gain where Paris herself—poor Paris!—will lose. I think this will be one way out of the difficulty. As it is, in the meantime many of the best London houses are issuing designs and quoting prices that are wonderfully below the usual margin. Anything to keep their hands employed. Then, again, the makers of fabrics, the weavers of fine clothes, serges, cashmeres, and the horde of materials manufactured at Roubaix, Lille, and other of the great manufacturing towns, will probably suffer heavily. Altogether the closure of Paris means a great dislocation of trade, principally in the trades that affect women's wants.

New Zealand in Samoa.

We are all congratulating New Zealand upon her operations in Samoa. To English people that group of islands is chiefly memorable because Louis Stevenson lived there so long, and so thoroughly indentified himself with the place that, to speak of Apia, is to bring his name into the conversation. Of course, before the great novelist went there and took so keen an interest in it and its politics Samoa had a history. The British Consul who first wrote about the navigators, my old friend, Mr. W. B. Churchward, won his spurs in the New Zealand wars in the early 'Sixties, and his book, "My Consulate in Samoa," was uncommonly good reading. One felt the fascination of the place, and now that our flag flies there another star should be added to the number already in the field of the Australian ensign.

Meanwhile over here preparations rush ahead of the reception and welfare of the Australian war contingent. Ladies are working at the clothing most suitable for men in the field. Gentlemen are holding meetings and collecting money, so that all the wants of our kinsmen from overseas shall be met. And, mark you, it is not so very easy to raise a large fund for this purpose here. One wonders each morning when the newspapers come out where so much money comes from. And it is all wanted for the needs of the people hit by the war here. Added to this, there is a large Belgian relief fund, and as the French flee from France we shall have them to consider. Still, the feeling is that all her sons are dear to the mother country. Your men come into the common fold, and will form part and parcel of the force at the front which has the duty they know so well imposed upon them.

You are far from the war itself, and from the rumours, the sights, and sounds of war. Here we see the returning wounded. Mercifully, though our casualties are heavy, it is said that the wounds are less serious than have ever been known. The modern small bullet, though it does such deadly work at long ranges, makes for clean wounds, and it is hoped before long many of the men in hospital will be able to return to the field. We hear, too, strange sounds at night. Last Sunday evening, about 10 o'clock, I heard distinctly four reports of cannon. No one could explain it, but from that time on towards 1 o'clock in the morning, when I lapsed into sleep, the trains of the Great Western line never ceased. It was one long rumble. I heard next morning that Paddington station had been closed to the public, and that large bodies of troops had been taken down towards Bishopstoke, from where they would go to Southampton.

War de Luxe.

We begin to be apprehensive about bombs being dropped from Zeppelins. Big Ben has had no light inside the great clock for some nights past, and the tower on Westminster Cathedral, St. Edward's, has already been used for signalling purposes. On its summit we hear a gun will be placed which can fire a great distance into the sky. A fight in mid-air such as took place over Paris would be terrible, and give the people here a great shock. So far we are comfortably living in security, with almost normal prices. "War de luxe," I often say, but the heart of England bleeds as she parts with her sons; she is widowed, and she suffers terribly. It does not do to stop to think. We brush away the ever-rising tear, steel ourselves to the "job" we have taken on to do, and try in some way to take our share in the work that war entails upon all women.

I was at an extremely interesting meeting held yesterday by the Women's Emergency Corps at the Queen's Theatre. The Duchess of Marlborough was in the chair. On her right sat Miss Lena Ashwell, who, in company with Miss Decima Moore, had first thought out the possibility of founding the corps. It is but barely three weeks old, and already has ten thousand workers carefully scheduled, according to their best ability doing different styles of work to cope with the distress and want of employment caused by war. They provide trained cooks to show recruits how to cook their rations to the best advantage. They care for children, and get homes for them while the fathers are at the front. They are forming centres for women who like the out-door life to train women gardeners and the care of horses. One of the ladies speaking yesterday, the Hon. Mrs. Haverfield, had been in South Africa with her husband in that war, and, being a sportswoman, was entrusted with a kind of horses' hospital at the base of her husband's district. She described, much as an Australian woman would have done, how bad their backs were, and how terribly they suffered from the flies whose bites caused the poor animals to bite themselves till they lost all their hair. She improvised a hospital for soldiers, too, and in every way seemed to have grasped the situation with a wide vision. This sort of work she is advocating now. Most of our vets. are already impressed for foreign service by the War Office. There will be classes for shooting—in short, there is nothing useful that the Women's Emergency Corps is not prepared to undertake. I have had some personal experience in organisation, but I confess the range and system of this corps as explained yesterday by Miss Ashwell, beat everything I ever dreamt of. I should like to see something of this kind instituted in all our colonies. It is peculiarly suited to new countries where some sort of adaptability is of the utmost value.

LONDON IN WAR TIME.

"LIGHTS OUT."

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Sept. 12.

"Can you remember London 30 years ago?" he asked me. I could not, and said so. "Well," he went on, "this takes me back to it. It was just like this."

"This" was a London I not only had not seen, but had never expected to see. We were standing, my friend and I, at Hyde Park corner, on a night of this week, looking from the one side into the Park, and from the other across Piccadilly and Knightsbridge. It was a wholly unusual London we gazed upon, a darkened London, a London of dimmed lights and blanketed lights, and lights out. The natural London by night is not easily conveyed to you in Sydney. By comparison with the flashing brilliancy of miles of streets here, Sydney by night is a gloomy city. Here they plant their pavement lights at closer intervals. They are either electric arcs or powerful incandescent gas burners, and they stretch in double rows for miles. Moreover, they are reinforced by the standard lights set in the middle of the road, each of which, when it is not a single flaming arc is a cluster of arcs meant for great illumination of a central place.

Nor is that all, for in the West End London shop windows, and shop signs, and theatre lights, and sky devices burn high and hard far into the night, while in the residential suburbs electric door lights blaze through street after street before miles and miles of flats. The lights of London have been talked about for a long time now, but that phrase took its significance in a time when London gave no hint of the flaming brilliancy which is its normal of to-day.

Which was its normal of last week, I should rather say. To say, indeed, little of our normal is left to us—and the last of it to go from us—so far—is the night illumination of London. It has gone by order of authority. London has been commanded to dim its lights, to close its hotels at 11 o'clock instead of half past 12, to moderate the late-at-night transports of its restaurants and supper-rooms and clubs. But, above all, to dim its lights. That is indeed a revolutionary edict. The result of it is to make London an eerie, unfamiliar place. Thousands of street lights have been turned down and turned off. We walk in semi-darkness where once was almost the radiance of day. We fumble about our great thoroughfares. We peer up into vacant globes or globes that burn ignominiously at half pressure. Trafalgar-square is a mysterious blank in the line of the Strand. Nelson, in any case, could not—need not—be lighted, but just now he stares out into the Channel from an eminence of gloom. The splendour of the Embankment lights has vanished. The clustered jewels which were the myriad lights on the Thames bridges sparkle no more. In front of scores of London railway stations, tube stations, underground stations, the feeble glimmer of half-light has replaced the accustomed cheery flame. The innumerable parks and squares of London lie desolately blank. Big Ben chimes from an unseen clock-face, and the palace of Westminster is a ghostly nothing. Outside Buckingham Palace the lights were once a splendour of illumination. They are lights of other days. The house of the King is as shadowed as most houses. The War Office, the Admiralty, all the seething centres of the official night-work, burn behind drawn blinds. Leicester-square and Piccadilly Circus, and Shaftesbury-avenue, and Theatreland, all have lost their wonted lustre, no longer blaze as was once their right of illumination at the heart of things. In Hyde Park, too, a curious metamorphosis disturbs us. Hyde Park used to be beautifully lighted throughout its whole great expanse. Half its lamps are out, and at intervals along the grass lie small tanks of acetylene gas, with jets attached.

Above the entrance at Hyde Park Corner the park has another new interest. They have put a gun there. They have builded a strong support upon the stonework, and they have pointed a shadowy arm at the sky. By reason of it we begin to understand that the order for lights-out in London has a grim significance. There are other guns on high places in London—more than we know of. There is also a searchlight on the roof of Charing Cross station. We know of that, because, as we go about this gloom-filled London, we see the white light flash all round the sky.

That searchlight which whitens the London sky and the blanketed lamps which darken it are part and parcel of London's latest war development. There is, too, another sign and portent—an army airship, which is announced to patrol the metropolis nightly, and to see which thousands of people stand at street corners gazing at the heavens. London is officially warned that this airship is not to be fired at. London will not fire at this airship; but it will fire at any other. And it is by way of precaution against any other, against the Zeppelin or the fleet of Zeppelins that are suspected of meditating the Channel cruise, that London goes darkened, and that the famous places and the great structures London is proud to light in honour are nightly dimmed and of no account.

Thirty years ago it was of no consequence that St. Paul's, or the Abbey, or the towers of Westminster, could not be picked out at night from the high air. To-day it is of much consequence that they should not. The Londoner has been more impressed by the lowering of his familiar lights than by anything that has yet occurred. He is still, for all the colossal fighting and slaying of these weeks, imperturbably undistressed. He is not callous, and he is not unmindful of what is doing over there in France. In truth he is more and more easily excited into patriotic enthusiasm for the great cause of his flag and country. But he has not nearly sized up the terror that has laid Belgium waste, and left in its trail miles of anguished hearths and homes. He would picture it all more vividly if a bomb fell from his own clear skies. London's unparalleled measures of darkness against that bomb have touched his imagination. He is dismayed at the loss of his lights. His elders smile ruminatively upon the darkened streets, and say "How like it used to be." He is impatient with his elders. He cannot imagine the gas age. He almost wishes the Zeppelin would come—so that it might be smashed by these extraordinary guns mounted upon his peaceful towers. His lowered lights have accentuated the Londoner's gory mood.

THE GERMAN'S TEN COMMANDMENTS.

Hundreds of thousands of copies of a pamphlet called "The Ten Commandments" are being sown broadcast throughout Germany. They are as follows:—

1. Even when you have only one pfennig to spend, remember the interests of your fellow-citizens and of your Fatherland.
2. Remember that each time you buy an article made abroad you are enriching your enemies and robbing your own Fatherland.
3. Your personal needs must be satisfied to the profit of German working men and German merchants.
4. Don't profane your German country, your German home, your German workshop by allowing foreign-made furniture, tools, or machinery to find a place therein.
5. Do not allow foreign dishes or foreign meat on your table, for by so doing you harm not only your own home industries, but also your health, as all food which the German Sanitary Commission has not stamped is poison.
6. Write on German paper, with German pens, and German ink.
7. Buy only German clothes.
8. Only German flour, German fruit, German beer, and water from German springs can give you real German strength.
9. Drink only coffee from German colonies.
10. Let nobody lead you astray from this path, and be assured that your Fatherland's future depends on your strict observance of these commandments.

THE WAR.

CAUSES AND EFFECTS.

WILLIAM THE ARCH-CRIMINAL.

The White Book—one of the most thrilling and dramatic official documents ever published—has given us the diplomatic correspondence which preceded the outbreak of war; and in the English reviews we find much important supplementary information given by men whose words carry weight. Dr. E. J. Dillon, for instance, is known not only as a special correspondent of the London "Daily Telegraph" and as a regular contributor on foreign affairs to the "Contemporary Review," but has himself on more than one occasion occupied the important role of diplomatist, and helped to bring about settlements of vexed international questions. He is the friend of monarchs and Prime Ministers. He had just executed a draft treaty between the Porte and the Hellenic Government for the settlement of the question of the three islands, Samos, Chios, and Mitylene, and of all other outstanding differences between those two States, when the news reached him that Austria-Hungary was on the point of presenting her demands to Servia.

Few men are in a better position to give us the inside history of this war. Dr. Dillon was one of those who saw it coming, and gave us ample warning. In 1912 he wrote: "Germany would fain get wealthy colonies without the sacrifice of money and blood, but she is bent on getting them, cost what they may;" and he quoted one of the maxims of the German Chancellor, Bethmann Hollweg, "parchment is parchment, steel alone is force." Dr. Dillon describes Germany as the outlaw among nations, and she must be rendered politically and militarily innocuous. Between this consummation and the ruin of European civilisation there is no middle way. The fatherland has usurped the place of ethical and religious goals. Any deed, however reprehensible from every other point of view, is hallowed if done on behalf of the country. From the highest of all (in official German parlance God is the highest, but the highest of all is the Kaiser), to the recruit who can barely read printed matter the deadly virus has penetrated. Treaties will not bind Germany; conventions have no meaning for her; she must be struck impotent, for only then can Europe hope for salvation. "Parchment is but parchment, and steel is steel."

Whatever blame is to be attached to Austria for bringing on this war, says Dr. Dillon, we have to remember that Germany could have prevented it, and didn't. The voice was the voice of Austria, but the plan was the plan of Germany. "The circumstance came to my knowledge as a fact, not as a supposition or as an inference, that the Kaiser himself was kept informed of the various phases of the Austro-Servian quarrel; that the ultimatum was laid before him in the rough draft; and that, having read it, he made a suggestion to sharpen it which was approved and adopted. It is worth noting that the Berlin Government had no communication of the text of the ultimatum from the Austrian Foreign Office. The Kaiser was initiated, but not his Government." Austria was but the cat's paw. The moment was deemed auspicious, and Germany decided to strike. Provided that neutrality on the part of Great Britain were certain, every assurance would be given to the British Government that the "Imperial Government" aimed at no territorial acquisitions at the expense of France. "I lay stress on the two words 'Imperial Government' because I know that it was intended to offer a portion of French territory in Europe to a certain other State." And if to seize the French colonies would not be to make territorial acquisitions at the expense of France at whose expense would they be made? Germany has stated the problem: Militarism and all the evils it connotes as against civilisation and its ideals. And it behoves the Allies to solve it with finality. For a powerful German State there is no longer a place in New Europe.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA.

One result of the war, writes Dr. A. Markoff, a Russian, in the "Contemporary," is that the English and the Russian peoples have come nearer to each other; the mistrust is gradually disappearing, and will disappear entirely during the war; the outcome of it will be peace for a long time, "and the English will at last give due justice to my beloved country, as our mutual enemy, who made it his business to sow hatred and mistrust between us, will have disappeared. Our Emperor, who called the nations of Europe to The Hague Peace Conference, will meet them again at The Hague, after the war, to form a Peace Alliance and to proclaim a general disarmament. . . . And when our armies meet, yours coming from the west, and we from the east, let us on German ground shake hands as friends and allies for many centuries to come, burying all that distrust and those prejudices which have hitherto existed. And may our mutual patron saint—St. George—give his blessing to our arms to achieve this end!"

WAR AND WORK.

Writing in the "Contemporary" on "War, Credit, Business," Mr. Theodore Cooke Taylor, M.P. (head of a big woollen manufacturing firm, and an advocate of profit-sharing and labour co-partnership), says that perhaps the most remarkable of all the effects of the war has been the quiet and unchallenged assumption of autocratic powers and unlimited liabilities by the British Government. Vast as is the economic evil of great strikes, he says, it is nothing compared with the economic evil of this war. Imagine eight million men on strike in Central Europe, and riots, with violence and murder on the largest scale ever known; then compare that with what is going on in Belgium, Germany, France, Austria, Russia, Servia, and Montenegro, and on the high seas. The strike would be insignificant in comparison. The moment war was declared between Great Britain and Germany hundreds of merchants and manufacturers realised that for the goods they had recently sent to Germany and Austria they might never get paid. For that reason those to whom they themselves owed money would give them no further credit. Orders for goods, not only for Germany and Austria, but for other countries also, were cancelled, the production of goods and payment of work-people's wages were summarily stopped, and every industry proximately or ultimately dependent upon such work-people as customers was at once adversely affected. "If our manufacturers and work-people would only work together with the same patriotism to capture the world's markets that they show in fighting their enemies on the field of battle, our financial position would soon be stronger. We cannot afford the continuance of the organised hostility to each other of employer and employed. Employers must share their profits with their work-people, and the workers must throw away that obsolete and suicidal weapon—restriction of output."

Mr. Percy Alden, M.P., hon. secretary of the British Institute of Social Service, in discussing the position of the wage-earner consequent upon the outbreak of war, tells us that there are at least 300,000 persons in Great Britain directly engaged in trade with, or employed in the manufacture of goods exported to Germany. But the total number of wage-earners in the country is 15,000,000, and all of them are being more or less affected. He summarises the methods by which the Government proposes to cope with the emergency as follows:—(1.) To prevent a financial collapse, and to restore the national credit. (2.) To prevent the rise of food prices, and to ensure a proper distribution of the food supplies of the country. (3.) To speed up the normal machinery of industry by enabling local authorities to start necessary public works, with a view to absorbing the men who have been thrown out of employment in certain trades. (4.) The utilisation of the funds of the Road Board and the Development Commissioners for schemes of road improvement, for the creation of new roads, for afforestation, for land reclamation, and many other objects. (5.) The carrying into effect of the large schemes both of urban and rural housing, which it is agreed on all sides are necessary. (6.) The setting on foot of works of local government by distress committees, aided by grants from the fund at the disposal of the Government under the Unemployed Workmen Act. The fund can be supplemented by additional sums of money taken from the £100,000,000 War Vote. (7.) The establishment of representative local committees, these committees to receive grants from the Prince of Wales's National Relief Fund. (8.) The effective and economical provision of meals for school children who are suffering from lack of food, whether during school session or in vacation periods. Mr. Alden visited and lectured in Australia on social and labour problems some years ago, and much he has to say in this article has a special interest for our Governments at the present time.

NEW MUSIC.

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. publish Edward Atkins's piano-technique tutor, entitled "Law of Equal Finger-control Development," simply explained and illustrated upon the pianoforte, for piano, organ, and all keyed or key-board instruments. Mr. Atkins, who is also the author of "Independent and Three-movement Finger Technique," presents this new work as the outcome of continuous and laborious experiment and research. It shows the exercises best calculated to educate the fingers with as little loss of time as possible on the system devised by the author of rapidly training the muscles. In doing this, Mr. Atkins quotes examples in pursuance of his method, which have been employed by Leschetizky, Oscar Beringer, and others, and studies of incidental value from the Chopin preludes, Beethoven sonatas, and other classic sources. Teachers will find the method elaborately, yet simply and intelligently, illustrated and explained in the course of 52 clearly-printed pages. These form, as a whole, a work on piano technique of which, when less complete than in the present perfected tutor, Professor W. G. Marshall Hall was able to say, "in my opinion, it is quite one of the best and most penetrating things that has been done."

Messrs. W. H. Paling and Co. also publish "Love's Vigil," by Mme. Violet Callow. This is a charming little lullaby, tenderly melodious for the voice, and with the rhythm of the rocking-cradle in the accompaniment.

Messrs. Nicholson and Co. publish May Summerbelle's new march-song, "So-Long," the spirited music of which, with its rhythmical refrain, forms an effectively popular setting of John Parr's manly poetic verse. This song, which is dedicated to the Australian Expeditionary Forces, has been issued in a neat khaki-coloured paper cover, bearing the Australian flag in colours—an attractive design. "So-Long" was repeatedly encored on its introduction by Mr. Syd. Macdonald at the Town Hall, where Mr. Philip Newbury will sing it at his farewell next Saturday. Two of the regimental bands played the music recently, the band of the 5th Light Horse will play it at Liverpool to-morrow; and in other ways Miss Summerbelle's music is certain to become widely known.

Messrs. Allan and Co. (Melbourne) publish "Billy Khaki," a setting of Edward Dyson's spirited patriotic lyrics by Dorothy Boyes. Her music is merry and buoyant, though without sufficient variation in the harmony.

Messrs. Cary and Co., of London, forward some of their latest publications. "Home that is Calling for Me" is a simple but attractive little song, suited to voices of limited range, and would serve as an extra number in a pantomime. "Sons of Old Britannia" is in praise of "our glorious volunteers," to music by Dorothy Forster. This is a lively song, without real musical distinction, but with a rhythmical refrain that may make it popular. "Our Country's Call," by A. Kingston Stewart, words by Harold Simpson, is a march song of an animated character, and massively harmonised. A singer with a resonant voice, backed by enthusiasm and warmth, might make it effective.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND RESCUE WORK.

NEW HOME AT CARLINGFORD.

A new country home, which has been established in connection with the Glebe Church of England Rescue Home for Girls, was opened at Carlingford yesterday by the Archbishop of Sydney.

A short service of dedication was conducted by the Precentor of St. Andrew's Cathedral, the Rev. Mr. Wilton, in which some of the Cathedral choir boys assisted in the singing.

The secretary, the Rev. R. Rook, stated that the committee had secured the home through the kindness of one of their number in helping to finance the undertaking. The home was purchased for £1650; and there was still a debit, which he hoped would be paid off by the end of the year.

The Archbishop addressed a very large gathering, choosing as his text, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Mr. T. Moxham, M.L.A., proposed a vote of thanks to the Archbishop. The home will accommodate about 30 girls.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

MOROCCO BOUND.

Some years ago M. Pierre Loti paid an extended visit to Morocco, his impressions of which he has recorded in his own inimitable manner. "After a few days in Tangier he joined an embassy which the French legation was sending to Fez, the capital. Travel in Morocco has its disadvantages, for roads there are none; "Nothing but tracks beaten in course of time by the passage of caravans and the right to ford the rivers that lie across your path." In summer these are dusty but practicable; in winter they are "foul sewers; our horses sink to the knees in a sort of greasy pulp; often they stumble on the skull of an ox or the carcase of a dog, or a shinbone; and at every step—splosh, splosh!—the black mud flies."

However, there are compensations. The country, though treeless, is very beautiful. The embassy passed breast-high through gladioli, irises, and daffodils; the riders gathered huge armsful without dismounting. Never had the author seen such luxuriance of bloom, and he remarks that that much-abused expression, "A carpet of flowers" was literally correct. Then, turning to more mundane pleasures, there is the "mouna," which M. Loti defines as "the tithe, the ransom which our quality of embassy gives us the right to levy upon the tribes through whose territories we pass." Without the mouna there would be no small risk of starvation in an innless, marketless, almost villageless land. The mouna is a long-established custom, and though the Moor is proverbially abstemious in the matter of eating he is willing to abandon his principles in this particular case. An embassy is a perpetual round of Gargantuan feasts. Usually enough is supplied to feed ten caravans, but it is a point of honour that this shall be given and consumed. Occasionally a tribe tries to shirk its obligations in the matter. M. Loti mentions one such episode. "The mouna makes its entry into the camp with its customary majesty. But it is inadequate; no more than eight sheep and other things in proportion. It is beneath acceptance by an embassy, and must be refused in order to maintain the dignity of our flag, and this refusal constitutes a diplomatic incident which might become a very serious matter for the kaid of the district if it came to the ears of the Sultan. He feigns surprise and consternation with delicious gestures, the handsome pink-robed kaid. He pretends to lay the blame on kaids of less degree, who in turn lay the blame on their subordinates, who start belabouring with sticks the unoffending shepherds." It was what is colloquially known as a "try on," and when it failed a sumptuous mouna (which was in readiness to meet eventualities) of sixteen sheep and appropriate accompaniments was at once produced, leaving everyone contented.

The dominant note of Fez is that of age. M. Loti experienced "a sense of translation into anterior times," and the world of Europe "seemed all at once to have become astonishingly remote." The author, with his wonderful faculty for word-painting, admirably reproduced the atmosphere of the place. He turns a key weighing 3lb in a lock a thousand years old to enter his dwelling. He threads his way through a maze of narrow, winding streets, between lofty walls. The doors in deep recesses are so low that one has to bend double to enter them; "they are overlaid in every case with iron and have enormous nails and spikes and bolts and locks, and heavy knockers worn with long use, and all is warped and wry and rusty, writ with the fantasy of a thousand years." He lives in a street exactly a yard wide, a channel of mud plentifully bestrewn with dead dogs. High above the ground the overhanging walls make of the street a mere slit 6in wide, and climbing up M. Loti wanders about the flat roofs, speculating what is behind the closed doors, sentimentalising over the veiled Moorish women he sees, and philosophising about life and age and eternity.

But there is a less pleasant side of existence in Fez which reveals the extraordinary callousness of the Moor. If a brigand (and these flourish in a land where there are no police, and robbery is a lucrative profession) is caught he is treated to the "punishment of the salt." Deep gashes are cut in the palms of his hands, they are filled with salt, the fingers are forced into the wounds, and the hands are bound up in gloves made of wet ox-hide, which shrinks as it dries. As the victim's nails begin to grow the torture is supreme, and after a period of agony he dies, either of tetanus or of madness. Loti was horrified at this practice, but he points out that since the Moor holds death in contempt something more drastic is necessary to put down brigandage. Mere execution "is a chastisement so unmeaning as to deter no one. In a country where journeys are so long and the routes absolutely unguarded one cannot blame the people for having introduced into their code something which causes the brigands of the mountains a little reflection." The same indifference to suffering is shown in the most ordinary affairs of life. If a person has a boon to ask of a chief, the proper and necessary thing to do is to sacrifice animals at his feet. "The victim should lie a-dying for a long time, shedding its blood little by little on the ground." If the great one is disposed to entertain the supplication he tells his servants to take up the slaughtered beast; if not, he continues on his way and the corpse is left to the crows. When the Sultan travels, adds M. Loti, the route he has followed is sometimes marked by a trail of carcases. The progresses of the Sultan thoroughly deserve the title of royal. He has reduced travelling in comfort to a fine art. He is accompanied by a formidable retinue and every kind of luxury. His great tent of State alone needs sixty mules for its transport. If by chance a storm arises during the night his servants do not adopt the simple device of knocking in the tent-pegs more securely. No sound of mallet must disturb the slumbers of the master of the fair ladies of the harem. "Instead they call up a regiment of men, who crouch in a circle round the nomad palace and remain there till daybreak holding in innumerable fingers all the ropes." (T. Werner Laurie.)

GREEK ART AND NATIONAL LIFE.

In "Greek Art and National Life" Mr. S. C. Kaines Smith protests against the tendency to divorce the study of the classics from life. Although they are still called "the humanities," we are apt to overlook the essentially human element in them. The modern savant is prone to fall into the error of regarding classical art, literature and sculpture as isolated phenomena, without reference to the people that produced them. Yet to admire and study these solely as art is not to understand them wholly. "The effect of this point of view upon the student was unfortunate. It removes the Hellenic race from the category of flesh and blood, and made it superhuman, or rather, extra-human, with the consequence that everything produced by it was liable to be regarded with a cold and academic interest, as a thing apart. To proclaim the Greeks the greatest artists of all time is cold gospel. They were so; they are still, not because they are so long dead, but because they are so intensely alive. It is their modernity that matters."

The author proceeds to reconstruct Greek civilisation in the light of these ideas. His object is to show that Hellenic art in every phase is the direct expression of contemporary national life, the spirit of which it reflects. Every period of Greek civilisation, from its earliest beginnings, was articulate, and its distinctive atmosphere is to be found in contemporary legends or architecture, or decoration, or in the other manifold varieties of art. First the author pays a tribute to Schliemann, the archeologist, to whose work students owe so lasting a debt. Schliemann was the son of a poor village clergyman. The local schoolmaster, a drunkard, could be induced by a glass or two of brandy to recite passages from Homer and these fired the lad with the firm resolve to learn Greek, and some day to visit the scenes of these ancient glories. It was long before his ambition was fulfilled. He became a sailor, and wandered about the world in various employments. He entered business and made a fortune during the Crimean War. He retired from commercial pursuits, completed his education, learned something of archeology, and finally in 1868 his dream was realised. In the face of the ridicule of scholars he commenced his excavations on the spot where he believed Troy to have stood. Soon it was proved that the scholars were wrong, and he was right. Next he turned his attention to Mycenae, where he laid bare the relics of a mighty civilisation. Others since his day have made startling discoveries: Dr. Evans, for instance, in Crete; but to Schliemann remains the credit of the pioneer.

Mr. Kaines Smith next describes this Minoan civilisation in Crete, which had its headquarters in the great city of Knossos. Here the labour of the excavator has laid bare a huge palace, which "is a town in itself, with a long history, and the steady growth of civilisation, power and industry written large upon its relics." Like a medieval castle, it held within its walls all that was needed to carry on an existence independent of the world. It contains vast reservoirs and magazines; dancing floors, and bull-fighting rings. Its inhabitants had evolved a kind of pictographic scrip, which has not yet been deciphered, though some of the inscriptions are obviously inventories of stores of grain, oil, weapons, and such like things. It was the centre of a highly organised administration, the repository of wealth and luxury, the focus of artistic activity, the home of an advanced knowledge of practically applied science, with its complex and skilful system of surface drainage and well-contrived light areas in the midst of its blocks of buildings. In its labyrinthine structure lies the germ of the legend of Daedalus and the maze that he built so cunningly that he himself could only escape from it with the aid of wings. It was hither that Theseus came to slay the Minotaur, and carry off Ariadne, the King's daughter—a story which the author rationalises in a most ingenious fashion. The heyday of the Minoan civilisation was somewhere in the fourth millennium, B.C. All this glory came to an end suddenly, terribly, finally. The invader came swiftly out of the sea, fired the city, loaded his ships with booty, and disappeared again. Who he was, and whence he came we do not know, but he left Knossos ruined and desolate, so that no human being ever dwelt there again. Men shuddered at the memories of the sack; the place was haunted, and since that night of strife and horror the birds of the air and the beasts of the field have been its sole tenants.

Mr. Kaines Smith deals in similar fashion with Troy and Athens, and other phases of Greek civilisation. As has been already indicated one of the most interesting features of the book is the manner in which he "rationalises" the old legends. Take his treatment of Hercules, for instance. Some scholars will say that Hercules never existed at all; that his story is a sun-myth, and that his famous labours are simply imaginative explanations of various phenomena. The author sees in him a vigorous enterprising person, who applied all his energies for the benefit of his fellow men. All, or almost all, of his exploits were useful. "He ridded the countryside of pests in the shape of wild beasts and robbers. The Nemean lion, the Stymphalian birds, and such like nuisances fall under this heading. He was a mighty engineer—so great that even nature's engineering, the natural outlets of Lake Stymphalos and Lake Copais were later attributed to his skill. He diverted rivers from their course, as when he prepared the lands of King Augeas for conversion from pasturage to tilth by letting loose the river upon them. He imported olive trees (according to the tale), poplar trees, even oranges, into Greece. He improved the breed of horses by introducing Thracian brood mares—unfortunately the property of Diomede, whom he had to slay to obtain possession of them; and that of cattle by bringing from far Cadiz the cattle of the triple-giant the Geryones. Above all he travelled far, he travelled north and west, and the valley of the Danube and its forest lands are the sources of many of his fabled importations and the scene of many of his exploits. The wild story of the golden-horned hind which Heracles brought back from the Danube Valley—a story which even the ancients themselves could not quite swallow—is the story of the first, possibly the only reindeer that ever Greece set eyes on, for alone among hinds the reindeer hind has antlers." We do not know whether antiquarians and archeologists will be prepared to support the author's conclusions in every detail, but his book is an illuminating one, which teaches us to look at Hellenic art from a new angle. (Nisbet and Co.)

FOR THE YOUNG.

The latest addition to the "Myths and Legends Series" is "The Myths of the American Indians," by Mr. Lewis Spencer, an admirable work, which the old no less than the young will enjoy. The average person's acquaintance with the Redskin has usually been gained from the more sensational forms of fiction; he does not know or care that the North American Indian has excelled in other arts besides that of war. Red Indians achieved a comparatively high scale of civilisation with an intricate tribal organisation, a highly developed picture-writing, and a mastery of various handicrafts. They had moreover a folk-lore remarkably rich in picturesque legends and traditions. Longfellow made use of this in "Hiawatha," who, by the way, is a historical personage, a greatly idealised chief of the Iroquois in the sixteenth century. Mr. Spencer, however, does not confine himself to this one tribe; he includes in his survey the mythologies and legends of the Pawnees, the Sioux, the Apaches, the Comanches, and all the others whose exploits so thrilled us in our boyhood days, and his book reveals to us a new side of an imaginative and poetical race.

In "Women of the Classics" Miss Mary Sturgeon complains that while much has been written for the young about the males who figure in Homer or the Attic Tragedy or Virgil's "Aeneid," the other sex has been almost completely ignored. This is the more surprising because the women of the classics provide examples of heroism, devotion, and nobility by no means inferior to those of the men. Miss Sturgeon remedies this state of affairs. Her method is to take the best modern translations of the old poems and to retell selected portions from the human standpoint with the minimum of critical comment. Among those whose story she relates are the steadfast Penelope, Helen, whose beauty—

> Launched a thousand ships,
> And fired the topless towers of Ilium.

Alcestis, the supreme exemplar of wifely sacrifice, and Iphigenia, who died that her father's ships might sail. But not all Miss Sturgeon's heroines move on such an exalted plane. There are besides the passionate Dido, crime-stained Clytemnestra, Calypso who loved soft dalliance, Circe with her enchantments, and others whose careers were even less edifying.

In the "Heroes of All Time" series, Mr. A. E. M'Killiam tells the story of Alfred the Great, the King who drove the Danes from England, settled the land so that each man lived in security, and founded the British navy—for which the British Empire owes him a lasting debt; while in "Danish Fairy Tales" Mr. G. Hein translates a number of legends of the good people evolved in a land which has been the home of so much of the best fairy lore. (Harrap and Co.)

America is the scene of "The Pioneer Boys of Missouri," by Mr. Harrison Adams. America at a time when the western frontier of the United States lay along the Mississippi and the Missouri, and half the continent or more was almost a terra incognita to the white man. However, there were eager spirits, athirst for adventure, who yearned to see what lay beyond in the unknown. Among them were two sturdy lads, born and bred on the outposts of civilisation, and it fell to their lot to trace the course of the great Missouri River to its far-away source in the Rocky Mountains. It was a long and hazardous journey. There were privations to be endured and perils to be survived. Hostile redskins sought to bar the way for the enterprising pair, and on many an occasion they were within a hairsbreadth of destruction before they returned to safety. Mr. Adams describes their exploits with immense verve, and the Australian boy who reads this book will immediately be fired with the ambition of proceeding to North-west Australia and repeating their achievement on one of our own unexplored rivers. SOME NEW NOVELS.

In "The Custody of the Child" Mr. Philip Gibbs gives his opinion on certain questions raised by the institution of divorce. Nicholas Barton is a good sort of a fellow, but hardly the husband for Beauty, an actress whose craving for pleasure and excitement unfits her for humdrum domesticity. The pair drift farther and farther apart until the inevitable happens. Barton divorces his erring wife, and is left with Nicholas the younger, who is little more than a baby. He grows to man's estate in ignorance of his mother's history; he only remembers her as the bright, particular star of his childhood, and when he at last learns the truth he jumps to the conclusion that she is a much injured woman, and resolves to discover her at all costs. After a long search he finds her queening it on the musical comedy stage, and mother and son are reunited. But the result is not a happy one. Beauty is even more restless and pleasure-loving than before. She insists upon Nicholas sharing her hectic gaieties, and introduces him to all her somewhat undesirable friends. He is a promising art-student, but his work is ruined, and to make matters worse he feels the conviction steadily growing in his mind that Beauty is by no means the idol that his childish memories had constructed. However, he is still enough of the worshipper to break with his father on her account. Then comes the bitter awakening. He learns that his mother is utterly without virtue or moral sense, and when he is still reeling under the shock comes the news that the girl he loves has given herself to another man. Meanwhile his father has had a similar experience. They are reconciled, and find that in work alone true happiness lies. Mr. Gibbs draws the moral that one of the worst features of divorce is that it withdraws the child from the influence of one or other of its parents during the most impressionable years; also that in the absence of the restraint which the presence of a child implies the parent who has been deprived of the child may become demoralised. This is, of course, quite true, but it is difficult to see how it can be avoided. It is, at any rate, the lesser of two evils, for, bad as the results of separation may be, the prospects of a child brought up in a family where the marriage is a failure and the parents are reluctantly joined in a bond which has become odious, are surely far worse. (Hutchinson: G. Robertson.)

Mr. George Birmingham, who writes an introduction to Miss K. F. Purdon's "Folk of Furry Farm," tells that the author has broken new ground in these stories. The setting is the great plain of Meath, where cattle are fattened for market. Irish men of letters have entirely disregarded the people of Meath on the ground that they are as uninteresting as the bullocks they raise. Miss Purdon, however, quite disproves this theory. They are not so vivacious as their brethren in other parts of the island, nor does their conversation abound in that wit and poetry so characteristic of Erin. But they are, nevertheless, capable of inventing expressive phrases. "There wasn't a neighbour within the bawl of an ass of it" is the way one character describes a lonely spot; while another remarks of a greedy but successful beggar, "His pockets would be like sideboards, the way he'd have them stuck out with meat and eggs and so on." A people that habitually uses these terms of speech in the ordinary currency of talk cannot be said to be destitute either of humour or of imagination. The stories themselves are excellent. They relate the simple annals of a countryside where life is something of a struggle and "Ameriky" is still the Eldorado of the young and adventurous. Some of Miss Purdon's characters are shiftless wastrels, or viragoes, or skin-flints, but most of them have a redeeming feature, some quality of courage, of tenderness, or unselfishness which redeems them in our eyes. Miss Purdon tells of their loves and labours, their joys and sorrows, with a sympathy and knowledge which makes her stories ring true. (Bell and Sons.)

"The Story of Fifine," Mr. Bernard Capes's latest novel, opens with rather a novel situation. Felix Dane, Bohemian, philosopher and genius, who but for his versatility would have made a name for himself in one or other of the arts, returns on one of his periodical visits to his Parisian garret, and finds his step-sister, Marion, waiting for him with an appeal to his chivalry. She, it appears, is governess to the Marquis de Beaurepaire's daughter, who is in great danger at the hands of her father, a morphomaniac. So "Fifine" is installed in Dane's studio, under his protection, with the most solemn pledges of secrecy, and though he, for his part, scarcely believes in the reality of the danger, he philosophically accepts the position. When their unconventional but monotonous existence palls they set forth on a wandering tour through Picardy. The description of their vagabondage is written in a vein which somewhat recalls Mr. W. J. Locke, and the characters they meet, in particular the pompous M. Carabas Carabas, strengthens the resemblance. The tragic revelation, by which Dane learns the identity of his companion, and the intrigue in which he has been involved, is unsatisfactory, and introduces an element out of keeping with the atmosphere of the book. But the plot after all is of secondary importance. The strength of the book lies in its admirable dialogue and characterisation, and those who are interested in the more advanced tendencies of modern art will find them discussed with expert knowledge. (Constable and Co.)

Mr. W. Douglas Newton describes "The North Afire" as "a picture of what may be." To-day we know better than that. We know that it can never be now that Ulstermen and Nationalists are fighting shoulder to shoulder against a common foe. We know now that whatever be the ultimate solution of the Home Rule problem it will be a peaceful one. Mr. Newton has given us a picture of what might have been and a grim picture it is. The scene is set in one of the northern cities, where a prominent Ulsterman has resisted the police in their search for concealed arms and has been shot. That is the spark which sets the north ablaze. The crowds run riot in the streets and burn the police station. The constabulary is powerless to check them, so the troops are called out. At once the rioters cease to be a mere mob and become an armed and disciplined force. All the north is afire. The fields are laid waste, farms burned, factories blown up; old scores are bitterly paid off with interest. Nationalists and Ulstermen fight pitched battles. Meanwhile the handful of military are able to do little. They have to wage war on either party, and their position is the more thankless because the Ulstermen protest that they have no quarrel with the soldiers, and that they are as loyal to King and country as the latter are. It is a cruel business all round; friend must take up arms against friend. Major Loudon, who is engaged to a girl of Ulster sympathies, is compelled by his duty to shoot her brother, his former colleague. In the end comes the news of compromise, but not before Ulster has flowed red with blood. Mr. Newton describes all this with graphic realism, and his story makes us the more thankful that the possibility of such strife has been avoided. (Methuen: Sydney Book Club.)

RASH ON CHEST AND SHOULDERS.

Caroona, via Quirindi, N.S.W.—"A small rash came on my chest and shoulders, with a burning irritation, which would get worse night and morning, and then the itching would go for a while. This lasted for two years, during which time I bathed it with different lotions, with little permanent effect. At last I determined to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used to bathe the parts with the Cuticura Soap, and then put the Cuticura Ointment on, and I could feel relief in a very short time, so I kept on till I was cured, and I have had no return of the trouble for about 12 months."

"Cuticura Soap and Ointment I have found are really good for the scalp, and stop the hair from falling out. I am sure there is nothing to equal the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and I have heard several say so besides myself. (Signed), S. Brown, February, 1913."

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

London is evidently living up to its valorous motto of "Business as usual" during the war, and 23 regular theatres, in addition to the halls and suburban playhouses, were open in mid-September. "Seven Keys to Baldpate" was successfully staged at the Apollo Theatre on September 14, thus, after all, anticipating the Niblo-Cohan production in Sydney by four weeks. A leading daily winds up a two-thirds of a column notice with the remark: "It was quite good fun, and towards the end as good as such fun can be." The "spoof" play, as it is headed, is reviewed at considerable length as "ingenious and amusing," the exact nature of the "spoof" being in almost every case carefully explained. The London cast apparently suffered by failing to suggest the American atmosphere. Of Mr Charles Hawtrey, we read that "he had a great deal to do, but the flowers of American speech and the "cut it out" and "double cross" variety fell strangely from his West End lips. And yet, no doubt, it is better that he did not essay a Transatlantic accent. He remained his usual self, active, suave, and amusing, and in a little time will make a great deal more of William Magee, chief of American short-story writers." At the Strand Theatre Mr. Louis Meyer has revived "The Silver King," with H. B. Irving and Edyth Goodall in the central characters, and Arthur Williams as Jaikes. Ambrose Manning was Father Christmas, a character with which he is also identified in Australia. "The Little Minister" has been put up at the Duke of York's Theatre, with Marie Lohr in the central character played here by Pattie Browne when J. M. Barrie's comedy was new. Our last year's visitor, Lewis Waller, has produced a new drama by Harold Bourn and Dion Calthrop at Birmingham under the title of "The Other Side of Love." Mr. Waller is described as coming out in a new light as a strong, silent colonial millionaire in modern dress. He comes to England to seek out and marry a straight-forward woman of noble birth, and is robbed and deceived by his secretary, Lord Montague Illister. This dishonest young spendthrift is in love with Lady Isabel, whom the millionaire hopes to marry. Eventually the man of millions carries the lady away with him, but not until he has denounced some of her "noble" friends in a powerful scene in which he shows them their mistake in supposing him an easy prey. The other two leading roles were taken by Mr. Max Leeds and Miss Evelyn D'Alroy. The only artists still remaining of Mr. Waller's American and Australian company are Messrs. Frank Woolfe, Reginald Dane, and Edmund Waller.

"J. A. E. Malone, George Edwardes's general manager at Daly's, threw eight Gilbert-Sullivan roles into my lap after I had signed the contract for the Cape and Australia, with the cheerful remark, 'There, my boy, that'll keep you out of mischief for a day or two.'" Thus Mr. Edward M'Keown described the close of his interview with J. C. Williamson's London agent, whereby he has returned to his native city, after an absence of 12 years. His father, the Rev. Robert M'Keown, has been for 30 years rector of St. Mary's Church of England, Waverley, and the tenor was born a year earlier, not far from his father's previous living at St. Simon's and St. Jude's, Surry Hills. He was a woolbuyer for Ostermeyer, Dewez, and Van Rompaey here when he left for England, and up to that time had sung very little outside the family circle. At Bradford he met a generous Yorkshire manufacturer and connoisseur of music, named A. R. Wright, who spent £1000 upon his young friend's musical education under Francis Harford, Sir Henry Wood, and R. B. Addison—the last a great teacher of voice production. His patron, though not a rich man, left the question of returning the money advanced absolutely open. Mr. M'Keown had the satisfaction of repaying the whole of it, remaining only his friend's debtor in gratitude. The young Australian made a successful debut in England at the Chappell Ballad Concerts, Queen's Hall, with Ada Crossley, Kennerley Rumford, and other famous people, and after further concert experience, was engaged as a principal tenor with the Moody-Manners Opera Company. Mme. De Vere Sapio and other artists known here were in the cast, and our recent visitor Herr Eckhold, who conducted, was high in praise of the newcomer's Lohengrin. After two years of grand opera, the tenor joined the George Edwardes companies, singing in "The Merry Widow," and other pieces on tour, and made a hit as Sir Walter Raleigh in Edward German's comic opera "Merrie England," a clever and popular work which he would like to see produced in Australia; and he created for the great provincial centres the high tenor role of Alexis in "The Chocolate Soldier." Last year he was at the Apollo Theatre, London, in Gustav Kerker's "The Grass Widow," and after resuming concert work for a while he sailed for Australia.

After a silence of many weeks, Mr. H. N. Southwell writes from the quaint old village of Ickenham, 17 miles from London, that his grand holiday is drawing to a close, and that he has booked by the Anchises, via the Cape, for December 11; but may leave later. The ever-energetic concert manager has travelled all over England, has spent two days each in some 20 great centres and old cathedral cities, which he names, and has motored more than a thousand miles both in the north and south of Ireland, with various genial hosts. At Edinburgh Mr. Southwell went to an organ-recital given by Mr. Perkins (Birmingham City Organist), at the new Usher Hall. He regards this as the finest hall in the United Kingdom. It was the gift of a wealthy brewer, seats 2500 people in a chamber of rare architectural grace and perfect acoustics, and realises the testor's aim in enabling Edinburgh people to hear good concerts at cheap prices. Since settling at Ickenham, the visitor has been up to London twice a week and heard the Sydney pianist Myrtle Meggy, play in great style the Rimsky-Korsakov Concerto with Sir Henry Wood's orchestra at Queen's Hall. The promenade concerts crowd the place with nearly 3000 people, the majority standing silently on the open space of the ground floor; others in the two galleries, with upholstered seats. Mr. Southwell closes with the remark dated September 10:—"I have just had a note from Miss Annette Scammell, the Sydney pianist now settled in London, telling me that she hashad 'a smuggled letter' through Holland from Ethel Liggins (Sydney contralto), and Margaret Edson (Sydney pianist), and both were being kindly treated in Berlin. The calamity of the war seems quite close to us. The wounded and the refugees arrive by every train. To-day the public is warned that a British naval airship will pass across London and that no one is to fear it, or fire upon it."

Her stylish gowning, and the satiric sincerity of manner with which she plays the sceptical young wife in "The Glad Eye," now crowding the Palace Theatre, distinguish Miss Alice Hamilton, a new artist from London who was born at Mangere, New Zealand. In the Dominion, as a child-actress, the newcomer supported Walter Bentley as the little son of "Rob Roy" and as a page in "Hamlet." Then, after her schooling in England, Mr. Arthur Collins gave her a small part in "Mother Goose" at Drury Lane Theatre, and after two years there and on tour, the actress played second boy to Ada Reeve in "Jack and the Beanstalk" at Liverpool. This was in a strong cast, which included George Robey, Barry Lupino, and Florence Imeson. Miss Hamilton brings the sad news that Miss Imeson, who was a favourite here three years ago in "The Gay Gordons" and "The Gay Grisette," making a hit in the latter in a pretty scene entitled "Cupid's Rifle Range," passed away last year, whilst touring India. Shortly after the Liverpool extravaganza Miss Hamilton was engaged as Diane, the Parisian actress in "The Quaker Girl" (1910), and at the end of the long London run she went on tour in the same piece with a company, headed by Louis Bradfield, once so popular on this side. The actress had another long engagement as the Spanish girl in the "Stop Press" Revue at the Coliseum and London Palace theatres, and continued touring with the piece on the Moss and Stoll circuit, until an effusive send-off by her friends on a certain Thursday early in July. The next day she caught the Orvieto, travelling here with Ethel Dane, the inimitable Kiki of "The Glad Eye," and Frank Bradley, the spiritualistic old buffer of the cast. Miss Hamilton, in spite of the glory of her wonderful Paris gowns, is not enjoying her Australian visit as much as she hoped, owing to her anxiety about her little daughter, who was at the Notre Dame Convent school, Louvain, when the war broke out. Thus the daily sunshine of lives in regions most remote from this impious war "arrayed in flames and smoke" comes within its chequered shadows.

THE CHURCHES.

MARSDEN CENTENARY.

The approaching commemoration of the centenary of the Rev. Samuel Marsden's first visit to New Zealand in December, 1814, is of special interest to New South Wales, because the "apostle of New Zealand," as he has been called, was at the time chaplain of the settlement at Parramatta. Seven times he crossed the stormy Tasman Sea in accomplishing his great work of planting and watering the Church in New Zealand, and during his last visit, when bowed down with the infirmities of old age and a hard, strenuous, full life, he was carried from place to place by his Maori converts, receiving their reverence and devotion.

The prosperity of the Dominion is, to a great extent, the outcome of the pioneer missionary work, for European settlement was contingent upon the conversion and evangelisation of the Maoris. It was originally intended to hold a church congress to celebrate the event, but in consequence of the changed circumstances arising from the breaking out of the war this had to be abandoned.

A thanksgiving service will be held at the Marsden Cross, marking the spot where the first sermon was preached, at the Bay of Islands, on the far north of New Zealand, and those who make the pilgrimage thither will be able to visit other historic places where the battles of Christianity were fought out in the early days, notably Paihia, Waitangi, where the famous treaty was signed, and Kerri-Kerri. Near Waitangi the house in which the first Government Resident lived, when New Zealand was a dependency of New South Wales, is still standing in an excellent state of preservation.

WAR-TIME PRAYERS.

A booklet, entitled "Prayers in Time of War," just issued in London, contains prayers written by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Bishop Boyd Carpenter, the Bishop of Worcester, the Bishop of Lincoln, the Bishop of Knaresborough, the Bishop of Birmingham, and Canon Newbolt. One contributed by Bishop Boyd Carpenter is a prayer for succour and support, as follows:—"O Father of Mercies and God of all Comfort, hear us in this hour of distress. Give courage to those who fight our battles by land and sea. Give to those who fall the assurance of Thy loving care. Give Thy peace to those who die. Give Thine own comfort to those who mourn; bind up the broken in heart. Give wisdom to those who rule and guide our country. Fill the hearts of those who govern in all lands with an ardent desire to put an end to strife. And do Thou, O God, who makest wars to cease, bring to us again in Thine own time the blessing of peace; for the sake of Him who is the Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ our God."

BROTHERHOOD OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

The Principal and three other members of The Brotherhood of the Good Shepherd, are at present in Sydney for the "campaign," which is held annually in order to arouse interest in the work done by the Brotherhood as representative of the Church of England in the western parts of the State. The Bishop of Bathurst will also visit Sydney during the week to assist in the campaign. The Brothers are engaged this week addressing drawing-room meetings and various schools and colleges. To-morrow sermons will be delivered in about 16 churches in the city and suburbs by the Bishop and the Brothers, and some of the Sydney clergy who are assisting. On Monday night a public meeting will be held in St. James's Hall. The chair will be taken by Mr. Justice Street, and addresses will be delivered by the Bishop of Bathurst and the Brothers.

The Brotherhood now consists of 13 members—seven priests, one deacon, and five laymen. The area covered is about 49,000 square miles. Of the four districts into which this area is divided, the Bourke district, consisting of about 21,000 square miles, is the largest and most sparsely populated. It is worked by three Brothers, and with Bourke as its headquarters, takes in the townships of Wanaaring, Hungerford, Barringun, Ford's Bridge, Yantabulla, and others. The Brewarrina district is next in order of size, covering an area of 17,000 square miles, also worked by three Brothers. Since the advent of the Brotherhood five churches have been built, at an average distance from one another of about 35 miles. The mining district, with headquarters at Canbelego, covers about 7000 square miles, and is worked by two Brothers. The smallest district is the Castlereagh—an area of 4000 square miles. Services are held in twenty-five centres, and five churches have been built, with others in prospect. In addition to the work among farmers, selectors, boundary-riders, sleeper-cutters, shearers, hawkers, miners, and swagmen the Brothers give religious instruction in about 60 day schools, and some work is done among the aboriginals. The annual report shows an expenditure of about £2600. The salary of each Brother is £25 per annum, and the working expenses average about £80. The amount raised in the districts is about £1600, and about £150 is contributed from England. This leaves about £850 per annum to be raised in other parts of Australia.

The Rev. Stanford F. H. Robinson, who came to Australia at the invitation of Bishop Frodsham, four years ago, to take charge of Trinity College, Herberton, North Queensland, leaves Sydney to-day by the R.M.S. Osterley for England, having been appointed rector of the parish of Down Hatheley, in Gloucester. Mr. Robinson's successor at Herberton is the Rev. Reginald Halse. During his stay in the north, Mr. Robinson visited some of the most remote parts, where the people had hitherto seen little of clergymen, and says that he met with constant kindness everywhere.

The Rev. C. A. Stubbin, of Ulladulla, has been appointed rector of St. Michael's, Wollongong, in succession to the Rev. W. Newmarch, who has accepted the call to St. Oswald's, Haberfield.

The Rev. H. G. J. Howe, of Chatswood, has been nominated to fill the vacancy at Leichhardt caused by the removal of the Rev. H. S. Begbie to Newtown. Mr. Howe has been in charge of the Chatswood parish for 12 years.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop (Dr. Kelly) returned to Sydney last week after a visit to the Braidwood and Araluen districts. To-morrow he will preside at the reopening of St. Patrick's Church, Church-hill, at 11 o'clock. On Wednesday he will attend the quarterly conference of the clergy. On Friday next he will visit Erskineville, and confirm a number of children.

The Rev. Father Sydes, S.J., of St. Mary's, North Sydney, will leave for India on November 14 by the R.M.S. Medina, to make the Tertianship which is identical with the final year of a Jesuit's training. Prior to entering the Order Father Sydes was a well-known barrister in Brisbane. He expects to return to his parish at the end of next year.

At the close of his mission at St. Patrick's, Parramatta, the Rev. Father Forest, M.S.H., will proceed to New Guinea on missionary work.

The Right Rev. Dr. Gallagher, Roman Catholic Bishop of Goulburn, blessed and opened the new presbytery at Lockhart on Sunday last. The building was erected at a cost of £1800.

Catholics in the Maitland diocese are making arrangements to tender the Rev. Dr. Dwyer, Roman Catholic Bishop of Maitland, an enthusiastic welcome home on his return from Europe.

The Rev. James Jackson, who replaced the Rev. Mr. Nicholls, arrived at Suva recently to take charge of the Presbyterian church. A social evening was held to welcome him, and proved a great success.

The Presbyterian naval and military committee have decided to nominate two chaplains for the Second Expeditionary Force. The ministers selected for the positions are the Rev. A. Gillison, M.A., of Victoria, and the Rev. J. Keith Miller, of Inverell, N.S.W. Should Mr. Gillison be unable to accompany the troops, the selection will lie between the Rev. D. Macrae Stewart, the Rev. F. Milne, M.A., B.D., and the Rev. S. MacBain, B.A.

Under the auspices of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Committee the Rev. E. Brown and Mrs. Brown will, during the coming week, visit Lismore, Casino, Grafton, Glen Innes, Inverell, Moree, Narrabri, Tamworth, Maitland, Taree, Wingham, and Newcastle. In the suburban area the following itinerary has been arranged:—Chatswood, Petersham, St. Stephen's, Parramatta, Mosman, North Sydney, Kogarah, and Randwick.

The moderator of the State General Assembly is at present touring in the western district. He will visit Gulgong, Trundle, Bourke, and Orange. On his return he will visit Cooerwull Academy.

A Presbyterian church is being built at Jindabyne, in the Cooma charge, and will shortly be ready for occupation.

The Presbyterian congregation at Berry has given a unanimous call to the Rev. R. Bourne Garner, and the induction will be carried out shortly by the Presbytery of Illawarra.

The Presbyterian congregation at Lindfield is taking steps to give a call to a minister, and there is every likelihood of an early settlement.

The Presbytery of the Hunter is about to license four students of the Theological Hall, who have completed their course, namely, Messrs. A. E. Bates, R. C. Racklyeft, J. Richardson, and C. G. Walkom.

The Commission of the State General Assembly of New South Wales met in St. Stephen's Church, Phillip-street, on October 8, when permits to sell, mortgage, or lease church property were granted to the following congregations:—Cowra, Braidwood, Rose Bay, and Stanmore.

The call by Chalmers' Church to the Rev. Mr. Brandt, of Victoria, was sustained by the Presbytery of Sydney at last meeting, and arrangements made for the settlement.

The Presbytery of Wagga Wagga is taking steps towards the settlement of the Rev. R. C. Racklyeft in the charge of Lockhart, and the induction will be carried out during next month.

The Presbytery of Wagga Wagga inducted the Rev. George Edwards, formerly of Tenterfield, to the charge of Tumberumba. There was a good representation of the Presbytery at the meeting, and the proceedings were of a very hearty character.

The call from the Glebe congregation to the Rev. G. R. S. Reid, formerly of Narrandera, will be dealt with at the next meeting of the Presbytery of Sydney, and the induction will be most probably carried out during the month of November.

The forty-ninth annual session of the Congregational Union of New South Wales concluded its sittings yesterday. The sessional sermon was delivered on Monday by the Rev. Stanley Morrison, and on Tuesday morning the chairman-elect, Rev. F. V. Dowling, delivered his presidential address. This was entitled, "Conscience, the Criterion of the Gospel." It was an interesting examination of the present-day attitude towards Christian teachings, and presented a solution of the difficulties which beset churchmen in their teachings.

The discussions during the week were of an educational character. The public morals section report, presented by the Rev. A. Deans, was one of the most illuminating contributions yet made upon a vital social question. To-day most of the delegates will visit Punchbowl, where a new church will be opened.

The Rev. J. Marshall Brown, of Bathurst, who has been selected as chairman-elect of the Congregational Union of New South Wales, is a native of Drummoyne. After completing his education at the Camden College, he had charge of Chatswood, and subsequently accepted a call to Bathurst. His administration of the affairs of both pastorates was characterised by tact and business acumen.

The Rev. J. J. Willings, one of the chaplains of the forces of the Commonwealth, will conduct a patriotic service in the Newtown Congregational Church, to-morrow afternoon. The collection will be entirely handed over to the Lord Mayor's Fund.

Mr. Robert Harkness, B.A., who recently returned to Sydney from America, has been invited by the Church of Christ at North Adelaide to become the minister there.

News has been received of the safe arrival of the C.I.M. missionaries, who left Sydney at the end of August for Shanghai. Misses Matheson and Stevens, after a short stay in Shanghai, proceeded to Yang-Chow, to commence the study of the language. Misses Cooke and Edwards also left for the interior. Miss Coleman, who has been on furlough, is leaving on Wednesday next for Brisbane, en route for China. This is the third time that Miss Coleman leaves Sydney for China to work among the Chinese people in connection with the China Inland Mission. Since she went out in 1891 she has seen many changes in the Chinese Empire, and has had varied experiences among the people.

At a public meeting held on Monday at the Kiama Methodist Church, in connection with the Children's Anniversary, Miss Annie Lockett was presented with a gold wristlet watch, and an illuminated address, as a token of esteem and recognition of her services, in connection with the choir and Sunday school.

The Waverley Methodist Sunday school celebrated its seventieth anniversary on Sunday last. Since it was established in 1844, the Sunday school has passed through many vicissitudes, but it is now regarded as one of the most flourishing in the State. There are now on the roll 505 pupils consisting of 204 boys and 301 girls. The teaching staff totals 51, 27 ladies and 24 gentlemen. During last year the average attendance was 254.

Mr. T. Jessep, who has been for thirty years connected with the Sunday school, is in no small degree responsible for its flourishing condition. It was he who, some years ago, recognised the necessity for some change, and was primarily responsible for the introduction of the departmental system. This scheme of things proved a success from the start, and is mainly responsible for the flourishing position of the Sunday school.

The following invitations have been given to Methodist ministers:—Rev. B. Danks to Lewisham, Rev. E. Laverty to Paddington, and the Rev. A. M. Yates to Mudgee.

It is probable that the Rev. L. G. Broughton, pastor of Christ Church, Westminster Bridge-road, London, and Rev. Dr. F. B. Meyer, of Regent's Park Chapel, will visit Australia early next year.

Extended invitations have been given at recent quarterly meetings to the following Methodist ministers:—Rev. F. J. Branch, Waverley (fifth year), Rev. F. W. Hynes, Balmain (seventh year), Rev. P. J. Stephen, C. M. M. (eighth year), Rev. A. Stephen, Leichhardt (fifth year), Rev. G. H. Hewitt, South Sydney (fifth year), Rev. T. F. Potts, Gordon (fourth year), Rev. J. C. Hill, Ashfield (fourth year), Rev. C. E. Godbehear, Molong (fourth year), Rev. B. J. Meek, Rockdale (fourth year).

On Tuesday next district synod of the Methodist Church will be opened in the Conference Hall, Castlereagh-street. The Rev. F. Colwell will preside. Synods will also be held throughout the State on the same day, and will be presided over by the chairmen of the different districts. A good deal of preparatory business for the conference will be considered.

The Rev. F. Colwell, president of the Methodist Conference, conducted services at Hurstville on Thursday night, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Payne and the Rev. Mr. Green. Sixty-seven young people were received into church membership. The service was of a most interesting and impressive character. Similar services have been held throughout the Sydney district during the past quarter.

A very successful bazaar has been held at North Sydney in connection with the Methodist Church to raise funds for trust purposes. A sum of £300 has been realised.

The Rev. J. F. Ball, B.A., B.Sc., with his wife, arrived in Sydney on Tuesday last. He has gone to Lithgow to take the place of the Rev. R. H. Pittendrigh, who has volunteered for service.

An interesting feature in the ecclesiastical life of Sydney is the appointment of an ecclesiastical conference committee, representing all the churches, with a view to dealing with moral questions relating to the wellbeing of the community as a whole. The Roman Catholic Church was represented in this conference by four laymen. United work of this kind should prove most effective.

The Grenfell branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society held a successful meeting on Tuesday last. Over 700 people being present, and there was a good collection.

At the monthly meeting of the Mission Study Council on Monday last it was reported that the demonstration in graded missionary education had been successfully held, and that over 30 names had been received of people desirous of taking a course of training for work in various grades. A sub-committee had been appointed to arrange the details of this special course. A resolution was passed in favour of the holding of a mission study conference at Easter time next year, as in the two previous years.

Mr. Dan Crawford, F.R.G.S., the famous Central African missionary, who arrived on Wednesday from Queensland, will remain in Sydney till November 4, when he will leave on a country itinerary. He will attend a conference of missionary societies at the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday afternoon, and a welcome meeting at the Congregational Church, Pitt-street, the same evening.

SCHOOLS' DISPLAY.

The committee controlling the Public Schools' Demonstration held last Wednesday in aid of the Children's Hospital adopted a suggestion that the Maypole dancers take up a collection in the stands for the further benefit of the institution. The sum of £85 17s 5d was collected. This, added to the gate, £619 10s 6d, brings the gross total to £705 7s 11d. It will take a little while to adjust the accounts, but after all expenses are paid there should be a sum of over £600 for the hospital.

The gross receipts the previous week amounted to a little over £1000. This, less expenses, is to be given to the Patriotic Fund.

THE TURBULENT DUCHESS.

"Is she less self-willed to-day than yesterday?"

"No Bergolet, no; but if you can rouse her interest I'll find an excuse for changing my mind. In Podina we keep holiday at the festival of St. Winifried. Who St. Winifried was, or what she did, I have forgotten, even if I ever knew, but for days we run [illegible] of idleness and carnival. The Duchess knows that the people expect her to make known her choice during the festival, and I have almost persuaded her to make much of the [illegible] this year, and to invite such princes of the neighbouring States as are not at [illegible] to Metzburg. From this carnival Saxe must not be omitted. Trust me at least to have prince Maurice here."

"You know him well, it seems, General, [illegible] may end by making a wastrel of you."

"I do not know him, but I know how anxious his father is for the match. I will even play the wastrel for a night or two during the carnival if it will help forward this match. Are you prepared to play your part in the scheme, Bergolet?"

"I would serve the Duchess."

"And you will serve Podina, too."

"I am not paid for that. But tell me, General, tell me and my little friend here why do you trust the jester?"

"I like your face. There's honesty in it."

"It's a poor reason. Tell me further why you have so great faith in my persuasion."

"You're a clever fool, Bergolet. Where you get your understanding from I cannot tell, but you have found a way to influence the Duchess. She has been less angry since you came. She has laughed, even against her will. Did she not, on your persuasion, [illegible] that big kinsman of yours—Saxe do you call him—into the Guard? You have turned her displeasure into forgiveness, and once or twice you have given her most excellent counsel. It is certain no one dare speak to her as you do——"

"That is the fool's privilege."

"The other Bergolet had no such privilege," said Kevenfelt. "He was a fool, there was an end of it; while you—— Did you ever see old Bergolet's dress?"

"Never, General."

"It was poor stuff beside that you wear. His little friend had a common head of [illegible] yours has one well fashioned in silver. His bells, too, were of brass, while yours are silver. You are greatly honoured, Master Jester; that is why I climbed your stairs to-day."

"I will serve the Duchess and Podina," said Bergolet.

"Even a fool finds trouble sometimes; it may come to me if you want a friend," said Kevenfelt rising. "One word more; you must begin your persuasion at once. It is more than likely that on his way to [illegible] the Elector will visit Metsburg. It is an opportunity to see his young and very dear neighbour which he would not miss, and when Freidrich Wilhelm troubles to give so definite a statement you may know that his real reason hides behind it. I may discover who is the puppet he has in his mind as a husband for Her Grace. I know the House of Brandenburg is over-fond of enlarging its borders, and Podina has long been a coveted jewel."

"We'll have no puppet of his choosing in Metsburg, General. I couldn't abide another fool to keep me company. Think of it; he might be given bells of gold. I'll talk to the Duchess before she sleeps."

The jester laughed, and he did not move until the sound of the General's footsteps had died away down the winding stairs. Then he went to the window again.

"Little friend, we've got to persuade our mistress to marry a wastrel. It's a [illegible] but an evil occupation. We know these wastrels; brimming tankards, loose company and —what did the General say? A journey across Europe to see a pretty woman. By my coat and bells, such a wastrel interests me. He might journey on a worse errand. Is the General honest, little friend? Eh, you think so? No subtle scheme behind that wrinkled skin of his? Not a man who has grown white-headed in villainy? Just an ordinary old man who loves his country and his Duchess, in spite of the fact that she is as self-willed as the devil. How goes the heart of the jester? Did you hear him, little friend? The heart of the jester?"

Bergolet leaned over the sill, looked down into the court below, and was thoughtful for a while.

"Time we sought our mistress's company again," he said presently. "She will walk in the garden to-night, and if we talk of the wastrel—ah, little friend, we shall see her angry, and perchance shall hardly escape a whipping."

He went quickly down the stairs, a laughing, shallow, mercurial fool, and as he went he sang the stave of a doggerel rhyme.

> Three came a-courting a maiden fair
> All in the month of roses;
> The first had fame for his deeds in war,
> Learn'd was the second in scholar's lore,
> The third was a sinner and little more,
> 'Twas the sinner that love was waiting for,
> So hey for his time of roses.

He was chanting the same stave a second time as he crossed a small courtyard on his way to the garden, when a woman suddenly came from an angle of the wall and stood in front of him. The bells jingled as he stopped abruptly.

"You have a light heart, jester."

"'Tis easier carried than a heavy one."

"Jester, would you have your fortune told?"

"I know it."

"Not as I could tell it," she answered quickly.

Bergolet looked at her curiously. The shawl which was wound round her head and shoulders was so held as to hide her face, but her voice was young, her figure neat and attractive. She was no ordinary gipsy.

"I'll see if I possess a silver coin," he said slowly.

"Or pluck me a bell from your cap, Master Fool. Are they so precious because a woman gave you them?"

Bergolet caught her wrist.

"Ah, that brings out the man in you, does it?" she laughed. "Let me be. Why should a fool quarrel with a fortune-teller? There's a heart in you which may be touched even by a Duchess; and since you make so brave a show it would seem certain you have touched hers. That's the kind of success to win enemies, and before now men have died violently in a Metsburg street, and no one has been brought to account for it. [illegible] you bear your fortune?"

"I am searching for the coin," and he thrust his hand into his pocket.

"Keep your coin and your bells; we are two of a trade, and will not rob each other. And this is no place to tell a fortune. You know the end of the market-place, by the great door of St. Anne's."

"An elderly Eve gave me an apple from a stall there two days ago."

"And while you munched it did you note a house hard by the church, a house that leans forward as if it were tired of standing so long? A sign hangs from its wall, a [illegible] horse swinging from a hook. On the [illegible] level it is a saddler's."

"And above a witch's sanctuary. I ask the saddler, ask for the witch, and——"

"Better say, 'Is the lady waiting?' It is likely to frighten him less. To-night at [illegible] You must come alone."

"And bring no coin?"

"Nor let your bells jangle," she answered.

"I'll leave folly at home and come as a man."

"To-night, then," and she slipped by him, passed through an archway, and was gone.

Bergolet stood for a moment looking at the archway.

"Maybe she loves me, little friend, or maybe—ah, that would be awkward. I must talk to kinsman Saxe about it. A general and a fortune-teller in one day. We're making strange friends and may get employed in queer business. Little friend evidently there is a place in the world for the fools—[illegible] for sinners.

> The third was a sinner and little more,
> 'Twas the sinner that love was waiting for,
> So, hey for his time of roses.

And he went on towards the garden, singing.

SOCIETY OF ARTISTS.

At a meeting of the committee of the Society of Artists, held at the rooms, Queen Victoria Markets, it was decided that the annual exhibition should take place as usual in the early part of November. Pictures are to be received on November 7, the opening day to be November 18. The Minister for Public Instruction has notified his intention of declaring the exhibition open on Wednesday, November 18, at 2.30 p.m.

A good deal of interest centres round this year's picture exhibitions, which, at the Minister's expressed wished, are to be held simultaneously to afford the trustees of the National Art Gallery the opportunity of spending the sum of £1000 in work by New South Wales artists.

The committee of the Society of Artists further decided upon an exhibition of students' work, embracing the usual school work, and a selection from the Students' Sketch Club, demonstrating their ability to turn their class work to account. This will take place from October 28 to November 6, inclusive.

The "New York Evening Mail" says that the value of exports to Germany during the past fortnight was £9000, as compared with £665,000, the value of exports during the fortnight previous to the outbreak of war.

LAW REPORT.

BANCO COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

CLAIM FOR MONEY LENT.

Pedley v Australian Marine Fibres, Ltd.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. John M. Sanders, instructed by Messrs. Shipway and Berne, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. A. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. Gould and Shaw, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Arthur Dolly Pedley against the defendant company, to recover £261 16s 3d, in the circumstances previously stated; the question for decision being whether the defendant company owed N. A. Wade, who was managing director of the company at the time of the transaction, the amount now claimed by plaintiff, and which he desired to attach for money advanced to Wade by him. Defendant company pleaded that they were not indebted.

The jury returned a verdict for plaintiff in the amount claimed, £261 16s 3d.

A THEATRICAL ACTION.

ALLEGED BREACH OF AGREEMENT.

Anderson v Allan.

Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. Neville W. Montagu, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. E. J. Bayly Macarthur, instructed by Messrs. Stephen, Jaques, and Stephen, for defendant. This was an action brought by William Anderson, theatrical proprietor, against Maud Allan, the well-known dancer, to recover compensation for alleged breach of agreement. Plaintiff's case was that in consideration of the plaintiff agreeing to pay defendant and her company (including Lee Jan and Michel Cherniavsky) during a season of three weeks, commencing on June 13, at the King's Theatre, Melbourne, and three weeks commencing on July 14, 1914, at the Palace Theatre, Sydney, defendant promised to give performances in complete fulfilment of the agreement, but that she had failed to carry out the agreement though repeatedly requested to do so. Plaintiff said that in consequence he had been put to expense, and had lost the profits he otherwise would have made. Damages were laid at £1000. The action was only in reference to the season at the Palace Theatre.

Defendant pleaded that it was a term and condition of the agreement that in the event of serious illness on her part, which would render the fulfilment of the agreement impossible, it would be rendered null and void, and that no damage should be claimed by plaintiff. After the agreement was entered upon defendant became seriously ill within the meaning of the agreement, and found it impossible to fulfil it.

In the course of his address to the jury, Mr. Curtis said that plaintiff had to provide the theatre, electric lighting, cleaning, etc., and also the preliminary advertising, which was a heavy item; while defendant had to provide the company (including the three musicians, Cherniavsky), and the orchestra, the cost of which to defendant was £200 per week. Plaintiff was to receive 40 per cent. of the gross takings, and the defendant, in consideration of the expense she was under, was to receive 60 per cent. It was estimated that the plaintiff's expenses would be about £240 per week, and in order to make a profit it was necessary that the gross takings should be £600 per week. The performance lasted only three nights, and on the opening night (Saturday) the takings were £256, on the second they dropped £140, and on the third the receipts were £149. Defendant did not appear after the third night and gave as a reason that she had, while performing, displaced a cartilage of one of her knees, and was, therefore, too seriously ill to appear. There was no doubt, said counsel, that if defendant suffered in that way it would have rendered the agreement void, but plaintiff's contention was that nothing of the kind occurred to prevent defendant from appearing, and that after the third performance she was able to come forward and bow her acknowledgments to the audience for their applause, and walk out of the theatre. Next morning defendant's manager informed the representative of plaintiff that she had injured one of her legs while performing at the theatre on the previous night, and therefore could not continue her engagement. The result was that persons attending the matinee had to be paid their money back, and plaintiff lost the bookings for the following Saturday, which were heavy.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

FIFIELD MAGNESITE MINE.

MOTION FOR A DECREE.

The suits of Ward v Hemery and others, and Bors v Ward and another, arising out of a magnesite mine at Fifield and certain leases on Crown and private lands, was mentioned. In the first suit the plaintiff was Thomas William Ward, and the defendants, Charles Jersey Hemery, Herbert Kasper Bors, and Otto Bors; in the second matter, the plaintiffs were Herbert Kasper Bors and Otto Bors, and the defendants Thomas William Ward and Charles Jersey Hemery.

Mr. Maughan, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Company, appeared for Ward; Mr. A. McC. Lobban, of Messrs. Lobban and Lobban, for Hemery; and Mr. Palmer, of Messrs. McGregor and Palmer, for the two Bors.

In the first suit Ward asked for a dissolution of the partnership existing between him and the defendant, Hemery, and for an inquiry as to who were the persons entitled in certain leases and agreements, and in what proportions; what interest the defendants H. K. Bors and O. Bors had in the same, and whether the interest had priority over plaintiff's claim against Hemery's share.

In the second suit the Bors stated in their claim that the defendant, Ward, was entitled to a one-half interest in certain leases and agreements for leases, and that the defendant Hemery was entitled to the other half, subject to certain encumbrances in favour of the plaintiffs or one of them. They prayed for a declaration that certain encumbrances were, as against all parties, valid and subsisting, and that they affected the one-half interest in the leases and agreements to which Hemery was entitled.

By consent his Honor made a decree in both suits in terms of a memorandum signed by the respective solicitors, and filed in court.

ARDLETHAN OPTIONS SYNDICATE.

Easdown v Scantlebury.

The suit of Easdown v Scantlebury, in respect of certain shares in the Ardlethan Options Syndicate, was mentioned.

Mr. R. H. L. Innes, instructed by Mr. P. C. Law, appeared for the plaintiff, William Easdown; and Mr. A. McC. Lobban, of Messrs. Lobban and Lobban, for the defendant, John Edward Scantlebury.

Mr. Innes stated that when the matter was before the Court in February last, his Honor made a reference to the Master for accounts, and ordered the rest of the suit to stand over, with liberty to the defendant to amend his counter-claim. By arrangement between the parties, the taking of accounts before the Master was dispensed with, and it was agreed that the defendant should pay plaintiff £137 16s; the counter-claim to be dismissed; and the defendant to pay plaintiff's costs in the suit and counter-claim.

It was stated that the £137 16s had already been paid.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

INTERESTING BETTING CASE.

Draper v Kennealy.

Mr. Pickburn, instructed by Mr. J. V. Tillett (Crown Solicitor), appeared for Draper, in support of an appeal from the decision on August 10 last of Mr. Charles J. B. Helm, P.M., of Wagga Wagga, in a proceeding before him in which James Golding Draper was the complainant and Arthur Joseph Kennealy the defendant. Mr. L. Armstrong, instructed by Messrs. Higgins and Robinson, of Wagga Wagga, appeared for respondent (defendant) to oppose the application. It appeared from the special case submitted for the opinion of the Court that Kennealy was prosecuted under an information in which he was charged with having, on May 30, unlawfully used a room adjoining the secretary's office, situated at the Murrumbidgee Turf Club Racecourse, for the purpose of betting on an event known as the "Vanquished Stakes." Defendant pleaded not guilty, and the magistrate, after hearing evidence, dismissed the information. The matter had previously come before Mr. Justice Ferguson, who had referred the case back, in order to have the depositions annexed, and also for a statement by the magistrate as to his exact finding. The magistrate had since reported that he found that the defendant did not commit the offence charged against him under the Gaming and Betting Act, by using on May 30, the room in question in the manner, and under the circumstances submitted. From the facts it appeared that the racecourse was being used at the time by the Wagga Wagga Picnic Race Club, and Mr. Pickburn pointed out that defendant was charged, under section 42, sub-section 2, of the Act, which provided that no house, room, or other place should be opened, kept, or used for the purpose of betting. Certain admissions were made at the hearing below, and put in by both sides, one being that there was no exclusive use of the room by defendant, and that it was used by other members of the club.

Mr. Armstrong: There was no betting in the room at all.

Mr. Pickburn: There was a totalisator being carried on in the room.

Mr. Armstrong said the facts were that the club issued books containing tickets, and members of the club went round with them, and those who wished to back a horse wrote the name of the horse he fancied, and paid a certain sum of money. All the tickets were then taken to defendant and others, who were in the room. The transaction might correctly be described as a totalisator, but defendant did not receive money in the room to be paid over by him on the contingency of a horse race.

Mr. Pickburn: It is really running a "tote" without a machine.

Mr. Armstrong: Certain members of the club simply went about the racecourse asking other members to go into a sweep, and the tickets when signed were taken to defendant or somebody else in the room.

Mr. Pickburn: But the members got their winnings in the room.

Mr. Armstrong: The magistrate found that the actual physical transaction of passing the money when the tickets were sold did not take place in the room.

Mr. Pickburn: I say it did; that the room was used for that purpose. It is not necessary for the betting to take place there. If the room was opened, kept, or used for the purpose of money being received in connection with a horse race, that is sufficient. It was a user of the room, within the meaning of the section, and therefore the offence was complete.

His Honor reserved judgment.

DIVORCE COURT.

TAX ON MOTOR CARS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—No motorist will object to Mr. Holman's proposed levy on motor cars, but the tax should be made on a fair basis, and not, as suggested, on the horse-power of the car. Many low-priced cars have considerably greater horse-power than more expensive cars. Why should the man of moderate means, buying a £200 car, be called upon to pay a higher tax than the man who can afford to pay £500 for a car, simply because the horse-power of the former car is greater than the latter. To make the tax a fair one, it should be based in some way on the cost of the car, and not on its power.

I am, etc.,

REAL ESTATE.

NOTES OF THE WEEK.

The real estate market this week exhibited signs of stagnation as far as contracts were concerned. Indeed, there was almost an absence of actual sales, yet most of the indoor auctions were well attended, and there were buyers about. These people were bidding at amounts which on an average were 15 per cent. below reserves fixed prior to the war, and never yet lowered. Vendors would not reduce their price one penny this week. Everybody seemed quite content to play a waiting game. Owners evidently were in no hurry to sell. Buyers, on the other hand, were quite satisfied to hang off. It was a kind of deadlock that was reached. Certainly there were several influences at work which had an effect upon the market this week. The first portion of the week was very wet, and inspection of properties listed for sale was out of the question. Then there was the matter of what Mr. Holman was going to do with regard to increased taxation. That was not known until the middle of the week. However, there was a sigh of relief when the somewhat moderate taxation proposals of the Government were made known. But there is still the question of what Mr. Fisher will announce in respect to taxation disturbing the mind of the investor in real estate. But, towering above all these questions, is the uncertainty of the war and its immediate results. There is, however, a very hopeful tone about the market. Both buyers and sellers and even the agents have long since made up their minds to hold on with an almost certain hope that once the war is over there will be a speedy recovery in the direction of renewed prosperity. One of the conditions which largely helps such a view is the plentifulness of money at reasonable rates. Investors can borrow freely at 5½ and 6 per cent. on good securities. This is evidence of the confidence the money market has in the future of real estate in Sydney.

But, despite all these difficulties, a few sales were announced, and there was also a fair amount of inquiries for good residential properties, in such suburbs as Stanmore and Petersham, and on the North Shore line, and now that the summer is approaching people are also turning their attention to the seaside resorts, such as Manly, Vaucluse, Coogee, etc.; also to the Mountains.

Messrs. Raine and Horne had the most successful sale of the week. They had bidding for four out of seven properties, one of which they sold for £540; another was knocked down, subject to approval, for £1150. For another property there was an offer of £705, which was but a few pounds under the reserve. There was also a fair amount of bidding for a brick works at Punchbowl.

On Tuesday Mr. C. H. Crammond submitted a rather attractive list of properties in the western suburbs. There was an excellent attendance at this sale, which was held in the association rooms, and for most of the properties submitted there was good bidding. In fact, Mr. Crammond got to within £20 of the reserve for one fair-sized property, but the owner turned the offer down. No one seemed to want to sell under prices fixed before the war, but buyers demanded a slight reduction, but without success. Hence no business.

Messrs. Richardson and Wrench opened their sale yesterday by offering, under instructions from the Lord Mayor, two allotments at Riverstone the deeds of which had been handed over to the Lord Mayor's Fund for patriotic purposes. But there seemed little of the patriotic spirit left in the minds of the people who attended the sale, for all the persuasive powers of Mr. J. Gregg, the auctioneer, could not induce a single bid. Mr. Gregg even showed his audience the certificates of title for the land, but it was of no avail, and reluctantly the land was passed in for private treaty. The remaining items in the catalogue consisted of only four properties. For a cottage in Lord-street, Newtown, £225 was bid. For a cottage in Burwood-street, Burwood, £500 was offered. There was no bid for two other cottages in the same neighbourhood, while the offer of an acre of land at Willoughby met with a similar fate. Mr. Gregg was thus not able to dispose of any of the few properties which he offered.

An auction sale that is likely to prove attractive, judging from the inquiries that have been made, will be conducted by Messrs. Stanton and Son, next Tuesday at the rooms of the association in Castlereagh-street, opposite Moore-street. It is a number of properties in the estate of the late Marcus Clark which will be submitted. The list includes the well-known Picton Arms Hotel, in Campbell-street, Haymarket. A spacious city warehouse in Bay-street, Sydney, near Grace Bros.; also properties in Abercrombie and Harris streets, city, and at Haberfield Garden Suburb; also at North Sydney, Strathfield, Summer Hill, and at Wentworth Falls, Pittwater and Kellyville. Judging from the inquires that have been made regarding these properties this sale ought to be one of the most successful held for some time.

Messrs. C. J. Dillon and Son, of Murrumburrah, this week sold 40 acres in the estate of Thomas Pick, at £14 per acre. It was a cash transaction, the purchaser was Mr. M. J. Leonard, of Grenfell. The land is three miles from Murrumburrah.

Bankstown, according to the Railway Commissioner's report, is developing with remarkable rapidity, so much so that the local council finds itself heavily taxed to cope with the demand for street improvements. Despite this fact, the revenue is increasing in proportion to the population, which has nearly doubled itself in two years. In 1913 the building applications passed by the council were 289, or 5.56 per week. This year, to date, 267 plans have been passed, or at the rate of 8.64 per week. The unimproved capital value of the municipality has increased during the last three years by 87 per cent., or 29 per cent. per annum, the central ward being even more remarkable—no less than 118 per cent. in the last three years, or nearly 40 per cent. per annum. Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co., Ltd., have done much to bring Bankstown along, their huge subdivision estates having proved a veritable tower of strength in the progress of this coming centre. The balance of lots on their estates are dwindling rapidly, the sales this week on the Condell Park, Beaconsfield, and Greenacre estates emphasise this fact, and point to an even greater development around Bankstown in the near future.

Punchbowl is another very progressive residential suburb which this firm has brought into prominence. Punchbowl Lawn, the Railway estate, Emerald Hills estate, Forest Grove estate are each fine home sites properties, which are continually in keen demand by home seekers. The first-named is an especially-attractive proposition.

There is still a brisk demand for good farming lands. Several sales were reported this week. At Wentworthville Farms, Wentworthville, Flushcombe Farmlets, Blacktown, Greenacre Park, Bankstown, Grantham Farms estate, Riverstone, Homedale estate, Hurstville, etc., Messrs. Arthur Rickard effected sales: while in the Parramatta, Baulkham, and Castle Hill districts a number of properties changed hands through Messrs. Mobbs and other agents.

Messrs. Arthur Rickard and Co. report that the Quakers' Hill estate, at Blacktown, is sold out.

Auburn and the surrounding districts are making excellent progress, and quite a number of workmen's cottages are being built in this great industrial centre. But there are many who work at the factories and other manufacturing establishments in the district who reside a few miles beyond. There they enjoy the country air, and they improve their little homes with gardens and poultry runs. Cabramatta is a favourite residential suburb for these people. Mr. H. Pritchard, a local agent, reports that those who have purchased blocks in the Cabramatta Park estate, and especially those who are working half time, are making excellent use of their ground in their spare hours. All over the estate may be seen potatoes, corn, beans, and tomatoes. The soil on this estate is particularly suitable for intense culture, and with a splendid season like we are having along the coastal districts everything at Cabramatta is looking particularly bright at present. During the last fortnight quite a number of families who have been put on the half-time pay-sheet have moved to the district, thus getting away from the necessity of paying rent, and at the same time they can spend the three days a week in adding to their income by gardening and keeping poultry.

There is likely to be a large attendance this afternoon at the first subdivision sale of the season held by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench. The estate to be submitted is at Roseville, a popular suburb on the North Shore line. The land is situated close to the railway station, and is divided into first-class building allotments. There has been a good demand for lithos., and as the estate comprises real good building land the sale ought to prove successful.

There is a second sale this afternoon. Mr. D. J. M'Intyre will offer the unsold lots of the Mortlake Township Estate, at Mortlake. This land sold well when it was offered in April of this year, and there are only about 20 lots left to be submitted this afternoon.

Turner's Estate, at Ryde, will form the subject of a sale next Saturday afternoon, to be conducted by Messrs. Richardson and Wrench. This estate is situated on the Ryde tramline, opposite the Ryde Park. A new tramline runs direct to Ryde railway station. The estate is within easy distance of the Parramatta River, and Parramatta River ferry service is at Ryde wharf. Persons thus can travel by tram, train, or ferry. The estate commands one of the best positions in Ryde, with every convenience. It is close to schools, churches, Town Hall, post-office, School of Arts, and shops. Every allotment is a good building site, with good frontages and depth.

On November 7 Messrs. Richardson and Wrench will offer the Open View Estate, at Chatswood. There are elevated and level building sites, with gas and water passing the estate.

On November 14 Messrs. H. W. Horning and Co. will offer the Surf Bathers' Estate, at Curl Curl, which is the next beach to Freshwater.

EXAMINATION HARDSHIPS.

The letter of "Parent" in Thursday's issue about examination hardships was brought before the Minister for Education yesterday. Mr. Carmichael said that the department had already been in communication with the military authorities, and he was pleased to say that it had been arranged to grant leave of absence to the boys called out that day who proposed taking the leaving certificate examination next month. A list of 68 such candidates liable to be called out for military duty had been supplied to the military authorities. "While all boys called out would have to attend at the camp this morning," said Mr. Carmichael, "instructions have been issued to the officers commanding to grant leave of absence to the leaving certificate candidates, in order to allow the boys to return to school to prepare for the examination." It was pointed out by the department that the future of these boys depended upon their success at the leaving certificate examination, since the State University exhibitions are awarded on the result. Under these circumstances, the military authorities met the wishes of the department, with, of course, the distinct understanding that the military obligations of the boys concerned were potsponed, and not cancelled.

GLEBE COUNCIL'S COMPLAINT.

The Mayor and aldermen of the Glebe Council waited on the Attorney-General on Thursday, with a complaint against the smallness of the fine recently imposed by a magistrate upon a defendant, found guilty of creating a nuisance in the street by dumping manure. The fine was £1, costs being imposed.

Mr. Hall replied that it was better that the magistrates should feel themselves unfettered in the administration of justice rather than that they should try to shape their judgments to please a Minister of the Crown. On previous occasions where dissimilar penalties for the same class of offences were being imposed, he had collected the cases and forwarded them to the chairman of the Bench, with a request that magistrates might confer on the question of uniformity. If any series of cases at all similar to what the council represented came before him, he would forward them for a conference of the magistrates, but further than that he did not feel justified in going.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Murray and juries.)

Mr. R. J. Browning, Crown Prosecutor.

A BOY'S DEATH.

Ivy Adeline Mathison, a girl of about 17 years of age, was charged with having, at Marrickville, on September 1, feloniously slain Mervyn Ronald Archbald, a child aged 2 years and 10 months at the time of his death. She was further charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm.

Mr. W. E. Hawkins appeared for accused, who pleaded not guilty.

The deceased child was the son of Herbert Ernest Chapman, stepfather of accused. On September 1 the girl was left in charge of the child, and when Chapman and his wife returned home the boy was ill, and died shortly after.

The medical evidence was to the effect that deceased had extensive bruises on the scalp, and hemorrhage of the brain and liver.

Mr. Hawkins submitted that there was no case to go to the jury. There was nothing in the evidence to connect accused, who was only a child, with the two things which the doctors stated had caused death.

His Honor thought that the jury had better hear more, and accused was called. In her defence she said that she had never been violent to the boy, who was always in mischief. Deceased was fond of climbing about, and frequently had falls.

The jury, without leaving the box, returned a verdict of not guilty, and accused was discharged.

STEALING.

Elizabeth Ruddy pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing in the dwelling of Andrew Denis Foley, at Drummoyne, on October 5, and was sentenced to 12 months in the Long Bay Reformatory.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

A BAD EXPERIENCE MAY BE AVOIDED BY USING only for Walls, Ceiling, and Roof, HARDIE'S GENUINE FIBRO-CEMENT, British Made.

STRIKING TESTIMONIES OF THE QUALITY OF FIBRO-CEMENT:—

FIBRO-CEMENT is adaptable for most building purposes. At present, it is solving the problem of military accommodation at Aldershot, and our cables advise the Home Government has requisitioned large quantities. In Australia, the Federal Government used the sheets for building the Barracks at Duntroon; while the New South Wales Railways have been using Fibro-Cement Slates during the past 12 years under severe conditions on large sheds, etc. The slates can also be seen on the new Conservatorium of Music and tram waiting rooms on Circular Quay.

FURTHER PROOF OF DICK'S BELTS, MADE IN SCOTLAND.
Dear Sir,—In response to your question as to what I think of Dick's Belts, after years of experience with all kinds of belts, including other Balatas, I can safely say there is no other belt yet on the market to equal Dick's Belts for woodworking machines; the high speeds and small pulleys on this class of machinery require the utmost strength, combined with pliability. I find Dick's require so little attention they are practically trouble-proof, and last such a long time; they are the most economical belts I can use, both as regards cost and efficiency. I cannot too strongly recommend anyone giving them a trial on any drive where great grip or speed are desired. Yours faithfully, F. J. FRANKLIN, per A. and R. ELLIS.
Dick's Belts are the most economical where efficiency and durability are taken into consideration. For modern high speeds Dick's Belts remain unrivalled. Beware of the numerous cheap imitations. Any length delivered promptly. 'Phone, 6230 City. J. HARDIE and CO., Sole Importers, C. Quay West. Newcastle Stocks, PAUL and GRAY, Ltd.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

SOCIALISM IN SUGAR.

In its effort to assist the sugar industry the Government of Queensland has dipped pretty deeply into the State Treasury during the past 21 years. In all, including interest capitalised, it laid out £636,000 on central mills, and of this sum £322,000 has been repaid, leaving, with interest overdue and trust account overdrawn, a sum of £342,000 still outstanding. The central mill system was designed to assist small farmers to erect mills and develop their districts in the interests of the sugar industry. Owing to the large sum required to start a modern sugar mill—the cost running to £100,000 or more—no association of farmers could expect to equip themselves without Government help, and the central mill system came into being. With comparatively small concerns like butter and cheese factories, it is possible for the farmers to form companies and allot shares. In the sugar industry in order to get factories, the sugar farmers have to mortgage their farms, and this necessity has given rise to a great deal of the trouble that has occurred in various sugar districts in the northern State, inasmuch as while the original guarantors had to pledge their land, they who stood out have been able to secure the benefits of the mills without the risk attached. On the other hand, it has happened that where suppliers have also been shareholders, the basic price of cane supplied has been put at a low figure, and out of the profits the shareholders have declared handsome dividends. Then, again, where there have been shareholders who did not grow cane, the opposite thing has occurred. There is no doubt that many abuses crept into the system, and in later movements for the establishment of mills efforts have been to obviate these apparent defects.

In all 14 mills were erected under Government auspices, while two more are now under construction. Between the erection of the main section of the mills and the mills now being erected a long period elapsed, the Government being apparently averse to embarking any more capital in the industry unless a better outlook could be provided. Probably the mills would not have been started under what were considered the unsatisfactory conditions existing if it had not been that the Government was pledged beyond withdrawal. The two new mills will be the most modern in the world, and they will be very powerful, crushing between 10,000 and 20,000 tons of sugar per year. Despite the bad seasons at different times, and the unpromising outlook only four mills now remain in the hands of the Government. In these cases, through failure to meet obligations, the State was compelled to step in as mortgagee and manage the concerns. Several of those in which this action had been taken were able to weather the storm, and after paying off certain of the money owing to secure outside capital so as to become independent of Government influence. The idea in view with all the mills was that they should gradually pay off the capital cost and become the property of the men who mortgaged their properties. The succession of good seasons for some years past has completely altered the position regarding the mills, many of which have been gradually wiping off their payments, and in some cases much of the arrears that piled up during the lean years. One lame duck is the Nerang mill, which was built in an unsuitable district, near the border of New South Wales. The mill is small and the supply of cane totally insufficient to meet the requirements. It is gradually going back. The Mount Bauple mill, also in the south, has been deeply involved, its total indebtedness being greater than its original advance to erect the mill. This comes about by interest capitalised, temporary loan, etc. On the other hand, the Moreton (Nambour) mill, only a comparatively few miles away, was able to pay off the Government, and is now a prosperous and well-managed concern.

In the conduct of these Government-aided sugar mills some extraordinary variations are noted in an official report just published—greater variations than might be expected even allowing for difference in climate, location, and the details of management. The success of a central mill depends on various things, but mainly and almost wholly on a large and continuous supply of cane. Sugar mills are like some other industrial concerns in that respect; they are equipped with costly and intricate machinery, and to get the best results the machinery must be worked as near full time as possible. In some of the mills the wheels are kept revolving continuously, and in these the best returns are usually shown. The greater the quantity of cane put through the smaller the proportionate cost of treatment. The efficiency of the machinery will affect the extraction; the greater the amount of sugar contents extracted the better the return. This means that the machinery must be kept to the highest pitch to secure the best results, and that has not always been possible in the central mills, where the amount required to pay the Government redemption has often left insufficient to satisfy the suppliers, and leave a margin for new machinery. The difference in mill cost per ton of cane runs from 3/1 to 7/7. There are marked differences in the quality of the cane available to the different mills. For instance, in some localities the cane is so good that less than eight tons of cane is required to make a ton of sugar, whereas the quality is so poor in other places that over ten tons has to be put through to extract a ton of sugar. Poor extraction may have something to do with the latter cases. The recent season, which was a record in Queensland, had its effect on the mills under Government auspices, all of them, except one, showing a profit on the year's transactions, notwithstanding certain losses due to the abolition of the excise and bounty. The amount of cane crushed was 427,000 tons, producing nearly 48,000 tons of sugar.

Only a few years ago Mr. Kidston, when Premier, absolutely refused to sanction any further expenditure on central mills, on the ground that the State did not seem likely to recover the greater part of the money advanced. The good seasons have greatly improved the position, however, and the new mills, with fair weather conditions, should make much better progress than the old mills, which are handicapped by machinery that is not modern enough to secure the best results. The central mill system, while it has done much for Queensland, is not ideal. The mills have not been able to show such good results as those run by the C.S.R. Company, for reasons which are fairly obvious. The company, for instance, has command of a staff of experts, who are not at the service of the central mills, which are thus unable to secure that high extraction and saving of sugar that is obtained by the company's mills. The mills are fortunate in having available the advice and assistance of Dr. A. J. Gibson, as comptroller of central sugar mills. He is a son of one of the Gibsons of Bingera plantation, where a quarter of a million of money was spent on irrigation plant alone, and he has had the advantage of technical training in factories in Germany and other countries. He has thus been in a sugar atmosphere from birth. It is partly due to his excellent management that such good results have been secured. Given time, no doubt the mills will work out their own salvation; but, like most other sections of the sugar industry, they have been hampered by the uncertainty which has surrounded sugar since the Federation was established, and it became a football at the feet of politicians. Yet the value of the industry to Australia can hardly be overrated. Through it only would seem the means of populating the northern spaces and making them possible of defence, a phase not always realised by the general community.

ORCHARD IMPLEMENTS.

A demonstration will be given this afternoon at Mr. S. Fagan's Pine-avenue Orchard, Dural, of the utility of a new motor spray and outfit, a fertiliser or lime spreader (which is said to throw the fertiliser under both rows of trees simultaneously), and an orchard subsoiler, which should prove interesting to orchardists.

THE WOOL TRADE.

HANDLING THE SITUATION.

The first fair test of the market for wool, with light supplies, since the commencement of the war, was made at the auctions in Sydney on Tuesday and Wednesday last. The situation, as a whole, since the outbreak of war, has been well handled; there can be no doubt of that; and the public sales this week are gratifying evidence of it. There have been odd exceptions taken to the course pursued by the majority of the selling-brokers in the three principal wool producing States of the Commonwealth. Such was probably to be expected; for we never seem to arrive at absolute unanimity. Generally, however, the steps that were taken at the outset of the war to safeguard the wool as it was shorn, and, later, to secure reasonable values for the wool that could be sold, have been widely endorsed. The auctions this week have fully justified the stand that was originally taken, namely, that as the clip could not possibly be marketed, as in normal times, and in the volume that it could be sent to the seaboard in New South Wales, Queensland, and Victoria, as much of the wool as possible should be stored on stations and farms in the country, until such times as a demand set in for a fair proportion of the season's production. There could be no possible necessity to rush 340,000 bales to Sydney by the middle of October in order to sell 20,000 or 30,000; and at the time the advice to store in the country was given it was uncertain as to when any wool could be sold or shipped from Sydney and other Australian ports.

Having the self-evident fact in view that this season's clip could not be catalogued or sold as in ordinary times, and that it would be necessary to regulate supplies, it was obvious that some equitable arrangement would have to be made by which the growers realising in other markets could have their share of offerings when sales could be made. This involved interstate action, without which all would be chaos. The war in its initial stage brought everything to a standstill; and the outlook for wool, considering that the Continent had been purchasing the bulk of the clip, was exceedingly dark. Through the power of the navy and the immense superiority of the British resources over the enemy there speedily emerged from this gloom the possibility to ship wool to the United Kingdom and other countries. A demand for wool set in through army requirements in London; the decision to send an expeditionary force from Australia to the islands, and to support the Empire and Allies in Europe, created a local demand; and altogether it was soon apparent that a proportion of the clip could be sold—especially crossbred—at satisfactory values. As soon as there was some definition the selling brokers decided upon an interstate conference. This was acted upon, and an endeavour made to secure joint action in all Commonwealth selling centres. This could not be effected in its entirety; however, the centres having the largest interests, and taking the broad view of acting for the common good, decided in general terms—(1) that supplies should be regulated; (2) that only one market should be in session at one time; and (3) that sales should be arranged as soon as prospects warranted auctions being held.

As the war progressed, and military requirements absorbed wool in Yorkshire, private sales were effected in London. There was some private inquiry to fill special orders in Sydney. The situation became quite promising for local auctions. It was decided, however, to wait till after the opening of the London series before fixing interstate sale dates and the quantities to be offered. Immediately after London opened the brokers' conference in Melbourne was held. Melbourne, Geelong, Sydney, and Brisbane fell into line; the only selling centre unwilling to act in a federal way, or become a co-operative factor in maintaining the position at this grave juncture in Empire affairs, and at a time when the pastoralists over a large area of the Commonwealth are suffering through drought, was Adelaide. The South Australian centre stood out for reasons of its own, and held minor sales last week. Proceeding, however, apart from any drawback, the Sydney sales were held this week, and, as per agreement, Melbourne and Geelong will offer a limit of 14,500 bales on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday next.

THE SYDNEY AUCTIONS.

The limit of the auctions was 12,000 bales for the series. The actual number catalogued was 12,008, by 13 firms of selling brokers. Having regard to the demand at the present time running almost entirely on certain classes of wool, the offerings were arranged to meet requirements. Ordinarily buyers can be found for all descriptions of the staple; to-day that is not so. Short, burry, and very earthy sorts of fleece, pieces or bellies, are very dull and in poor demand at low rates; while crossbred fleece, broken and first pieces, are in excellent request at improved rates. On the other hand, good combing merinos, broken and first pieces, when free or nearly free, and free locks, are in fair demand, but at weaker values compared to the rates prior to the war and to the corresponding period last year. The market on Tuesday and Wednesday reflected the great strength of the position of crossbreds, being 5 to 10 per cent. higher, those suitable for military clothing showing the greatest appreciation. Well-grown merinos of sound staple, and in good condition, were 5 to 10 per cent. below last year's opening rates; medium grades were about 10 per cent., and short, faulty, burry, wasty lines 15 to 20 per cent. lower. The proportion of scoured catalogued was very small, and the demand dull, at about 15 per cent. below last season's opening rates. Yorkshire secured the bulk of the purchases; Japan was active for suitable wools, and the local mills were a decided factor in the market. Some Continental representatives were in the saleroom, but almost entirely as onlookers. What lots were taken for America was not easy to ascertain.

Rates current for the principal of the staple in the grease may be given as follows:—

OFFERINGS AND SALES.

Great interest was manifested in the proceedings on the opening day, the saleroom being crowded by the trade and by growers in town having wool in the catalogues. Six catalogues were submitted, aggregating 5541 bales, of which 4471 were quitted at auction. Greasy crossbred sold to /13, merino and comeback to /12½. On Wednesday seven catalogues aggregated 6454 bales, and the sales at auction 5641. The market conditions of the opening day were maintained. Greasy crossbred sold to /13½, merino to /12¾, and lambs to /11¾. In scoured, the top line of a locally-treated parcel sold to /18¾. With the exception of two or three parcels from Queensland, the offerings were from this State, and mainly drawn from the west and north-west, with a sprinkling from Riverina. The wools generally are reflecting the droughty conditions over a large area of the State. Those from the north-western districts are in the best order, being of good colour and condition, staple well grown and in healthy condition. The Liverpool Plains wool is of fair length, fine in quality, dry, and in dusty condition. Western districts clips are also fair to good length, finer in quality than last season, in dry condition, with a dusty tip. The few Riverina clips so far seen show fair length, lean staple, in dry condition, are finer in quality than last year, and show a dusty tip.

The quantity of wool catalogued and sold by auction and privately by the various firms is as follows:—

VICTORIAN SALES NEXT WEEK.

At the auctions of about 14,500 bales in Melbourne on Monday and Tuesday, and in Geelong on Wednesday next, the offerings will comprise a large proportion of crossbred, with a fair representation of merino. With regard to regulating supplies and the question of storage in Victoria, the "Age" of Wednesday last says:—"Any move to upset the scheme almost universally agreed upon to limit the supplies cannot but be prejudicial to the interests of the producers. As it will not be possible to sell the available supplies excepting by greatly extending the selling season, the Melbourne and Geelong wool brokers have decided to rescind the original arrangement as regards storage charges upon wool. At the outbreak of war it was feared that it would not be possible to conduct wool sales for an indefinite period, and that the accommodation for wool at seaboard centres would be overtaxed. It was considered advisable to encourage the storing of at least a portion of the clip in the interior, and to impose a small charge for storage at the seaboard centres. Two months' free storage was to be allowed, after which 1½d per bale per week was to be charged. It has now been decided to abolish the storage charge altogether in Victoria, though some charge is being made in Sydney and other centres."

CLOSER SETTLEMENT FARMS.

The Lands Department has, on behalf of the Savings Bank Commissioners, gazetted eight closer settlement farms, for application by way of tender.

These farms were originally taken up under the Promotion Act, and the successful tenderers will be responsible to the Commissioners of the Government Savings Bank for the amount of purchase money, which ranges from £1412 17s 8d to £2673 9s 6d.

Most of the farms are suitable for the cultivation of wheat, and are situated in good districts, Grenfell, Wagga Wagga, Narrandera, Young, and Goulburn.

Tenders will close at the Lands Department on November 13, 1914. Full particulars can be obtained from the Information Bureau, Lands Department.

DAIRYING.

ULMARRA.—The Clarence River Pioneer Dairy Company last month manufactured 79½ tons of butter, representing an increase of 17 tons over the corresponding period of last year. Suppliers were paid 10½d per lb net for first-class butter, and 9½d for second-class. During the same period the bacon department treated 758 pigs, the average price paid being 4d per lb. The total pay for butter and pork was £10,500. The season has been a magnificent one from a dairyman's standpoint, copious rains falling frequently during the last three months. Indications point to the output of butter this season being an easy record.

TAX ON MOTOR CARS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Regarding the matter of proposed taxation on motor vehicles, we beg to point out that the proposed tax based on engine bore is most unfair to motorists generally, owing to the fact that this form of taxation was first introduced into Germany and other Continental countries. As a result, these manufacturers made large-powered cars with extremely small bore engines, but capable of high speeds, and under this proposed tax schedule cars selling as high as £900, and which are largely used by the wealthy class of motorists, will actually pay a smaller tax than cheap cars selling at £200 and under.

It is well known to the Police Department of Victoria that their tax schedule is unfair, and we believe they contemplate changing it at an early date.

The only fair method of taxation is to tax cars on factory selling price—thus:—

Cars selling under £100 complete	2	0	0
Cars selling under £200 complete	3	0	0
Cars selling under £300 complete	4	0	0
Cars selling under £400 complete	5	0	0
Cars selling under £600 complete	7	0	0
Cars selling over £700 complete	8	0	0
Motor lorries, 1 ton and under	4	0	0
Motor lorries, 2 tons and under	5	0	0
Motor lorries, 3 tons and under	6	0	0
Motor lorries, 4 tons and under	7	0	0
Motor lorries, 5 tons and under	8	0	0
Motor tractors (petrol)	[illegible]	0	0
Motor cycles	1	0	0
Motor cycles, with side cars	1	10	0

This method of taxation is a fairer basis and would give the department a larger revenue.

£20,000 will more than cover the cost of a complete installation capable of crushing, concentrating, separating, and otherwise dressing some hundreds of tons a month of molybdenite, bismuth, wolfram, and other such ores.

A works' site has been selected within 3 miles of the G.P.O., having railway accommodation and water frontage. If an early start be made, by working two shifts, the plant can be running in January.

Figures based on the same treatment charges made in England and America warrant the anticipation that this enterprise will be a commercial success, as well as a boon to Australian mining for molybdenite and other minerals and metals.

While the proposed works are primarily for the production of molybdenite concentrates, the installation will be so comprehensive as to enable almost any ore to be treated, and thereby turned into a marketable product. It will be the means of keeping hundreds of miners at work, and giving work to hundreds now idle.

To-day £6 to £7 a unit can be obtained for 90 per cent. molybdenite concentrates in London, and advances up to £5 per unit against shipments are being made in Sydney. There is no market in Australia for molybdenite ore or any such ores, and no prospect of a market. This anomalous disability demands the immediate attention and co-operation of mine-owners and all interested in mines in New South Wales.

Sydney Morning Herald, 14th April, 1914.—"What is wanted above all things to supply the world's demand for molybdenite is the establishment of public concentration works (in Sydney), the entire absence of which is keeping production back to-day."

NATIONAL CHARACTER.

The German Government has done the British Empire one good service by destroying or checking the growth of a somewhat widespread misconception of the British character. It has become a frequent complaint of sincere, but superficial, observers that the Englishman lacks enthusiasm, that he fails to appreciate the good in anything or any person out of England, and that he has few of the outward and visible signs which mark the ideal sportsman. Such an impression was bound to grow deeper and to become more confirmed as time went on and generations grew up who were less acquainted than their fathers with the sources of English life. It began through differences in forms which are regarded as essential in one country and not in another, and through the absence of observance which one country considers necessary for the expression of feelings whilst another takes for granted. Englishmen certainly had no reason to complain of a misconception which they had done so much to cause, and which they cared so little to dispel. They, however, may be glad that the war has revealed the real strength of a character of which many of the features were concealed from their own countrymen as well as from their fellow-subjects in the oversea dominions. The response of the British people to the appeal to arms has been scarcely less remarkable than the heroism of the troops whose actions were recorded in the last despatch of Sir John French. There has been the same outward show of indifference on the battlefield as in England itself. The British gunners quarrelled about the merits of their favourite pugilists while dodging the enemy's shells and astonished their allies, just as the Englishman or Scotsman went on with his work or his sport to the astonishment of his friends at home. But in each case there was no want of courage, and in each case the spirit was the same. The valour of the nation has sprung to meet each new call with a readiness which has bewildered the firmest believer in the strength of the British character. A people by nature averse from military service would have left a war of conquest or of easy victories to professional soldiers. This war, if it had begun with a German defeat, might have left them unmoved. Since it became known that the German armies were pressing forward with unparalleled swiftness, and that British soldiers were enduring the bitterest hardships, the recruiting officers became overwhelmed with applicants, and the two great Universities became so deserted that the authorities found a difficulty in deciding whether they should not close their doors until the war was over. A story which is typical of the British response is told by Lady Lugard in a recent issue of the "Times." She pointed out to her taxi-driver a placard in which were printed the words "2000 casualties." "Yes," said the driver, "that looks pretty bad. It makes a man want to go and fight, too. I'm going to enlist to-morrow." No doubt the spirit of the people in either France, Germany, or Russia is no less courageous. M. Herve, the French Socialist leader, indeed, has expressed his opinion that the patriotism of Frenchmen in this war is greater than it was even in the war of national defence in 1792-3. We know, too, with what invincible bravery the German legions rushed to certain death in their first engagements.

But there are two facts which make the British response especially remarkable. Their own homes are not immediately attacked, and they themselves are offering their lives in obedience to their own reason or their own instincts. Strategically, conscript armies have an enormous advantage, because they enable their masters to strike the first blow. But the advantage is one which gradually disappears, while the volunteer army increases in effectiveness as initiative and intelligence become more and more important. A people who admit that the character of Englishmen may be misconceived can hardy be dogmatic about the character of a people who speak another language, and live under different institutions from their own. But, already in this war we have authentic instances of the difference between the respective attitudes of German and English men towards their Government and their commanders. The paradox presented by the change from a kindly-hearted and cheerful race of men to the soldiers who have spread ruin and devastation in Belgium is to some extent explained by remembering the nature of the Prussian oligarchy and the docility of its subjects. In China the German contingents were ordered "to strike into their enemies the terror of the German name." In Belgium the same reliance has been placed on the power of terrorism exercised on non-combatants to overcome the resistance of an army in the field. But from letters that have been found we know with how much difficulty the habit of obedience has overcome the common instincts of humanity in the German soldier. In many instances in this war barbarism has only been another instance of the coercive power of discipline. From another and a widely different source we get an equally convincing proof of the difference between the British and German peoples in their relations to their rulers. The British Government in the White Book laid before the electors all the documents that had been exchanged between the European Powers during their negotiations and left them to speak for themselves. The German Government in its White Book has set out some of the original authorities, but accompanied them by memoranda stating the correct interpretation to be put upon them. It would obviously be absurd to describe a nation which has been so successful as the Germans in science and in commerce as a nation of marionettes. More justly their docility may be ascribed to a willingness to leave certain most vital decisions to a public authority, just as a member of the Roman Catholic Church may leave certain other matters to his spiritual superiors. Such a view of life was taken by the most influential and the most independent of German philosophers a century ago, and has been taken since by the philosophers who have taught under the patronage of the State. If it is true, it does not make the war less necessary or less worth carrying on to the bitter end. A nation which can become so obedient to such rulers as the Prussian oligarchy may, because of its virtues, become a more dangerous instrument than the most barbarous of savage tribes. But this view does hold out better prospects of reconciliation when the war has reached its destined end. It proves that the object of the war must be the destruction of the Imperial system, with all its potentialities for evil. If that directing, inspiring and contaminating force were removed we might live on as good terms with the German peoples as with the Latins or the Slavs.

"WHO GOES THERE?"

A few days ago it was stated in the cables that there were half a million German and Austro-Hungarian reservists in America who were unable to leave the country for the seat of war. Thousands of them, we have no doubt, will endeavour by devious means, to get away—as, for instance, by calling themselves Roumanians. But it is one thing to leave a neutral country for the fighting line and it is another thing to get there. The Allies hold the seas. Great as has been the bravery of our troops on land, and magnificent the victories they have won, greatest of all is the victory on the seas, the silent, powerful pressure of the allied fleets. By virtue of it, our commerce overseas goes on without any serious interruption, and we are able to transport hundreds of thousands of troops from Britain and the British and French colonies to the theatre of war; by virtue of it German trade and commerce are dead, and it is impossible for Germany to add to her fighting forces by drawing on her oversea reserves—the naval supremacy of the Allies has made them prisoners. It is not enough that we shall wear down the forces pitted against us on the actual field of battle; it is for us also to prevent, as far as possible, the reinforcement of those constantly diminishing forces. For this and for other reasons the authorities in England are rounding up all alien enemies of military age. Hundreds between the ages of 17 and 50 have been arrested, including many well-known men. It may be that an injustice is being done to some of them, and the indignation of Professor Arthur Schuster, the secretary of the Royal Society, over the seizure of his small wireless plant and the construction put upon it, may be justified, but the issues at stake are too great to allow of any risks being taken. So tremendous, indeed, are these issues that it is to be doubted whether we in Australia even yet properly appreciate the full significance of them. But it is noticeable that in Great Britain the precautionary measures that are being taken are daily becoming more rigorous—and especially since the French Government declared itself unable to share Mr. McKenna's view that there was no cause for alarm. There has been a growing newspaper agitation against the leniency of the Allies: and the British public generally, excited, no doubt, by the discovery of so many dangerous spies, and the extraordinarily strong concrete foundations of certain German factories in both England and France, indicating that the German War Office had a hand in them, are forcing the authorities into more vigorous action. Nor can it be doubted that the spoliation of innocent Belgium, with all the hideous stories of German brutality and savagery—the outrages on women and children, the defilement of churches, the wanton destruction of art treasures that can never be replaced, such as the [illegible] Reims—have aggravated not [illegible] British people, but the whole [illegible] world, beyond endurance. If, [illegible] words of the German Chancellor, [illegible] mann Hollweg, "parchment is [illegible] ment, steel is the only force," then [illegible] steel must the steel be met.

Here in Australia, far removed from the centre of the great conflict, but nevertheless vitally concerned in it, we have many German citizens and settlers, and we have endeavoured, and shall still endeavour, to meet them on such friendly terms as the circumstances of the case will permit. But even in this country—we see it in Sydney, and we see it in Melbourne—there is a growing feeling of antagonism towards those whose country is at war with us. When the "Kreuz Zeitung" thanks God that Germany is at last at war with England and boasts that Germany will one day show the world that England is "not unconquerable," when the whole German people, crying out that might alone is right, considers nothing a crime when done in the name of the Fatherland, it is difficult for us to remain calm. And yet there are some among the Germans who have not lost their sense of justice and their sense of honour. Of such are those members of the German Humanity League, who, at Rotterdam recently, issued an appeal to the German people to "arrest the Kaiser" and put an end to a war as unjustifiable as it is bloody. These men did not hesitate to charge their Emperor with a crime unparalleled in the world's history, and with having disgraced Germany in the eyes of the civilised world. We believe that the bulk of the Germans in Australia deplore this war. We know that many German communities here have passed resolutions of loyalty to our sovereign, and have declared their readiness to defend Australia against any foe. To them we hold out the hand of friendship. But are they all honest, the Germans in our midst? If spies in England, in India, in Canada, why not spies in Australia? We have heard of the German "fixed post" system—are there any "fixed posts" in this country? Perhaps we shall never know, unless the tide of war should turn against us—and then possibly we might have a rude awakening. But whilst we urge discrimination, we cannot blind our eyes to the fact that our first duty is to our own country and our own King. Unnaturalised German reservists must be rounded up here, as in England. Any man who is foolish enough to flaunt the enemy's flag in our midst must be taken care of. To play enemy tunes in our public places is an insult. Imagine an English band playing our own National Anthem or the "Marseillaise" in front of an English club in Berlin! But such a thing would be impossible, because you would find neither English club nor English band in Berlin. German methods, however, are not British methods—we do not close the German clubs in Sydney. In the nature of the case, German traders here and all naturalised Germans must necessarily suffer in some degree, but the measure of their suffering will depend largely on themselves, on their answer to the challenge—"Who goes there? Friend or Foe?"

STATE SESSION.

NO CHRISTMAS RECESS.

The Chief Secretary, Mr. Cann, who will conduct the business of Parliament next week while the Premier is recuperating in the country, stated yesterday that he thinks there will be no Christmas vacation for members.

Mr. Cann remarked that the discussion of the Budget, which will be continued on Wednesday, must proceed, as the finances have to be put in order. This financial business must be done irrespective of what party happens to occupy the Treasury benches. The Chief Secretary desired to say that the question of bringing the present session speedily to a close had not been considered either by the Cabinet or the caucus. The feeling of members was, on the contrary, more in favour of extending the session until such time as the war situation permitted the Government programme to be carried out.

LIVING TESTIMONY

OF GERMAN BRUTALITY.

CHILDREN'S HANDS CUT OFF.

Writing from Stroud (England), under date September 3, to his stepfather, Dr. [illegible], Mudgee, Mr. Playfair Robertson, a medical student of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, says:—

"Fifty Belgian refugees arrived here yesterday, and are being distributed in the district. Some more are coming to-night. Poor devils! They look absolutely played out. Everyone is giving them something. A man I know asked two little kiddies to hold out their hands as he was going to put pennies in them, but then he saw that the Germans had struck off their hands at the wrists. There is now not the slightest doubt that the Germans are running a systematic campaign to strike terror into the people, but it has been a complete failure.

"The Allies have now started to move, and the general opinion is that the Germans are about to be pushed back. Kitchener went over to France and Belgium for a few hours last week, just before this offensive move was started. There is something bewildering. The whole country is so full of recruits now that the authorities do not know where to put them for the present."

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Miss Strickland, and attended by Captain d'Apice, A.D.C., presided at the annual general meeting of the New South Wales Institution of the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind, City-road, Darlington, yesterday afternoon.

The Premier, Mr. Holman, intends spending next week in the country.

Judge Gibson, who met with an accident while motoring at Narromine on October [illegible], is still very ill.

Mr. H. M. Webb, who has been acting secretary to the Board of Fire Commissioners for the past nine months, has been appointed secretary in place of the late Mr. Z. C. Barry. Mr. Webb has been connected with the board in various positions for the past [illegible] years. The board at its meeting passed a resolution expressing its deep sense of the loss sustained by the death of Mr. Z. C. Barry, and placed on record its high appreciation of his services extending over a period of 24 years.

The passengers by the Ventura, which leaves for San Francisco to-day, include Mr. [illegible], secretary to the Australian Commission to the Panama Exposition, and Professor [illegible] Cora, Professor of Geography at the University of Rome.

Dr. Holmes, Chief Medical Officer of the Northern Territory, arrived by the [illegible] yesterday on furlough.

Mrs. Gilruth, wife of the Administrator of the Northern Territory, was a passenger by the Montoro from Darwin yesterday.

The Rev. James and Mrs. Colwell and family have reached Albany, en route for Sydney.

Among the passengers by the R.M.S. [illegible], which arrived yesterday, were Mr. [illegible], of the Fiji Government, and M. Henry, a French wool-buyer, who has come to attend the current sales.

Bro. T. D. Bartholomew, one of the oldest members of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, died yesterday at his late residence, Frogmore-street, Mascot. Bro. Bartholomew [illegible] was a Past Grand Lodge representative [illegible] for several years was a member of the Lodge Finance Committee.

SUCCESS.

ON BOTH FRONTS.

GERMANS DRIVEN BACK.

HEAVY FIGHTING.

RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

The German right is being forced back in Belgium, and one French officer declares that the retreat threatens to become a rout.

Desperate attacks on the Allies' positions have been repulsed, and military critics consider them to indicate a state of powerless exasperation on the part of the enemy.

The Germans have been hurled back on Ostend with heavy losses.

On the eastern front the Russians are meeting with success, and the enemy is in precipitate retreat from Warsaw.

Heavy fighting is going on in Galicia, where the Russians captured over 2000 of the Austro-German forces.

The British submarine E3, which the Germans earlier in the week stated they had sunk, is officially reported missing.

WAR BULLETINS.

FROM SIR GEORGE REID.

LONDON, Oct. 22, noon.

Official: The Government has issued a notification in the following terms to representatives of foreign maritime Powers.

"Since the outbreak of war certain ships of enemy countries have remained in the Suez Canal. Some vessels have been detained by the Egyptian Government on account of hostile acts committed in the Canal, some because there was reason to apprehend that they only contemplated hostile acts; others, though perfectly free, refused to leave the Canal in spite of the offer of a free pass, thus disclosing their intention to use the ports and the canal merely as ports of refuge.

"The British Government do not admit that conventional rights of free access to and use of the canal enjoyed by merchant vessels implies the right to make use of the canal or its ports of access for an indefinite time to escape capture. Since the obvious result of permitting such a course must incommode and block the use of the ports and the canal by other ships, they are consequently of opinion that the Egyptian Government is fully justified in the steps taken by them to remove from the canal all enemy ships who have been long enough in the canal ports to show clearly they have no intention of departing in the ordinary way."

The German army advances upon Warsaw were forced into a precipitate retreat on Wednesday. The Russians are in pursuit, and the enemy is abandoning positions which he had organised for defence.

The Austrian forces in the south are falling back.

On October 18 requests for naval assistance were made to the Admiralty by the Allied commanders. In consequence a naval flotilla, mounting a large number of powerful long range guns, came into action at daybreak of October 19, off the Belgian coast, supporting the left of the Belgian army, and firing against the right of the German attack, which they were by virtue of their position able to enfilade. The Germans replied by shells from their heavy guns, but owing to the superior range of the British marine artillery, practically no damage was done. A heavy bombardment of the German flank has been maintained without intermission since the morning of the 19th. It was continued to-day, October 22.

Observation is arranged from the shore by means of naval balloons. All reports indicate that substantial losses have been inflicted upon the enemy. The fire is well-directed and effective against his batteries of heavy guns. Yesterday a considerable explosion occurred. It was probably of an ammunition waggon, and it followed upon a naval shot. The naval losses, so far, are very small, considering the damage done and the important assistance rendered the Belgian left flank.

Reports received by the Admiralty show the courage with which the Belgian army animated by the King in person, is defending the last few miles of Belgian soil.

Submarine E3 is considerably overdue. It is feared it has been sunk in the North Sea, and it is presumed it occurred on the 18th.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Official.—The enemy continues desperately to attack the Allies left wing, especially near Warneton (seven miles south-south-east of Ypres), Dixmude (13 miles north of Ypres), Radinchem, Armentieres, and La Bassee (22 miles south-south-west of Ypres). The Allies still hold the positions. Only isolated attacks were made in other parts. All were repulsed. These include Cricourt, east of Albert, on the plateau west of Craonne, in the Veuvain region, in the Argonne, south-west of Varennes, in the region of Mannoncourt, and in the Forest of Ailly, south-west of Saint Mihiel.

Reliance.—The first phase of the battle on the Vistula ended in the complete defeat of the Austro-Germans, who retreated 18 miles west, where the conflict was renewed. Rain has made Poland a morass. The enemy is abandoning artillery.

Wholesale arrests of Germans and Austrians resident in the United Kingdom are being made.

GERMAN RIGHT.

HEAVY CASUALTIES.

ENEMY FORCED BACK.

DUNKIRK, Oct. 23.

A French officer declares that the retreat of the German right threatens to become a rout, the enemy being thrown into panic by the futility of their violent efforts.

Seventeen hundred German dead have been buried near Nieuport. The total German casualties in the district number 10,000. Many of the killed and wounded are raw, almost untrained, recruits.

Thirty thousand Germans who were strongly entrenched between Ostend and Nieuport were hurled back on Ostend, abandoning many guns and rifles.

It is reported that the British fleet's bombardment of the German lines destroyed a convoy eight miles long.

OFFICIAL NEWS.

VIOLENT ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, Oct. 23.

A communique issued last midnight states:—The enemy's activity to-day continued with undiminished violence between La Bassee and the sea, but the Germans were unable to force back the Belgians or the Franco-British forces.

Similarly between Arras and the Oise the enemy's great efforts were nowhere successful.

We have progressed in the Argonne, between Saint Hubert and Four-de-pais.

We have gained ground at Haumont and Brabant, on the right bank of the Meuse, to the northward of Verdun, and in the Woevre we have repulsed an attack on Champion.

A previous communique stated:—The Allies have repulsed considerable German forces in violent attacks in the neighbourhood of Dixmude (13 miles north of Ypres), Warenton (seven miles south-south-east of Ypres), Armentieres (on the Franco-Belgian border, nine miles west-north-west of Lille), Radinghem, and La Bassee (about 20 miles south-west by south of Lille).

We have progressed slightly in the Argonne and Southern Woevre.

A communique issued at midnight on Wednesday stated:—A violent battle was fought throughout the day on the left wing from the North Sea to La Bassee, the Allies holding their positions everywhere.

The situation elsewhere is unchanged.

HAVRE, Oct. 23.

It is officially announced that the Belgian outposts have reached the right bank of the Yser.

RUMOURED SEVERE DEFEAT.

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 23.

The German General Staff has quitted Ghent, and there are strong rumours of a severe German defeat.

It is stated that the Allies have driven the Germans into an entanglement of dykes, where the German cavalry were unable to manœuvre, and the big guns were bogged.

It is also reported that the German line was cut south of Ostend.

All the public buildings at Ostend are full of wounded.

The Germans are entrenching at Zeebrugge.

POWERLESS EXASPERATION.

BORDEAUX, Oct. 23.

The consensus of British and French military opinion regarding the repeated violent German attacks along the whole front is that the German command daily shows greater signs of powerless exasperation.

DESPERATE STRUGGLE.

ALLIES STRENGTHENED.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 23.

The bombardment between Ostend and Nieuport is growing stronger. The Allies' shells dropping among the enemy's guns inflicted terrible losses, and the battlefields are strewn with dead.

Nevertheless, fresh German troops continue to arrive, but since morning the Germans have been slightly driven back from Middelkerke (six miles west-south-west of Ostend).

The Allies' positions have been strengthened by entrenchments and inundations, and a French squadron is now supporting the British fleet, which has been shelling the enemy from the sea.

NEW GERMAN GUNS.

The "Telegraaf" states that the Germans brought new guns from Ostend to Zeebrugge to shell the warships, but the Allies persistently repulsed the German attempts to cross the Yser dykes, which were cut and the banks flooded.

Ten thousand marines with machine-guns left Antwerp. It is rumoured that their destination is Namur.

GERMANS LEAVING LILLE.

BOULOGNE, Oct. 23.

The Germans reoccupied Lille on Tuesday, and commenced withdrawing under General von Kluck on Wednesday.

LUNATICS TURNED LOOSE.

PITIFUL SUFFERINGS.

PARIS, Oct. 22.

After sacking Bailleul, the Germans turned loose hundreds of lunatics from the great asylum. These unfortunates wandered about the country for days, suffering terribly from cold and hunger. A number of them died, and French troops found their bodies in ditches.

Many lunatics are still at liberty.

OFFICER'S LETTER.

REMARKABLE ADMISSIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 23.

A letter from a German officer participating in the fierce fighting in the region of Roye and Noyon says:—"Any successes that the Germans scored were neutralised by terrible losses.

"Our men fight bravely, but the enemy are becoming more and more audacious and warlike. The Turcos and Zouaves are hardy fighters and deadly marksmen. The French inflict alarming losses, and our 18th Army Corps especially has been badly cut up.

"We had a victory at Remicourt, but it was a victory to deplore, as it was a veritable slaughter. The victims were young Schleswig-Holsteiners, of whom few now remain.

"We had to dig up the soil of a whole forest to bury our dead. The voice of conscience is choked, and the finer sentiments of humanity suppressed; and when we come across a house you may rely that nothing remains inside.

"We thought our trenches were impregnable, but we were forced to retreat by the Moroccan troops. These troops are a terror to our men, for no sooner had they taken shelter in a wood than there was a hail of bullets from the branches of the trees, where the Moroccans had climbed.

"Our fine 17th division has neither ammunition or food. Our leaders seem quite incompetent, and many of our men are dying of fatigue, while the ill-fed horses drop appallingly."

NEW FRENCH TROOPS.

BORDEAUX, Oct. 23.

This year's recruits, after two months' training, are now ready to go to the front. They will be joined by a section of the reserve that has not yet been called to the colours.

The new force represents 500,000 fresh troops.

PRESENCE OF MIND.

BRITISH AT ANTWERP.

LONDON, Oct. 23.

Among the men of the British Naval Brigade interned at Groningen (Holland) are twelve who were unaware of the British retreat. They held an Antwerp redoubt between the forts.

The sub-lieutenant sent three men to milk cows in the vicinity, and immediately afterwards he was astonished to see Prussian helmets in one of the forts, and four heavy columns of German infantry nearing the trench. He ordered his men to be silent until the Germans marched by.

Meanwhile the milking proceeded, and the milkers returned to the trenches. They subsequently pierced the German lines unobserved, and walked till they reached Holland.

RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

BATTLE IN POLAND.

ENEMY ROUTED.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 22.

The Russians are taking the offensive vigorously along the whole front.

The enemy continues to resist south of the Pilica. The Russians have occupied a secure position on the left bank of the Vistula.

SIBERIANS' COURAGE.

TERRIBLE FIGHTING.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 22.

An official report pays a tribute to the courage of the Siberians, who detrained at a suburb of Warsaw, and immediately engaged in a great battle, inflicting terrible losses on the enemy at the point of the bayonet, and capturing many prisoners.

The report adds that the Caucasians showed extraordinary courage near Kozienice (65 miles north-west of Sandomierz). They fought for eight days in a deep bog on the left bank of the Vistula. The Caucasians, who were exposed to heavy artillery fire, repulsed all attacks, though the Germans had every advantage in position.

Despite heavy losses, the Caucasians did not yield a single yard, and frequently saved the most desperate situations.

Referring to the great battle south of Przemysl, the report says that the Austrians are fighting in confusion, and have suffered enormous losses.

PRECIPITATE RETREAT.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 23.

It is officially announced that the Germans' precipitate retreat from the neighbourhood of Warsaw continues, and also that of the Austro-German armies on the Ivanogorod and Novo-Alexandrovsk roads.

Hard fighting is proceeding in Galicia. The Russians, advancing between Przemysl and the Vistula, captured thirty officers, 2000 men, and many maxims.

Captured merchantmen report that the Emden is using the White Ensign to avert suspicion until she gets within easy gunfire.

THE CAPTAIN.

FREMANTLE, Friday.

According to passengers by the Medina, the people of India hold the captain of the Emden in very high regard, although they would like to hear of his capture.

His recent exploits have excited the admiration of all British residents, notwithstanding the fact that he has caused more damage to British commerce on the seas than all the rest of the German fleet. He has always acted in accordance with the rules of warfare, and has treated officers and crews of captured vessels with courtesy and consideration.

He won his commission in the South African war, and has since served in several parts of Africa and India. The Finance Bill was passed in all its stages.

The President of the Diet, in his speech, said that scarcely a family in Germany was not in mourning. They would still have to make immeasurable sacrifices.

WAR NOTES.

THE WALL OF STEEL.

The Germans are still vainly endeavouring to break through the great Allied line, and it would seem to be quite true that the repeated violent attacks daily along the whole front show greater signs of "powerless exasperation." Even if the Allies did not gain an inch of ground while these violent assaults were being hurled against them, the sum total of each day's work represents an incalculable advantage to them. Repulse after repulse such as the Germans have been suffering must affect the moral of even the best troops, and by this time these vain efforts must have played sad havoc in the minds of the German general staff, whose whole training has unfitted them for a calm acceptance of such a state of affairs. Ever since the battle of the Marne the Germans have been robbed of the initiative, a vital consideration on the battlefield, and they have been reduced to battering themselves with impotent fury against a solid, unbreakable wall of steel. And all the time they can feel that the Allies' great plan is being steadily, inexorably advanced. The utmost that has been achieved by the Germans for weeks now is to merely delay the Allies at certain points—they have bent the line only, the shattering of it being an impossible task. And any little success gained in this way has been in the nature of a Pyrrhic victory. As the captured officer states in this morning's cables, each little win has been entirely neutralised by the terrible losses they have sustained. "We gained a victory at Remicourt," he says, "but it was a victory to deplore." Hitherto the press correspondents have been all too ready to assume that the Germans are losing heart. The manner in which they have fought ridicules that; but the experience of the last couple of weeks is certainly more than enough to damp the spirits of the best troops in the world.

THE OTHER SIDE.

On the other hand, the spirits of the Allied troops are mounting steadily higher. They have proved to themselves that a German attack is not irresistible, that German troops can be sent to the rightabout. They can cast back to the Marne and smile grimly at the events that have happened since the great German advance was stemmed. They can look behind them and count village after village from which they have driven the enemy in the past fortnight, and they know that as they hold the German in check here and push him back there the great plan of their commander is surely working out. And these things add much to the fighting value of any troops. "They are growing more and more audacious," says the German officer. And when the French troops grow "more and more audacious" they become a force to be reckoned with indeed, for no soldiers in the world can compare with them when they drink of that vivifying elixir of Success-in-view. And on top of this comes the news that there are about half a million fresh troops almost ready to take the field. They are not seasoned soldiers, but they come to take their place alongside comrades who have the confidence of success, and not men who have battered themselves vainly against a great grim line of steel for weeks on end. This is a consideration that sheds a light on any reinforcements now coming into the field for and against us. And it is a consideration which, together with the continued satisfactory news from the front, should make us look out upon the future with cheery confidence.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

In view of the position that has arisen through a number of enemy steamers refusing to leave the Suez Canal, it is of interest to recall the provisions of the convention which was signed by the Great Powers in 1885, declaring the neutralisation of the canal. That agreement sets out that:—

1. The canal is open to the vessels of all countries at all times, whether in peace or war, and is never to be blockaded.

2. No permanent fortifications are to be erected in the canal.

3. No acts of hostility are to take place within the limits of the canal, or in the ports at either entrance, or within three miles from them.

4. War vessels owned by a belligerent shall not be at liberty whilst using the canal to embark or disembark troops or to revictual or take in stores, or to stay in the canal or its ports for more than 24 hours, save in case of necessity: and the same provision is to apply to prizes.

5. In case vessels belonging to different belligerents are found in the canal or ports of access at the same time, then 24 hours must elapse between the departure of any one vessel belonging to one belligerent and that of any vessel belonging to the other.

6. No men-o'-war shall be stationed inside the canal, though each Power not being a belligerent may station two men-o'-war at Port Said and Suez.

The Egyptian Government is charged with the duty of taking the steps necessary to carry out these provisions with an appeal to Turkey, and through Turkey to the Signatory Powers.

"MILITARY NECESSITY."

The canal passes through Egyptian territory, and Egypt is under the nominal autocracy of the Sultan of Turkey, the legal autocracy of the Khedive, and the actual autocracy of the British representative. Thus anything done by the Egyptian Government will, in the natural order of things, be done in the interests of Britain rather than of Britain's enemies, who are, in the present instance, Turkey's very good friends. The steps now being taken to clear out those enemy ships which have shown no inclination to depart in the ordinary way are not, however, dictated by a desire to see them fall into British hands. There is certainly every commercial reason why the traffic of the canal and its ports should not be thrown out of gear by vessels using them as a mere port of refuge; but the vital reason why they are to be moved on is the potential danger they represent from a naval point of view. A single ship sunk in the canal could effectively close that great international waterway for months, and throw certain British naval calculations completely out of gear. Germany has put her signature to a Convention by which she undertakes to commit no act of hostility in the canal—but the trouble is that that Convention is "a mere scrap of paper," and Germany's views on scraps of paper have been proclaimed with cynical boldness to all the world. Already, we are told the Egyptian Government has detained several vessels on account of hostile acts in the canal—and we have absolutely nothing to assure us that a big German steamer, for instance, will not be sunk in the canal at a critical moment. Whatever the strict legal position of the vessels now in the canal, they represent a sinister menace to Britain in the light of the German doctrine that the law of "military necessity" over-rides all considerations of honour and good faith. If we were dealing with an enemy whose signature counted for anything there would not have been a moment's discussion on the matter. As it is, the world can in no way blame Britain for thanking Germany for the blessed words, "military necessity"—and bundling her ships out of the canal.

AIR-WORK AT THE FRONT.

General French, in his despatches, has spoken in terms of unstinted praise of the work of the British airmen at the front, and General Joffre has also specially thanked the Royal Army Corps. In view of this, we may take it that the work of the British airmen has been quite exceptionally good, and the gratifying fact recalls Colonel Seely's statement of some months back in which he declared that though we were not the foremost Power in regard to air craft, the British army machines were at least equal to the best, and, although the public knew nothing about it, our pilots were daily doing work that proved them to have no superiors in the world. We have been given singularly scant news of the aeroplane work at the front—and it is quite conceivable that the least said about what is being accomplished the better—but we may certainly look forward to some thrilling chapters under this head when the true history of the war comes to be written. In the meantime Sydney has one especial interest in the air work, in that Captain Oswald Watt, of this city, has distinguished himself in the French service. When the war broke out he was in France, and, being unable to get back to England, he joined the French "Aeronautique Militaire," and was appointed to a Bleriot squadron, in which his companions were the world-famous trio of flyers, Garros, Vedrines, and Pegoud. He had not been on active service many weeks before his work won him promotion to the rank of captain.

THE PORTUGUESE ATTITUDE.

Though so far nothing official has been said of any intention on the part of Portugal to declare war, it seems almost inevitable that she will take her stand by the side of Britain. One Lisbon newspaper has gone so far as to say she is actually sending a force to France, and when her preparations are complete she will put 90,000 men in the field. There is a suggestion that the monarchists are opposed to the throwing aside of neutrality, and it has even been reported that Germany has promised them to restore the monarchy as the price of non-intervention. The exact attitude of the monarchists is quite problematical, but it is certain that there is a cordial regard for Britain on both sides, born of a friendship of centuries, and some active step by Portugal in aid of her old friend and protector seems certain. Nor is it only a desire to help Britain that impels her to war. She has a good reason for coming into the struggle when she considers the score she might settle in Africa, where in both the east and the west she has had to bow to the will of the mail-fisted Prussian, whose colonies are co-terminous with her own.

THE FUTURE OF SOUTH AFRICA.

A GERMAN PROPHECY.

Dr. Carl Peters, one of the makers of German East Africa, and the greatest German authority on matters South African, contributed some time previous to the outbreak of the war the following article to a German daily:—

"In Germany," he said, "speculation is rife as to the political future of the South African Union. People are triumphant over the renewed rise of the Dutch element. Dutch, they proclaim, will remain the ultimate colour of South Africa. The Dutch parties, it is true, sit to-day at the helm in the Cape Colony as well as on the Orange and on the 'Vaal, but only because the British statesmen consider it wise to let them sit at the helm. That this should have come to pass is in conformity with the old British tradition of liberal colonial policy. The English wanted to make an economical, not a military dependency, of the beautiful lands between the Zambesi and Algoa Bay. It would be a gross error if Germany concluded that the momentary predominance of the Boer element would in any way serve their interests.

"I nowhere made the observation that Boers evince more sympathy for the Germans than for the English. In the new South Africa all nationalities grow together to a third race—neither English nor Boer—the Afrikander, which gets more and more conscious of its peculiarity, and develops its own national pride. Already one hears also in South Africa the word 'greenhorn,' used with reference to the new immigrants. The colonial, whatever may be his origin, learns to look down on the many—all-too-many—in the old country. The British colonial sees his brother no longer in the Englishman, but the Dutch colonial and the Boer is proud of his British fellow-citizen. This development set in in 1905; since it has progressed perceptibly.

"There is no hostile tendency against British supremacy. It brings advantages, but no obstacles, for the Afrikander. From Throgmorton and Lombard-street South African enterprise receives the vitalising capital, from Downing-street international security, while by the medium of the Governor-General in Pretoria orders and titles are distributed among the 'upper ten thousand' of this country.

"With all that, complete self-government in the whole sphere of local interests. Even the treatment of the 'dear blacks' London leaves free to the Union. In the same time, being an integral part of the most grandiose world-empire on this planet! Who should, in the face of all that, covet after the existence of a 'Liliput Republic.' People at home are rather over-hasty, too, with their supposition that linguistically the South African tableland would have to fall to Dutchdom. One under-estimates completely the absorbing power of the English language. To-day every educated Afrikander speaks English fluently, and the desire to learn this world language is growing. I believe the future of South Africa will remain bi-lingual, but the English and Dutch will, like High and Low German in certain parts of Germany, co-exist. It is true the Boers have mostly bigger families than the Englishmen here. To make up for it the English have a much greater base of immigration. In any case, I can myself, although disposing over only ten years' experience, state a decided advance of the English language-border. In 1889 Boer sounds were heard among the blacks right over the Zambesi. To-day every blackfellow there who wants to count speaks pidgin English; next to his Portuguese.

"About the destiny of peoples and races economic interests decide in the long run, and in this respect it is still true what Lord Castlereagh said a century ago: 'Our capital is our cannons.' The British Empire is ruled not so much from Downing-street as from Throgmorton-street; and especially in South Africa the colossal power of English capitalism makes itself felt. Everywhere 'limited companies.' The German Ophir Mines Company, which I at present represent in Manicaland, is, I think, the only German company south of Zambesi. Also the German jewry, which on the Rand is leaving, appears throughout as representative of the city of London. The stock exchanges of Johannesburg and Kimberley are the real strongholds of British influence in South Africa. But also on the country with the necessity of great economic enterprise, electric power installations, irrigation, drainage, railways, etc., British capitalism comes too, more and more, into the foreground.

"Finally, the British element is also here, only the pioneer of a great civilisation in the background, while Dutchdom has the character of a tenacious and specifically developed, but only an isolated Enclave."

THE "FIXED POST."

GERMAN SPY SYSTEM.

There is probably no country in the world that has developed foreign espionage so systematically, so thoroughly, and on so large a scale, or has raised it to such perfection, as Germany. Since the days of the famous Stieber, whose well-trained and organised intelligence agents proved of inestimable value to the Prussian generals in the wars with Austria and France, German espionage has been almost an exact science.

There was not a town, hardly was there a village, through which the Prussians passed which did not have its spy ready to furnish the fullest local information. These spies had till then lived unsuspected among the inhabitants of the place. On more than one occasion Bismarck personally complimented Stieber, their chief, on his fertility of resource and the accuracy, completeness, and value of the intelligence with which the armies were furnished.

It is long since Germany abandoned the old methods of espionage. While it would hardy be quite correct to say that the "German spy" of the scaremonger had no existence in fact, he was never the real danger. The German officer who sought to pry into forbidden places, who took photographs and made drawings of fortifications, etc., has usually been an enthusiast who, with more zeal than discretion, was seeking distinction while "playing off his own bat."

More than 10 years ago the employment as spies of officers serving on the active list was abandoned as utterly inadequate under modern conditions. Much more subtle methods were adopted. These have cost the country enormous sums, but the military authorities were convinced that the expense was more than counterbalanced by the importance and value of the information obtained.

Stieber was once asked whether the cost of organising his active service police had not been very heavy. "One cannot," he retorted, "set down in thalers the value either of bloodshed which has been avoided or of victories which have been secured."

One of the outstanding characteristics of the German system (says a correspondent in the "Scotsman") is the institution and wholesale appointment of what are known as "fixed posts." Men (and sometimes women) take up permanent residences in towns in which useful information may be obtained. They settle down as quiet citizens who have left their own country to improve their circumstances, or for some other ostensible reason. A local appointment is got or a business acquired, so that there may be no suspicion as to their means of earning their livelihood.

The duty of the "fixed post" is to make himself agreeable without ostentation and to get into business and social touch, if possible, with all kinds of officials. He has to keep himself informed as to all that happens in this district, with its railways, roads, and general resources. His reports are seldom, if ever made direct to Germany. The custom hitherto has been to make them to the agents of the German Intelligence Bureau in Switzerland, Belgium, and Holland, by whom they were conveyed by various means to headquarters.

In particular it is the duty of a "fixed post" to discover a possible "black sheep" in a garrison, at a naval base, in a seaport, connected with an arsenal, or in a vessel. A man too fond of his beer, a petty-officer, or other who is reckless in his habits and likely to be in debt, a man suspected of nursing a grievance—such as these the "fixed post" is expected to use every means in his power to tempt to betray secrets and to furnish useful intelligence.

Information is sought as to stores of coal, ammunition, food, and so forth, as well as details of codes, signals, and new weapons. Money for use as bribes is at the disposal of the agent, subject, however, to the supervision and the approval of his immediate superior.

On war breaking out the "fixed post" is expected, either himself or by means of other persons, to endeavour to disorganise the railway system by blowing up bridges and tunnels, derailing trains, etc., and in other ways hampering the movements of troops and the conveyance of stores. In short, it is expected of him that he will do all he can to injure the country in which he is employed, and will also communicate with his employers whenever he has an opportunity.

LATE WAR NEWS.

AT ANTWERP.

SAPPERS' HEROISM.

LONDON, Oct. 23.

During the attack on Antwerp the Germans despatched two driverless locomotives, laden with dynamite, against the South station. Two Belgian sappers blew up the rails, and, at the cost of their lives, averted the disaster.

GERMAN BANDMASTER.

CHAFFED BY CAPTORS.

The "Daily Chronicle" states that the British soldiers at Ypres captured a bandmaster sitting on a tree stump, gloomily tying up his wounded hand. His uniform was gorgeous, and his captors found bundles of music and a splendid gold baton.

They chaffed him, saying that possibly he would be permitted to wear his magnificent clothes, and that they were convinced he was the bandmaster in chief, who was to lead the Germans into Paris. He tried to escape at nightfall, and was quite downhearted.

GERMAN EMPEROR'S QUARTERS.

The "Daily News" states that the German Emperor is staying at the Czenstochow (Southern Poland) club house. The place is enclosed with barbed wire, and the roof covered with wire netting, to guard against aeroplanes.

LOOTING BY OFFICERS.

Reuter states that German officers who lodged in the chateau of Montmort, ransacked jewel cases, removed the silver and linen, and emptied the cellars.

THE KING'S OWN.

HEROIC OFFICERS.

DASHING BAYONET CHARGES.

The first connected narrative of the severe fighting in which the King's Own Royal Lancaster Regiment was engaged on August 26, when in killed and wounded the regiment had 11 officers put out of action, is told by a sergeant of the regiment, who has just arrived home wounded. The King's Own, with the Lancashire Fusiliers and the Middlesex Regiment, were ordered to cover the retreat of part of the allied forces from Mons.

On Tuesday, August 25, they left the position in which they had been entrenched to take new ground, and were marching through the night, finding themselves at daybreak between Cambrai and Le Cateau. Several thousand Frenchmen and a Highland regiment passed their lines. When the King's Own were taking breakfast the German artillery boomed forth.

Several shells fell in the vicinity of the trenches without doing much harm, but the enemy's artillery was much superior in numbers to that of the Allies, and they poured in a raking shrapnel fire before the English guns began to speak. There was no doubt either about the enemy's range-finding, and under cover of the guns the enemy came on, in the proportion of six to one.

Men were mowed down like ninepins by the bursting of shrapnel, and it seemed as though the King's Own had been singled out for the special fury of the onslaught. Colonel Dykes fell at an early stage of the engagement, while shouting encouragement to his men. Fighting continued furiously from half-past 4 until half-past 9. Then there was a lull, and the enemy, seemingly reinforced, made good their advance, and another five hours' desperate conflict ensued.

The Allies resisted the advance inch by inch, fighting becoming so close that the King's Own got home with several dashing bayonet charges, one of the most brilliant of which was led by Captain Clutterbuck, formerly a ranker of the Yorkshire Light Infantry, who, with a handful of men, routed four times the number of men under his command. He paid the price of his gallantry with his life, but the casualties to his men were singularly light.

The sergeant added: "It was just like Clutterbuck. Then there was Lieutenant Steele-Perkins, who died one of the grandest deaths a British officer could wish for. He was lifted out of the trenches wounded four times, but, protesting, crawled back again till he was mortally wounded. The first man knocked over was one of the most popular of the Rugby footballers in the Dover Garrison. He was shot through the mouth. Lieutenant Woodgate distinguished himself in bravery, and Major Parker was coolness personified.

"A German aeroplane which came over our position on the day preceding the battle was accounted for, assailed by a shower of bullets from more than one regiment. Its reconnoitring career had a sudden stop. The enemy swooped down on us so quickly at the finish that we were unable to remove all our dead and wounded. Stretcher-bearers were shot down, and I, who had been wounded with a shrapnel bullet in the muscle of the left arm, was taking a message for the doctor from the field hospital (a school) when a shell came and demolished the roof.

"All our King's Own dead are buried in France, a few miles from the frontier. We saw many burning villages, and our artillery helped along many old women and children who were fleeing before the enemy."

UNEMPLOYMENT.

SAD PLIGHT OF EMMAVILLE.

EMMAVILLE, Friday.

The greatest indignation prevails locally at the Premier's failure to indicate any relief to the tin mining industry in his Budget speech. The citizens' committee state they had been led to believe some scheme would be adopted, and they scorn the idea that clearing of tracts of land hundreds of miles away will relieve unemployment. Samples of monazite sands were supplied at the request of the Mines Department, but nothing further has been heard.

The Relief Committee is expending nearly £20 a week supporting destitute families some of whom are in a bad plight.

To-day a woman and six children were discovered in an old bag hut on the verge of exhaustion. They had not taken food for days. Buyers have ceased purchasing tin from fossickers, and the outlook is worse to-day than ever. There is absolutely no employment offering.

A NEW PILOT STEAMER.

The Matthew Flinders, which is the new pilot steamer built on the Clyde for the Queensland Government, arrived in Sydney yesterday for the purpose of replenishing bunkers.

The Matthew Flinders is a neat little vessel of 150 tons, and is in charge of Captain Buchanan. She left Glasgow on July 20, and intended following a course via Java, and round the north of Australia to Brisbane. On arrival at Suez, however, she was delayed for about a month on account of the outbreak of war.

The original route was departed from, and the Matthew Flinders, after leaving Colombo on September 21, made for Cape Leeuwin, and came round the south coast of Australia.

After bunkering in Johnstone's Bay she will leave this afternoon for Brisbane.

NEW CAMP.

TROOPS AT LIVERPOOL.

VETERINARY STAFF.

News was received at the Barracks yesterday that Lieut.-Colonel J. M. Antill, who distinguished himself in South Africa, had been appointed Brigade Major of the Third Light Horse Brigade, which is to be commanded by Lieut.-Colonel Hughes. Colonel Antill is expected to return to Sydney from Melbourne to-day.

There was a busy time at Rosehill Racecourse yesterday, shifting camp to Liverpool. This work will go on again to-day, and be concluded to-morrow. Liverpool will shortly have a large increase in its population. It is proposed to make this the concentration camp for all the new forces. But, as already explained, the 13th Battalion of the 4th (A.I.) Infantry will be transferred to Broadmeadows, near Melbourne.

The Light Horse unit of the Third Expeditionary Force (Colonel Hughes, Brigadier) is to be recruited in Victoria, South Australia, and Western Australia, leaving Queensland and New South Wales to supply the unit (for the second contingent) which Lieut.-Colonel Ryrie, M.P., is to command, with Major T. J. Lynch as his Brigade-Major, and Lieut. R. V. Pollok (A. and I. Staff) as Staff Captain. The Queensland regiment of Colonel Ryrie's brigade will not assemble at Liverpool for some time. Lieut.-Colonel Cox's regiment is already there, and has done a steady course of continuous training. The other New South Wales regiment has yet to be fully provided with horses, the buying of suitable stock is now engaging the attention of agents in the country districts.

Qualified applicants are now required for the staff of the veterinary hospital. According to Lieut.-Colonel Gribben this hospital will be composed of two sections—one a mobile, and the other a sort of field hospital, which will treat all cases until they reach the veterinary hospital. The few officers that will be required have already been secured. Now, the need is for 113 suitable workmen. Colonel Gribben would like to have ex-students of the Hawkesbury College who have had experience in first aid, and generally men who have acted under veterinary surgeons, or who have been for years working about stables. Such men should mark their application forms in a way that the nature of their qualifications will be made clear to the enrolling officer.

Recruiting for the veterinary branch will not be fully set going until next week, when the services of the country police will be again utilised. It is expected that there will be a great rush of applicants for all divisions of the forces. The police have authority to issue passes upon production of medical certificates.

Sixty applicants were enrolled yesterday at the Barracks by Major Timothy, and 40 others were told to report themselves next week, all being for the infantry and light horse.

Persons desiring information should either consult the police in the country or write to the "Enrolling Officer, Victoria Barracks."

The following additional appointments have been made:—1st Infantry Brigade. First battalion, Major F. J. Kindon to be second in command, 2nd battalion, Captain R. Scobie to be major and second in command, 3rd battalion, Major A. J. Bennett, D.S.O., to be second in command, 4th battalion, Major C. M. Macnaghten to be second in command. 1st Light Horse Brigade. 1st regiment, Major H. V. Vernon to be second in command.

The Divisional Ammunition Park made a splendid showing in a parade march from the Show Ground by way of Cleveland-street last night, the procession, including transports, being nearly a mile in length. The band played "It's a long, long way to Tipperary," the soldiers joining in the refrain, while the people cheered.

TRIUMPH CERTAIN.

COL. FOSTER'S VIEW.

ADDRESSES ON THE WAR.

An illuminating address on "The War" was given in the Royal Society's House, Elizabeth-street, under the auspices of the British Empire and Victoria Leagues, last evening by Colonel Foster, R.E., Director of Military Science at the Sydney University.

Colonel Foster described the constitution of the various armies, outlined the leading events in the campaign to date, and the present situation, and concluded with a description of the nations engaged, and the difficulties which encumbered Austria on account of the diverse elements in her population, and Germany on account of the jealousies among the component parts of that empire. He explained the composition of infantry and cavalry divisions. Wars were essentially fought by the infantry, the purpose of the other arms being to act as accessories. He detailed the relation and the duties of the artillery, field engineers, signal companies and ambulance. Two divisions formed a normal army corps, but most Continental armies added a reserve corps, which, however, was ordinarily not so efficient as the other two. Cavalry divisions were different from infantry divisions, and Britain's cavalry was more supple, more mobile, and better commanded than any in the world. This war had, in his opinion, been a splendid vindication of the principle of voluntary enlistment in the old country. The rapidity with which the British Expeditionary Force had been landed in France was a marvellous performance.

With the aid of maps Colonel Foster explained the strategical movements of the contending armies. The German idea of strategy differed from that of the French. The German plan was to take the offensive from the very beginning, and continue it for all they were worth. The French followed the Napoleonic plan. Wars could never be won by remaining always on the defensive, but the question was when to take the offensive, and the Allies watched for the suitable opportunities, and made the best of them. The morale of the armies of the Allies was of a very high order. The jealousies among the German States, and the racial divisions in Austria operated against military efficiency. The outlook, from the Allies' point of view, was of the brightest description. The outcome of the war would be the rectification of frontiers to content national spirit. France would get back her lost provinces, Poland would secure autonomy, Bosnia would probably become Servian, and Herzegovina be added to Montenegro, whilst adjustments would be made to the satisfaction of Italy.

The Premier (Mr. Holman), in moving a vote of thanks to Colonel Foster, said he had spoken with confident serenity, based upon a full understanding of the cause and effect of the movements of the armies, which to laymen were often most difficult to follow. From the commencement of the war he had endeavoured to keep himself fully acquainted with the changes in the situation from day to day, but had experienced the utmost bewilderment as to which had been the deciding factor in the movements. Colonel Foster had strengthened their belief in the ultimate success of the armies of the Allies. The danger they had to guard against was in being apt to overlook the mighty part the Allies of Britain had played in the furious encounters that had taken place on land. The gallantry of Belgium would never be forgotten. He hoped that one outcome of the war would be the final cementing of a permanent lasting alliance between the French and British nations, not merely on the field of battle, but in every walk of life, and that any misunderstandings that might have existed would disappear for ever. (Applause.)

Sir William M'Millan, Dr. Arthur, M.L.A., and M. Chayet (French Consul) also spoke.

GERMAN METHODS.

CAMPAIGN IN CHINA.

A passenger by the Taiyuan, which arrived yesterday from the East, was Miss Hepburn, of Geelong, Victoria, who is returning from a two and a half years' tour.

Miss Hepburn said that the Germans in China were doing their utmost to work up feeling against the British. They had acquired newspapers in Peking and Canton, and were circulating all sorts of lies about British atrocities and British aims, which were having a serious effect upon the Chinese. In Japan, business had suffered severely.

WOOL EXPORT.

FEDERAL RESTRICTION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A proclamation issued to-day prohibits the exportation of wool without the consent of the Minister of Customs.

It is understood that the decision of the Government in this matter was dictated by the action which was recently taken by the Government of Great Britain in prohibiting the export of wool and certain woollen products from Great Britain.

GERMAN BAND.

MR. HUGHES' OPINION.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Federal Attorney-General, Mr. Hughes, to-day, in referring to the treatment meted out to the German band in Sydney, said that things would be different with a British band in Berlin.

"I have heard the German band play 'Rule Britannia,'" remarked the Minister, "but I never heard it play the national anthems of the enemy. My own opinion is that you might search the world and ransack history without any chance of finding a similar example of such tolerance as we have here. The idea that a British band would be allowed in Berlin to play any tune whatever is unthinkable. The matter has not come before me at all, and unless it does I am unable to offer any suggestion as to what may be done in the matter.

"I see that the British Government is ordering the arrest and detention of all Germans and Austro-Hungarians between the ages of 17 and 45. If such action were taken here the question of the band, whose members, so far as I understand, are all between those ages, would be settled in a very simple way. They could then play their tunes inside the barbed wire entanglements."

The Chief Secretary, Mr. Cann, intimated yesterday that the military authorities were conducting an inquiry concerning certain unnaturalised members of the German Band, whose street performances had been prohibited.

SAFEGUARDS.

CONTROL OF GERMAN RESIDENTS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Referring to-day to the action that had been taken in Great Britain with regard to the arrest of Germans and Austro-Hungarians between the ages of 17 and 45, the Prime Minister, Mr. Fisher, stated that it was not proposed to do anything here that was not essential to the welfare of the nation. Anything, however, that needed to be done would be carried out with the least friction and inconvenience.

Speaking on the same subject, the Attorney-General, Mr. Hughes, remarked that the British Government had apparently taken action because it had been found impossible otherwise to protect British interests. This action was, no doubt, amply justified, and the act was not a novel one in war time. "As far as Australia was concerned," added Mr. Hughes, "I know nothing about what is being done here, but the Government will not hesitate to take any steps that may be necessary to safeguard the interests of the Commonwealth and the Empire. As far as we know, no circumstances have yet arisen which have rendered such a step necessary. It is understood that for the last ten days or so no certificates of naturalisation have been issued to Germans or Austro-Hungarians. Applications from members of other nationalities have been dealt with as usual, but those arriving from the subjects of the enemy country are remaining in the hands of the Federal officers."

COAL EXPORT.

EFFECT OF RESTRICTIONS.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

The Newcastle Chamber of Commerce today discussed the prohibition on the export of coal.

In reference to the embargo on exports for South American ports, it was pointed out that buyers would now obtain their supplies from other sources. If the present regulations remained in force Newcastle would lose her best foreign market. The coalowners of Newcastle were anxious to observe any regulation that would prevent coal from falling into the hands of the enemy, but the opinion was expressed that the guarantee required of shippers to Valparaiso and other oversea ports before clearance from Newcastle could be granted would, to a large extent, fail to accomplish that end.

BELGIUM.

SUPPORT FROM SYDNEY.

There has been a gratifying response to the appeal in last Wednesday's "Herald" for support for Belgian factories. "If you can assist us to keep our looms going, and thus help us to keep our hands employed in these dreadful times," wrote a large manufacturing firm in Ghent, "we should thank you very much." Immediately this appeal was made, one of Sydney's large retail firms despatched an order for goods to the value of £1100, and yesterday a number of additional orders were cabled to Ghent for goods to the value of over £5000.

NATURALISATION.

EFFECT IN AUSTRALIA.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Discussing this evening the question of how far Germany recognises Australian naturalisation, the Attorney-General (Mr. Hughes) said there was no doubt that the naturalisation of a German citizen by Australia did not carry with it denaturalisation in Germany. A German would not be relieved of any obligation to his native country by having been naturalised in Australia.

WIRELESS PLANT.

GERMAN'S ARREST.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Massey), replying, in the House of Representatives, to a question, said the German who had been discovered in possession of wireless apparatus would, at the termination of his sentence, be handed over to the military authorities.

The wireless authorities had informed him that these small plants could not send out a message without it being picked up, but that they could receive messages intended for ordinary station. That was a sufficiently dangerous practice.

CABLE ARRANGEMENTS.

The Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company, Limited, announces that from Monday next telegrams addressed to registered indicators will again be accepted for:—1. Any place in the British Empire, including Egypt. 2. Places in France and her dependencies, Russia, or the United States of America, provided that the code indicators were registered before July 1, 1914.

In the case of telegrams for France, Russia, or the U.S.A., the full name and address of the addressee must be written on the form, but will not be telegraphed. A registered indicator may not be used as the signature of a telegram.

DRIVEN FROM BRUSSELS.

News was received in Sydney yesterday of the death of the Rev. Mother Janet Stuart, Superior General of the Society of the Sacred Heart at Rockhampton, England. Her death is stated to have been the direct result of exile from Brussels enforced by the German army upon its taking of that city.

When the Germans occupied Brussels the reverend mother was ordered by the enemy to depart at once, together with all the English nuns. With 20 nuns, she left for England, and suffered great hardships before reaching the seaboard. She was compelled to spend 20 hours in an open farm cart. The deceased lady visited Sydney in December last during a tour of inspection of the convents of the Sacred Heart in various parts of the world. A solemn requiem mass will be celebrated at the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Rose Bay on Tuesday next.

RED CROSS FUND.

THE BRITISH SOCIETY.

In the course of a letter written on behalf of the British Red Cross Society to the London "Times," an account of the work undertaken by the society is given. The letter says.—

"No heart in the British Empire can fail to have been touched by the bravery of our soldiers and by the heroic way in which they are maintaining the reputation of our army against tremendous odds. For the means to help the wounded, stricken while upholding every principle which England and civilisation hold dear, we plead to-day.

"The British Red Cross Society supplements the aid provided by the State for our sick and wounded. Auxiliary hospital accommodation, auxiliary medical and nursing service, and all the little luxuries and comforts which mean so much to the invalid on his bed of pain, the society organises and supplies. Following the appeal of her Majesty Queen Alexandra, we ask the country with confidence to enable us to provide this assistance on no grudging scale. Let it never be said that, in the pressure and confusion of those unhappy times, the wounded sailor or soldier went lacking or was, for the moment, forgotten. Our future is in his hands. The least we can do is to afford him such assistance in his distress as will make him feel that his country is not ungrateful.

"The British Red Cross Society is largely staffed by volunteers; by the generosity of the Duke of Devonshire we are housed rent free, and it can be said with confidence that there are few charities where so large a proportion of the gift will flow direct to the beneficiary. If the sufferings of the wounded touch your hearts, let their hearts in turn be touched by the ministrations and comforts which they receive in response to the appeal of the mother of our King.

"We are yours obediently,

ROTHSCHILD.
E. A. RIDSDALE.

BATTLE OF FLOWERS.

TO-DAY'S ARRANGEMENTS.

Those who have been looking forward to the Battle of Flowers have every prospect of the needful sunshine to-day, when this event will be held in the Agricultural Ground in aid of the Red Cross Society.

An hour's sports programme, commencing at 2 p.m., will precede the floral pageant, which is the leading feature of the day. The postponement from last Saturday has allowed the promoters time to elaborate their previous arrangements, and it is expected that considerably over 3000 people in floral array and bearing floral emblems will take part. At the conclusion of the procession the Queen will be selected and crowned, and then in her honour there will be revels which will include a floral ballet by 60 pupils of Miss Minnie Hooper, a burlesque bullfight by theatrical employees, and exhibitions of fancy and acrobatic dancing.

The Rugby League will then take charge of the arena, and in conjunction with the New South Wales Football League and the League of Wheelmen will present a burlesque of sport, showing what athletics are supposed to have been like in the Stone Age. The sports will be continued till 6 p.m., and among other attractions there will be a continuous vaudeville show, a balloon ascent by Captain Penfold, a choir of 1500 trained children and massed bands. At 7 p.m. the carnival will be continued in the Royal Roller Rink, the programme to include exhibitions of fancy dancing and skating ballets and music.

The committee request that all donations of flowers to-day should be left as early as possible either at the Royal Roller Rink, at 64 Pitt-street, or at the Millions Club depot, corner of Hay and Castlereagh streets.

IRONWORKS.

FRICTION WITH FOREIGNERS.

LITHGOW, Friday.

Conditions at the ironworks have been very favourable of late, and a number of mills have worked full time.

Yesterday afternoon the 27-inch rail mill ceased work, owing, it is alleged, to friction between some foreigners and British workmen engaged at the mill. Very little reliable information can be gleaned, as both sides decline to make a statement until peace has been reached.

A deputation of the men, headed by the president of the Ironworkers' Association, interviewed Mr. Chas. Hoskins this morning, but finality was not reached, and the mill is still idle.

SHIPMENT OF ZINC.

It has been intimated by the Premier to the Mines Department that the Secretary for State for the Colonies advises that permission is given for the shipment of zinc concentrates to the United States and Canada.

OCEAN RAIDS.

VICTIMS OF THE EMDEN.

The new P. and O. mail steamer Khyber, which arrived from London, via ports, yesterday, found shipping in a state bordering on panic on arrival at Colombo on the voyage out.

Sixty or seventy vessels were waiting at Colombo afraid to leave owing to the operations of the German cruiser Emden. The Emden had sunk a number of merchant steamers by the time the Khyber reached Colombo, and particulars of the treatment of the crews of the steamers had been received.

Mr. George Road, second officer of the Indus, had stated that his vessel passed the Emden at 9 a.m. on September 10. The crew were transhipped at 1.16 p.m., and at 3 p.m. the cruiser fired ten shots at the Indus, which sank eighty minutes later, the marksmanship of the Germans being poor. On the following day at 3 p.m., the steamer Lovat was captured, and the crew were transferred to the collier Markomannia, at 5 p.m. The Lovat was bombarded and sunk at 6.30 p.m. The steamer Kabinga was captured at 11 p.m., on September 12, and two hours after the Killin was captured. At 8 a.m. next day the first shot was fired at the Killin, and she sank an hour later. The Diplomat was captured at midday, and her crew transferred to the Kabinga. Five shots and a mine placed at the bow sank the Diplomat, which went down bows foremost. All the crews were placed on the Kabinga, as well as the crew of the Trabbock, which was captured later. The Trabbock was blown up by an extremely powerful mine, and sank immediately. The Kabinga then took the crews to Calcutta.

The steamer Clan Matheson, well known in the Australian trade, was another victim of the Emden. She had taken on 1500 tons of cargo at Colombo, and sailed for Madras and Calcutta, leaving Madras on September 12 after taking in general cargo. She was sunk off False Point by the Emden on September 14, and Captain W. Harris and the crew were transferred to the Norwegian vessel Dovre, and landed at Rangoon. The Emden's commander offered to pay their passage money, but the Dovre refused. The Clan Matheson's crew had to coal the Emden, and were paid half a dollar a day, the orders being given on German firms in Rangoon.

The sinking of the steamer Tumeric, one of the last victims of the Emden, was a spectacular affair. Searchlights were playing on the steamer. Six shots were fired, only one of which found the water line. The steamer sank about nine minutes after receiving the last shot.

The Emden is reported to have sent a wireless message to Colombo informing the inhabitants that she had noted the departure of the Highflyer, and stating that she would see them later on.

MEAT EXPORT.

MORE VESSELS WANTED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A deputation waited upon the Minister for Customs, Mr. Tudor, to-day, and urged that efforts be made to relieve the present congestion in the meat export trade, due to so many vessels with refrigerator space having been diverted to other purposes. Space was wanted at once for 200,000 carcases of mutton, and during the next few weeks space would be required for a further 500,000 carcases.

In reply, Mr. Tudor said that he realised how serious the position was both for the meat and the butter trade, and, as he had promised the butter trade, he would consult his colleagues to see what could be done.

REFUGEES.

A STORY OF SUFFERING.

PERTH, Friday.

Referring to the Belgian refugees in London and their sufferings at the hands of the Germans, a Perth resident, at present in London, writes:—"We are just beginning to see something of the effect of the war. Near by hundreds of Belgian refugees are housed. This morning a few of them ventured out for a walk, and the residents swamped them with cakes, sweets, cigarettes, clothes, etc. Poor wretches, they have anguish written large over their faces. The valour of the Belgians has roused a deep sense of pride in the British. People cheer them as they pass by. Some of the children had to tramp five weeks to reach Antwerp, and what a tale of brutality the refugees tell of the Germans. It makes one sick to hear of it. Drunk with wine, they were guilty of crimes too awful to relate."

SUCCESS OF THE ALLIES.

SHOULD WE PRAY FOR IT.

DEBATE AT CONGREGATIONAL CONFERENCE.

The Congregational Union of New South Wales brought the annual conference to a close yesterday, a considerable amount of important business being completed. The following resolution was proposed by the Rev. Dr. Roseby:—

"That this assembly, in view of the colossal growth of militarism, associated in its main source, as it is, with an anti-Christian ethic, which seeks to displace the principle of righteousness and brotherly love by a doctrine of the supremacy of might, expresses its profound satisfaction with the determination of our Empire to resist to the utmost this temper of arrogance and usurpation; prays for the success of the Allies in the present conflict; and pledges itself to do its utmost to bring the minds of men into closer accord with the spirit and teaching of our Lord—'the Son of Righteousness' and 'the Prince of Peace.'"

The clause which relates to praying for the success of the Allies provoked a discussion which might not have been expected. It was argued by several speakers that to pray for the success of the Allies was equivalent to praying for the continuance of a struggle which had been described as "hell upon earth," and which was therefore impossible to reconcile with the teaching of the Prince of Peace. An amendment to omit the clause entirely was succeeded by a further amendment to substitute a prayer for the victory of Right, both of which were lost. The resolution was eventually carried in its original form.

SCOURING MELBOURNE.

POLICE MAKE A SEARCH.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Prompted by recent action on the part of the Imperial authorities, action was taken to-day by the Defence Department through the State Commandant, Colonel Wallace, to make a close inspection of several establishments in Melbourne.

No arrests were made, and it is understood that there were no startling discoveries, but a quantity of correspondence has been impounded, and will be submitted to a thorough overhaul. Squads of citizen soldiers were sent out under permanent officers to assist in the search. Special investigations were made of all foundations and walls to see if the premises might, in any circumstance, be used for military purposes, but the results of the inquiries were negative.

The following official statement was issued to-night:—Under powers given by the Order-in-Council already published in the press, Commandants have carried out investigations of a number of places at which it was suspected there might be arms, warlike stores, wireless apparatus, or documents of an enemy character. These investigations are not yet completed, and in the case of some large businesses may take some days. The State Commandant, Colonel Wallace, stated that investigations had been made at the following places in Melbourne to-day:—Continental C. and G. Rubber Company, 185 Collins-street; Paul Butzmuhlen, 506 Little Collins-street; Australian Porcelain Company; the old woollen mills, Yarraville; Benz Motor Agency, 103 Exhibition-street; the German Club, Alfred-place; Tivoli Club, Victoria-street, Abbotsford; Kuhne, 524 Flinders-street, and 136 Little Collins-street.

MINE MANAGER'S DEATH.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Joseph Croft, a well-known Newcastle colliery manager, died at his residence, Tighe's Hill, to-day, at the age of 66. He was born at Clarencetown, and spent practically the whole of his life in the Newcastle district. For 25 years he was with J. and A. Brown, and during the latter part of that time was manager of Minmi colliery. He was manager of the Newcastle Company's mines for 20 years, having retired a few years ago.

PAPUAN AFFRAY.

ATTACK ON EXPLORING PARTY.

A SHOWER OF ARROWS.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Details have been received by the Assistant Minister of External Affairs, Mr. Mahon, of an affray on the Fly River, in Papua, between Sir Rupert Clarke's party and a hostile native tribe, in which two white men were injured with arrows, whilst one of the attacking party was killed.

A sworn statement with regard to the matter was made to Mr. A. P. Lyons, a Resident Magistrate, by Mr. Frank Pryke, a member of the party. The statement runs:—On September 13 the party was going down the Fly River in an oil launch. With Mr. Pryke were his brother James and Mr. M. McKay. At daybreak there were about 100 natives, including some women and children, on the river bank. Some trade was done, and the natives made signs to the party to go ashore. Some of the native boys left the launch, but the whites remained on board. On the return of these boys it was thought that the natives meant treachery, and instructions were given to anchor the launch out in midstream. The natives did their best to prevent this being done, and shortly afterwards a fire stick was thrown on the awning, setting it on fire. This was followed by a shower of arrows. Fire was then opened on the natives, and they were driven away. Of the party on the boat, Mr. Frank Pryke was wounded by an arrow on the arm, and his brother was scratched on the stomach by an arrow. Five of the boys on the boat were also hit. Mr. Frank Pryke and the two other white men then went on shore and found the dead body of one of the attackers. No wounded natives were, however, seen. The launch was then shifted out into the stream, and the boat party again went ashore. At one place the natives assembled in force, but were driven off, and a number of their canoes were destroyed.

WHEAT AREA.

GOVERNMENT SCHEME.

EMPLOYING 1000 HANDS.

The Government scheme for extending the wheat area of the State so as to provide more foodstuffs within the Empire, and at the same time relieve unemployment, was advanced a definite stage last night.

The Premier, Mr. Holman, conferred during the evening with the Minister for Agriculture and Acting Minister for Lands, Mr. Ashford. The Cabinet has recently given consideration to the matter, and final details were left in the hands of the two Ministers.

The Government will at once take steps to have 40,000 acres of Crown land in the Parkes district, between Tottenham and Tullamore, cleared for the plough. The land was held mostly under improvement leases, which fell due, the Government then resuming it. The whole area has been cut up into blocks suitable for wheat farms.

It is estimated by Mr. Ashford that from 900 to 1000 men will be employed clearing the land, and this operation will occupy three months. It is not yet known whether the Government will itself put the area under crop, or throw it open for settlement in the ordinary way. Ministers are not in a position to make an announcement on the point, and a good deal depends upon the financial aspect of things.

In furtherance of the Government scheme, half a dozen or more of the wheat farms are to be extended, notably in the Temora, Coonamble, and Condobolin districts. It has long been a comment that the experiment farms owned by the Government are not self-supporting, and the Minister for Agriculture intends to endeavour to remove this reproach by attaching large areas to the farms, and working them as wheat-growing propositions.

These two features represent only a part of the Government plan for increasing the wheat area, and they come within the category of what the Government propose doing, so to speak, "off their own bat." As the Premier announced on Wednesday, the Government intends standing behind wheat-growers by guaranteeing them a minimum for any extra grain they produce on additional land. A system of encouraging and assisting the man on the land to put larger areas under crop is being worked out, the details of which are to be announced at an early date.

SCULLING.

RETURN OF JAMES PADDON.

FREMANTLE, Friday.

James Paddon, the Australian sculler, who was recently defeated on the Thames by Ernest Barry for the championship of the world, returned by the P. and O. Medina, which arrived at Fremantle to-day.

According to Paddon, the match was not such a one-sided one as some of the reports indicated. At no stage of the race did Barry lead by more than three lengths, and he only passed the winning post two and a half lengths to the good. Barry imposed such conditions as to make it practically impossible for a man not used to the Thames to defeat him. He was anxious to have a return match with the champion, but next time he would insist on the race being rowed two and a half hours before high tide.

Paddon is now anxious to arrange a match with Arnst. Failing this, he intends to return to England to seek a return match with Barry.

COLLISION ON PYRMONT BRIDGE.

THREE PEOPLE INJURED.

A collision occurred on Pyrmont Bridge at 10.25 o'clock last night between a motor car and a dray, three persons being injured. The dray, driven by Timothy M'Carthy, 52, residing at 8 Surrey-street, Darlinghurst, was coming over Pyrmont Bridge, towards Sydney, and at the same time a double-seater motor car, driven by William Archibald, of Alexander-street, Hunter's Hill, and containing two women and two men, was proceeding over the bridge from Sydney. The motor car suddenly swerved across the bridge and collided with the dray. The force of the impact was so great as to overturn the horse and dray, burying M'Carthy beneath it, and releasing a horse that was tied behind. The motor car was badly smashed up, one of the occupants and the driver being seriously hurt. M'Carthy was released from beneath the dray, and together with the others injured was conveyed to Sydney Hospital, where they were attended by Dr. Carter.

M'Carthy was found to be suffering from a fractured thigh, badly cut hands, and other injuries. He was admitted to the hospital. Archibald was terribly cut about the head and face, necessitating nine stitches in the scalp, and several over the eyes. He also had other injuries, and was admitted to the hospital. Mrs. A. D. Foley, 24, of Drummoyne, the third person injured, was attended by Dr. Carter, and allowed to proceed to her home.

About 9 o'clock last night a fire broke out in a fancy goods shop at 210 Military-road, North Sydney, occupied by Mrs. Dora Howe, through spirit vapour coming in contact with a light. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done, but Mrs. Howe was badly burnt about the face.

LABOUR AND WAR.

PATRIOTIC MANIFESTO.

After a two days' conference the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress in London, issued on September 3, an important manifesto to trade unionists of the country on the war. It states that the committee was especially gratified at the manner in which the Labour party in the House of Commons had responded to the appeal made to all political parties to give their co-operation in securing the enlistment of men to defend the interests of their country, and heartily endorsed the appointment upon the Parliamentary Recruiting Committee of four members of the party, and the placing of the services of the national agent at the disposal of that committee to assist in carrying through its secretarial work.

The manifesto proceeds:

"The Parliamentary Committee are convinced that one important factor in the present European struggle has to be borne in mind, so far as our own country is concerned, namely, that in the event of the voluntary system of military service failing the country in this its time of need, the demand for a national system of compulsory military service will not only be made with redoubled vigour, but may prove to be so persistent and strong as to become irresistible.

"The prospect of having to face conscription, with its permanent and heavy burden upon the financial resources of the country, and its equally burdensome effect upon nearly the whole of its industries, should in itself stimulate the manhood of the nation to some forward in its defence, and thereby demonstrate to the world that a free people can rise to the supreme heights of a great sacrifice without the whip of conscription.

GUARANTEE OF PEACE.

"Another factor to be remembered in this crisis of our nation's history, and most important of all so far as trade unionists and Labour in general are concerned, is the fact that upon the result of the struggle in which this country is now engaged rests the preservation and maintenance of free and unfettered democratic government, which in its international relationships has in the past been recognised, and must unquestionably in the future prove to be the best guarantee for the preservation of the peace of the world.

"The mere contemplation of the overbearing and brutal methods to which people have to submit under a Government controlled by a military autocracy—living, as it were, continuously under the threat and shadow of war—should be sufficient to arouse the enthusiasm of the nation in resisting any attempt to impose similar conditions upon countries at present free from military despotism.

DUTY OF THE STATE.

"But if men have a duty to perform in the common interest of the State, equally the State owes a duty to those of its citizens who are prepared—and readily prepared—to make sacrifices in its defence and for the maintenance of honour. Citizens called upon voluntarily to leave their employment and their homes for the purpose of undertaking military duties have a right to receive at the hands of the State a reasonable and assured recompense, not so much for themselves as for those who are dependent upon them, and no single member of the community would do otherwise than uphold a Government which in such an important and vital matter took a liberal, and even generous, view of its responsibilities towards those citizens who come forward to assist in the defence of their country.

"We respectfully commend this suggestion to the favourable consideration of the Government of the day.

"Long life to the free institutions of all democratically-governed countries."

J. A. Seddon, chairman; W. J. Davis, vice-chairman; A. Evans, H. Gosling, J. Hill, J. Jenkins, W. Matkin, W. Mosses, J. W. Ogden, J. Sexton, A. Smith, H. Smith, J. B. Williams, J. H. Williams; C. W. Bowerman, secretary.

DEATH BLOW TO KAISERISM.

A manifesto issued by the Dockers' Union, and signed by Mr. Ben Tillett, the secretary, says:—

"Every resource at our command must be utilised for the purpose of preserving our country and nation. Every able-bodied man must either fight or be ready to defend his country. Every family of those men who go to the front must be guaranteed a competence and food.

"We first of all propose that all able-bodied men should shoulder the responsibilities this war imposes; that local units of men having worked and lived together constitute units of a thousand each, for the better purpose of training and preparation. That these units of our members or of trades unionists from a given area be registered.

"Kaiserism and militarism should receive their death blow in this Armageddon. Our traditions at least stand for the best, our limitations and inequalities are largely of our own making; and will be so long as the workers are contented slaves, under a vicious wage system.

"I want to see our own men drilled daily, even if the War Office cannot help us. There are plenty of open spaces, many of our men are ex-soldiers, they could help in the drilling. Municipal authorities and employers could help. Employed and unemployed could help; the War Office should help those who can enlist, subject to guarantees from the Government giving protection to the families left behind."

DARKEST AFRICA.

MISSIONARY YEARNS TO GO BACK.

"I DON'T LIKE YOUR WAYS."

Mr. Dan Crawford has spent 23 years among the natives of Central Africa, 280 miles beyond the spot where David Livingstone was buried. He is at present in Sydney, and will remain here for about a fortnight, when he will leave for South Australia, and shortly afterwards return to the Luanza Mission.

The visitor is perhaps best known as the author of "Thinking Black." In explaining the purpose of the story, Mr. Crawford stated yesterday that he had resolved to plunge in among the natives, to live with them in their own villages, and to get to the back of the black man's brain. The inability of the white to think as blacks and vice versa was at the back of all the inter-racial trouble. He had made up his mind never to come out of Africa, but a circumstance had necessitated a visit to England. After his Australian tour, he would go to Capetown and re-enter the "long grass" of Central Africa. "It will be good-bye to the whole lot of you when I take my departure soon," he said. "I like you all, but I don't like your ways, and I am longing to be at my post again."

DEATH OF EX-DETECTIVE HOSKISSON.

Mr. John Hoskisson, ex senior-detective of police, died on Tuesday at his residence, Grangeville, The Oaks, near Picton. He was born 60 years ago at Windsor. His father owned Barraba Station, Liverpool Plains, and his grandfather was one of the pioneers of the Hawkesbury district. Mr. Hoskisson retired from the police force on a pension in February, 1911, after 30 years' service. He leaves a grown-up family.

WOMEN LEGISLATORS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Friday.

Upon the amendment inserted in the Legislative Council Reform Bill by the House, making women eligible to sit in the Upper Chamber, an attempt was made in the House to get a similar clause into the Legislature Amendment Bill referring to the popular Chamber. The clause was lost by only two votes.

The first three instalments of "The Times History of the War" are to hand, and they indicate that this history will prove a valuable work of reference. The first instalment deals with the political antecedents to the war, the German army, and German strategy; the second deals with the British, German, French, Russian, and Austrian navies, while the third treats of the French army and the army and fortresses of Belgium. The instalments are being issued weekly, and they will take up and continue the story of the war until the end of the great struggle. The history is well printed and profusely illustrated.

GAS COMPANY.

CHARGES DISMISSED.

The hearing of the information laid by the Chief Gas Inspector, Mr. Charles [illegible], against the Australian Gaslight Company, was continued at the Water Police Court yesterday, before Mr. G. L. King, S.M. The company was charged with supplying gas of insufficient candle-power. The information was laid under section 4 of the Gas Act of 1912.

Correspondence between the defendant company and certain witnesses, tendered by Mr. Bathgate as evidence for the Crown, was objected to by Mr. Knox (on behalf of the company), on the grounds of its dealing with the pressure of the gas and not its illuminating power, the charge under which they were appearing. The evidence was disallowed.

After further evidence had been taken, Mr. King dismissed the charges against the company.

FINANCIAL.

ECONOMIC PRESSURE ON GERMANY.

NO LESS POTENT THAN ARMS.

The object of war is to reduce the enemy to terms, not necessarily to take many enemy lives. The latter may happen, but the objective is not thereby changed. An enemy may be brought to terms through severe loss of life and physical exhaustion, or through exhaustion brought about by economic pressure. Both these forces are being applied by the Allies to Germany. The Russians on the East, the French, Belgians and British on the West, are hemming the enemy in, while the British Fleet is effectively blockading all German ports. So the Fatherland is completely shut in and forced to live entirely upon her own resources, apart from what she can obtain through those neutral countries, like Holland, Denmark, and Switzerland, whose borders run with her own. And it may well be assumed that none of those free countries are particularly well disposed towards their aggressive neighbour. Now, what does this economic pressure actually mean for Germany? We can only surmise.

Some notion may, however, be formed, and we have secured some facts from a German sources. In a Berlin paper published on August 6, that is after Great Britain joined the Allies, it is surmised that if a British blockade took place, imports into Germany of roughly six thousand millions marks (£300,000,000), and exports of about eight thousand million marks (£400,000,000), would be interrupted—together an oversea trade of 14 milliards of marks (£700,000,000). This is assuming that Germany's trade relations with Austria-Hungary, Switzerland, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden remained entirely uninfluenced by the war—an assumption the optimism of which is self-evident. A glance at the figures of the imports shows the frightful seriousness of the situation. What is the position, for example, of the German textile industry if it must forego the imports of oversea cotton, jute, and wool? If it must forego the 462 millions (£23,100,000) of cotton from the United States, the 73 millions (£3,650,000) of cotton from Egypt, the 58 millions (£2,900,000) of cotton from British India, the 100 millions (£5,000,000) of jute from the same countries, and, further, the 121 millions (£6,050,000) of merino wool from Australia, and the 23 millions (£1,150,000) of the same material from the Argentine? What could she do in the event of a war of longer duration without these raw materials, which in one year amount in value to 830 millions (£41,500,000)?

In the matter of food, Germany is not too badly off, though many difficulties of harvesting and transport must be daily encountered. Mr. J. Middleton, in the American edition of the "World's Work," examines the sources from which the foreign supplies come into that country, and the proportion produced at home. The main support of life is wheat, and next to wheat as a necessary comes meat. Germany produces annually about 149 million bushels of wheat, and imports 67 million bushels. The amount imported can, sooner or later, be almost entirely cut off. England holds command of the sea still, and German ships cannot use the North Sea nor the Mediterranean, where the British and French ships are on the watch. The greater part of the mercantile marine of Germany, on which so much money has been spent, is already reduced to lying idle in neutral ports. It would be extremely difficult to blockade the whole sea line of Britain, but it is comparatively easy to blockade the whole German coast facing the North Sea. Most of Germany's additional supplies came from Russia, with which she is now at war. In 1912 the imports of wheat into Germany were 558,422 tons from Russia, 546,439 tons from the Argentine, 269,530 tons from Canada, 446,510 tons from the United States, 322,590 tons from Australia. Now, not only the markets of Russia, but also those of Canada and Australia are closed to her.

The great associations of manufacturers, such as the Hansabund, appear to be very active in organising whatever trade there may be on an "Imperial" basis, so the Berlin correspondent of the "Economist" tells us. As far as food supplies go, it is boasted that Germany has now stocks for 18 months, which, with the necessary allowance for exaggeration, would agree more or less with the estimate of one year made in this letter three weeks ago. It may be pointed out that the Russian advance makes the prospects for the next harvest gloomy enough, since the great rye districts on which Germany depends will soon become the centre of war. A warning against the wholesale slaughter of young and breeding cattle suggests that the pinch is being felt here also.

As was inevitable, it is the poor who are already suffering most severely. According to "Vorwarts," an investigation carried out by trade-union officials reveals the fact that there were already a week ago more than 100,000 unemployed in Berlin, and in order to realise the full significance of these figures it must be remembered that, in addition, the whole able-bodied male population up to the age of 40 has already been taken away into the army. The removal of reservists, varying in different works roughly from 25 per cent. to 75 per cent. of the totals employed, instead of giving opportunities for more employment have made it necessary to shut down more works. According to the stories in "Vorwarts," some employers are taking a despicable advantage of their opportunity. They have reduced the wages of those remaining; and, instead of taking on new hands, are working overtime at reduced rates. According to the "Berliner Tageblatt" of August 26, the Berlin branch of the metal workers' union has 12 per cent unemployed, apart from the 20 per cent. of its members in the field, the wood-workers' union, again apart from those in the field, has 14,000 unemployed out of a total membership of 27,000. The masons' union, out of a membership of 12,000, has 2000 at the front and 2500 unemployed. The book-binders' union has 2300 unemployed, as compared with an average of 500. A third of the textile workers in Berlin are said by this Radical paper to be unemployed, but to judge from "Vorwarts," this figure is a far too moderate estimate. In the Solingen steel manufacture, again according to "Vorwarts," every branch of the industry, except the manufacture of weapons, is practically at a standstill. In Berlin at least it would seem impossible when work has been once lost to find more, and enormous crowds of people from every walk of life are said to wait outside the chief newspaper offices on the offchance of earning a few pfennigs by the sale of papers. The feeding of school children at public expense is being organised on a wholesale scale, and eating halls, where a midday meal can be obtained for 10 pfennigs, are being instituted in the poorer parts of the city. According to "Vorwarts" of the 25th, a form of unemployment insurance is now being organised under the spur of necessity. All those, whether labourers or members of the Liberal professions (freie Berufe), who have genuinely attempted to find work and have been unsuccessful are to be supported, though what form this support will take is not stated. What is the position to-day, nearly six weeks later?

TAYLOR BROS. (SYDNEY), LTD.

The first report of the above company covers the 12 months ended July 31. It shows a net profit of £4559, out of which a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. is proposed, absorbing £4182, leaving £377 to be carried forward. The year was marked by an almost total failure of the New South Wales fruit crop, more especially of the varieties suitable for canning, and, as a result, large purchases had to be made in the other States to cover requirements. This entailed much heavier expenditure for fruit supplies than had been anticipated. The assets and liabilities may be summarised as follow:—

LIABILITIES.		ASSETS.

PROPOSED AUSTRALIAN SMELTING COMPANY.

An abridged prospectus appears in our advertising columns of the Minerals and Metals Treatment Company, Ltd. The nominal capital is £20,000, divided into 2000 shares of £10 each, of which one-half are to be offered to the public and the other half held in reserve. There are no promoters' shares, underwriting, or goodwill. The scheme is to form a company to treat molybdenite, bismuth, wolfram, and other ores on a site which has been selected within three miles of the Sydney G.P.O. If the flotation be successfully carried through, it is expected that the works will be running at the commencement of next year, and that their establishment will be the means of keeping many miners at work who are now idle. The abridged prospectus, which is all that we have seen, gives no idea of costs, practicability, or possible profits. Doubtless the complete prospectus goes more into detail, and it would be advisable for intending investors to obtain a copy and judge for themselves as to the prospects. On general principles, it is undoubtedly desirable that where works of this character can be established locally, and run on business lines, the necessary capital should be forthcoming, so that in the event of any future war in Europe, Australia will not be in the dependent position in which she now stands.

A. M. P. SOCIETY.

The Australian Mutual Provident Society announces in our advertising columns that the next yearly distribution of the surplus will be made as at December 31 next, when all participating policies issued in the ordinary departments before the close of the current year, as well as those already existing on the books, will share in the bonus to be then distributed. The cash bonus divided among the members for the year 1913 was £982,527, representing reversionary additions to the face value of policies of about one and three-quarter millions sterling. Since its foundation the society has distributed among its members by way of cash bonuses nearly nineteen millions sterling.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

The oil market was quiet yesterday. Some holders of linseed oil were nervy, and, despite the efforts of most houses to keep up quotations were disposed to allow concessions on quoted rates of 4/ and 4/2 for first brands. Cables were received advising of an advance of ½d per gallon in the quotation for Thistle oil at 1/8¼ per gallon. Turpentine had a little business, 200 cases of Pinetree selling on the basis of 3/4. Whitelead was a trifle easier. Distributing lots of Champions were quoted as low as 44/ per cwt, and other brands from 42/ to 43/. The American whitelead referred to yesterday cost £38/10/ landed, but was sold at £40 per ton. The cost of landing Champion's whitelead in Sydney is an addition of £11 to the f.o.b. price, London, which to-day is £30 naked. Included in these costs are kegs, freight, ordinary insurance, war risk insurance, exchange, wharfage, cartage, stacking charges, and duty. The price of £30 is for a 25-ton parcel. Copra had a restricted demand for local use and for export freight difficulties were standing in the way, there being a shortage of tonnage. The quotation was £15/10/ per ton for sundries in bags f.o.b. export steamer.

The metal market was steady. Tinplates on spot were few, and were worth 19/3 to 19/6. The country was inquiring for imported wire netting, B grade, sizes 42in x 1½ x 18in, 36 x 1¼in x 17in, and 36in x 1¼in x 17in.

All the tea which arrived by the mail, and shipments were large, had practically been disposed of, and importers had closed up on all grades—common, medium, and fine. The trade took everything that was offering at full costs.

A little business was done in hempseed. A shipment from Kobe sold in the vicinity of £9 c.i.f. and e. plus war risk. Business was also done in canary seed, a limited quantity of Dutch seed was secured, and for this fairly good orders were received from all States.

The jute market was again lifeless, in the absence of any demand from the country. Cornsacks were quoted at 6/6 net to rails, while branbags were to be had at 5/6. A few orders were received for woolpacks at 6/1½ net to rails.

JUTE CANCELLATIONS.

APPEAL FROM INDIA.

The Minister for Trade and Customs has forwarded to the Sydney Chamber of Commerce the following copy of a cablegram received from the Viceroy of India:—

"Calcutta Jute Fabric Shippers' Association represent that owing to Emden incident and Government's transport requirements, all September shipments of jute fabric for Australia were late, and are only now beginning to be loaded on Sainthai and Chinware. Australian buyers have now wired cancellation of September contracts, no doubt in view of heavy fall in prices here owing to abovementioned causes. This move will further depress business here by impoverishing shippers who have bought shipments from mills. Would it be possible for the Government of India to move Chambers of Commerce through Governor-General of Australia, I should be most grateful if, in view of present stagnation of trade at Calcutta and shipping crisis caused by raids of Emden, your Excellency could kindly see your way to endorse this appeal to Australian buyers to extend contracts for favourable consideration. I should be glad to know whether any assurance favourable to Calcutta association can be given on the subject."

The Chamber of Commerce proposes submitting the matter to a meeting of jute importers on Wednesday next. When jute goods are short-shipped the importer here, under the Calcutta contract, has the right of cancellation, which he exercises if the goods will arrive too late for his purposes. Cancellations have lately been made owing to the falling off in the harvest.

BREADSTUFFS.

THE POSITION OF MILLERS.

Millers complain that operators who have contracted to sell them wheat at prices under 4/6 a bushel now refuse to give delivery, under the pretext that they are unable to obtain the actual grain. The sellers offer, however, to cancel on a cash basis. This, of course, does not suit millers who want the wheat, but they are powerless to do anything, for they find that in many cases the seller is a man of straw and not a man of substance, as they thought him to be when they entered into the contract. The millers point out that while those people who have contracted to sell wheat under 4/6 refuse to deliver, they themselves are forced to adhere to flour contracts made prior to the war, at prices materially lower than those recently proclaimed. In Melbourne the position appears to be much the same as in Sydney, and it is stated that holders of Victorian grain are resorting to questionable subterfuges in order to avoid delivery.

There was nothing doing in either new or old wheat yesterday. A few farmers indicated that they were prepared to sell small quantities of new wheat at 4/9, but of course there were no buyers at this price. Several operators holding new wheat contracts at 3/8 and 3/9 were willing to sell their interest in such contracts at 4/6, the buyer taking the risk of the original seller being able to make delivery when the time comes. These contracts, however, are not looked upon favourably by the trade, as it is felt that should the proposed meeting of grain dealers be held, and it be decided to cancel out at, say, 4/2, the man who had bought the contract at 4/6 would be in an unenviable position.

Flour was available at the proclaimed price of £9/17/6 a ton. Bran and pollard were quoted at £6/5/.

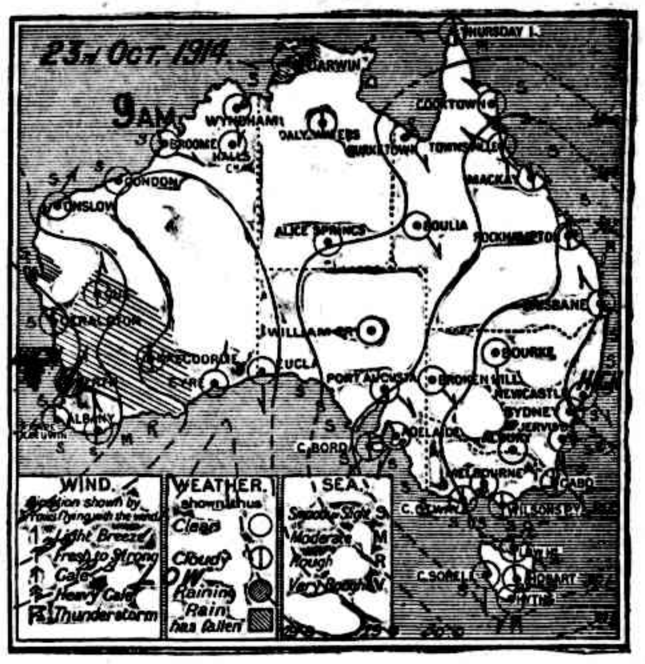
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The high pressure has expanded and increased slightly in energy during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday. The centre at present is situated between Sydney, Lord Howe Island, and Brisbane.

The energetic Antarctic disturbance which was over the southern Tasman Sea on Thursday has moved towards the south-east, and practically filled up.

A new one is over the Bight, but does not look too promising for rain. At present, the indications are more for heat than anything else, that is, as far as New South Wales is concerned.

Northerly winds will prevail, north-east on the coast, and probably north-west inland.

T. F. KNOX, Chairman } Directors.
ALFRED G. MILSON }
Sydney, 10th October, 1914.

H. P. BEDFORD, Manager.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the Report and Balance-sheet, said the balance at credit of Profit and Loss is £1,500 more than at the corresponding date last year, while, as regards our financial position, instead of a cash balance of £3476 in our favour a year ago, there is now the sum of £6720 shown under the heading of Sundry Creditors, a difference of £10,196. This, and the reduction in Loans on Mortgage of, say, £20,000, is accounted for on the Assets side by the progressive expenditure on the new premises.

Amongst the gratifying features of the figures now presented is the increase of the amount "AT CREDIT OF ESTATES NOW BEING ADMINISTERED BY THE COMPANY AS TRUSTEE OR EXECUTOR" for the year ended 30th June last, viz., from £3,254,447 to £3,606,026, showing a net increase, after allowing for Estates distributed, of £351,579. This speaks volumes for the care, energy, and good services of the manager, Mr. Bedford, and the staff under him, and in this connection I should like to impress upon shareholders the assistance they can give by recommending to their friends the advantages offered by this Company acting for them in the capacities of Executor, Trustee, or Agent. The functions of the Company, the duties it is prepared to perform, and the charges therefor, are set out on pages 12 to 15 of the printed report, and I commend the information therein given to those who are willing to aid in securing new business and thus extending our connection, and incidentally improving your position.

It was hoped that it would have been possible to hold to-day's meeting in our new building, but, owing to various circumstances over which we had no control, such as the closing of O'Connell-street for a period in order to lay down a pavement of Val de Travers (which has made it one of the most attractive streets in the city), and a lengthy spell of wet weather retarding the work of the contractor, we have not yet moved into our new offices, but expect to do so in the course of a few days, when it is hoped that the greater facilities and conveniences which will be provided therein for the management and staff, as well as for the Company's clients and the public generally, will assist in attracting business.

This Company's business is so intimately connected with financial matters that it may not be out of place, in view of the present situation, for me to say that, while the need for more money in certain directions is very great, and is accentuated by the partial paralysis of the world's markets for our wool and metal products (a condition of affairs that is due to the war, and likely, therefore, to last for some time yet, as far as one can gather from the public utterances of those best able to judge on the other side of the world), it is hoped that every caution will be exercised to limit the use of temporary expedients to relieve the pressure; otherwise, if depreciation of any monetary paper issue becomes a realised fact, or is even expected, it is highly probable that lengthy trouble may follow. Experience of others is at our disposal if we are willing, as a community, to learn therefrom how to avoid mistakes.

I am confident that you will join me in hoping for a continuance of the success which has hitherto attended the Company's operations, and which, as I said before, the members can, if they will use their influence, assist to improve.

Gentlemen, I congratulate you on the results, and have much pleasure in moving the adoption of the Report and Balance-sheet as now submitted, and the payment of a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The report as printed was adopted.

Mr. J. Moir and Mr. F. N. Yarwood were elected Directors, and Messrs. T. F. H. Mackenzie and G. Le M. Walker were elected Auditors.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Metropolitan sporting folk will be well catered for this afternoon with horse-racing at Canterbury Park, and pony and galloway racing at Victoria Park; while those who prefer to go further afield are provided with an outing at Broadmeadow, where the Newcastle Jockey Club holds its annual race meeting in aid of the local charities. The spring meeting of the Moonee Valley Club is the principal racing fixture in the vicinity of Melbourne, the Gawler Racing Club's fixture is the chief reunion in South Australia, and at Brisbane the Albion Park Jockey Club holds a meeting. In the provinces the Orange Jockey Club has a meeting in aid of the funds of the local hospital, and the Denman Racing Club provides an afternoon's sport.

The New South Wales Trotting Club has announced the programme for a meeting to be held at Epping racecourse on the 3rd prox. (Melbourne Cup day), and the prize-money totals 400 sovs, distributed over half a dozen events, the principal of which are the Epping Handicap of 75 sovs, and the Flying Handicap of 80 sovs; the Tramway Handicap carries 65 sovs, and each of the other races is endowed with 60 sovs. Nominations will be received by the secretary, Mr. R. C. Hungerford, up to 8 p.m. on Monday next, the 26th inst.

Racing will be resumed on the suburban tracks this afternoon, when the Canterbury Race Club holds its October reunion. Since the last racing fixture at Canterbury Park a new and commodious grandstand has been completed, and will be brought into use for the first time to-day. The course and its surroundings have benefited by the recent rainfall, though the going may be a trifle holding. The transit service by rail includes special trains, starting from the Central Railway Station at 11.50 a.m., 12.22, 12.37, 12.48, 12.50, 1.2, 1.16, and 1.22 p.m., while the ordinary traffic by the Belmore line will also be available, and a regular service of transit from Balmain, via Petersham, to Hurlstone Park, is provided every 20 minutes. The bill of fare is up to the customary standard, and the racing commences at 2 p.m. with the Railway Handicap, in which Barley Water, Malheur, and Arlanza may occupy the places. Quisita, Gardner, and Kolapore may pass the judge as named in the Park Stakes; and Sir Bronze, Litacea, and Welcome Light may divide the honours in the Juvenile Stakes. Maltasia, Truxton King, and Black Jester may claim the attention of the judge at the finish of the Stewards' Mile; Willow Green, Miss Mooltan, and Torula may fill the situations in the Grand Stand Handicap; while Malheur, Yohi, and Comedietta may get home as named in the Lawn Handicap.

Metropolitan race-goers who intend assisting at the Newcastle charities' meeting this afternoon can reach the scene of operations by leaving the Central Railway Station by the northern-bound trains at 6.40, 8.15, and 9.15 a.m., and the return trip can be made by the trains leaving the coaly city at 5.15 and 6.50 p.m. A highly-interesting bill of fare is down for discussion, and first-class sport may be anticipated.

Mr. J. Lamrock, secretary, invites nominations up to 4 p.m. on Monday next for the half-dozen events on the programme for the November meeting of the Moorefield Racing Club on the 7th prox. The prize-money aggregates 625 sovs, of which 125 sovs endows the November Handicap, and 100 sovs each for other races, which include an event for two-year-olds.

Victoria Park will this afternoon be the rendezvous for patrons of pony and galloway racing, and an interesting bill of fare holds forth promise of good sport. The track is reported to be good going, and the customary provision has been made for the requirements of visitors. The transit arrangements include special services from Circular Quay and the Railway-square loop, while the ordinary traffic to Zetland will also be available. Owing to the number of entries, several of the races will be run in divisions, and the first race is timed to start at 1 p.m. The results may be anticipated as under:—Flying Handicap—First Division: Hulbrook or Doongar; second division: Vocalist or Martin B. Fourteen-one Handicap.—First Division: Morpeth or Lord Deemster; second division: Lord Alwyn or Clotho. Hurdle Race: Rockweed, Sanlenda, Yucca. Maiden Handicap: Lady Veruna, Sunpan, Royal Flora. Fourteen-two Handicap.—First Division: Marie Clare or Ragtime; second division: China or Bobadil Maid. Victoria Park Handicap: Boree Goya, Argyle, Single. Encourage Stakes: Phast Lad, Speculate, Renlight.

At a meeting of the Dubbo Hibernian Race Club (writes our local correspondent) the balance-sheet of the first meeting was presented, showing a profit of £79 17s 2d. An honorarium of £10 10s was voted to the secretary, Mr. J. White.

The next fixture of the Kembla Grange Racing Club is for the 3rd prox., and entries for the half-dozen events on the programme, for which the prize money aggregates 290 sovs, must be lodged with the secretary, Mr. A. H. Hart, before 4 p.m. on Monday next.

M.A. (Lithgow).—Posinatus is now in Melbourne.

Horse-owners and trainers should note that, on Tuesday next at 4 p.m., entries for the Perth Cup of 2000 sovs, 2m., and the Railway Stakes of 1000 sovs, 1¼m., to be run at the annual meeting of the Western Australian Turf Club on December 28 and 30, respectively, and the W.A.T.C. St. Leger Stakes (for now three-year-olds), of 750 sovs., 1⅝m., close with the secretary, Mr. George H. Wickham, while nominations can also be lodged with the secretary of the A.J.C., Sydney, V.R.C., Melbourne, and S.A.J.C., Adelaide.

Arrangements have been made by the Canterbury Park authorities to have the result of the Moonee Valley Cup sent across by special wire, which will be posted in the reserves on arrival.

Final forfeit for the V.R.C. Melbourne Cup falls due at 4 p.m. on Tuesday next, and all horses remaining in after that hour will be decreed acceptors, incurring the full liability for the stake.

A race meeting will be held at Bowral on the 21st prox., and the six-event programme framed for the occasion carries in the aggregate 46 sovs. prize money. Entries will be received by the secretary, Mr. J. White, up to 8 p.m. on November 10.

VICTORIAN SPORTING NOTES.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

J. Musgrave overlooked the fact that forfeits for the Moonee Valley Cup had to be declared yesterday. Five horses trained by him—Aleconner, Amata, The Sap, Defence, and Maltravers—were left in, but it is understood that only Amata and The Sap will run to-morrow.

REGARDING NO-BALLING A BOWLER.

"Interested" (Goulburn) writes:—"I have been under the impression that in cricket it is customary to caution a bowler before 'no-balling' him. I am sure, or nearly sure, that I have seen that, too, in an article somewhere or other by J. B. Hobbs. I had an argument about it the other day, and would like to know if it really is a kind of unwritten law not to 'no-ball' a bowler without first giving him warning. At any time it is apt to disconcert a bowler."

Answer: There are two kinds of no-balls—one, when the bowler's foot is not on the ground behind the bowling crease and within the return crease; the other, when the action of the delivery is unfair. However, there is no unwritten law on the matter. The umpire must administer the law—not cautions.

With regard to unfair bowling, rule 48 says: "If either umpire be not satisfied of the absolute fairness of the delivery of any ball he shall call 'no-ball.'" And in its "Instructions to Umpires" (which are incorporated in the laws) the Marylebone Club says, "Law 48: The special attention of umpires is called to this law, which directs them to call 'no-ball' unless absolutely satisfied of the fairness of the delivery."

It will thus be seen that, if the law were administered firmly by umpires, bowlers with doubtful deliveries would soon disappear. Umpires wrongly interpret the rules, as they never "call" a bowler unless they are certain that he throws. They should "call" him when there is the least doubt about the delivery.

When law 11 is broken, i.e., when one of the bowler's feet is not behind the bowling crease, and within the return crease, the umpire must call "no-ball" instantly. To caution a bowler who transgresses in this respect would be unfair to the opposing side.

ATHLETICS.

NEW SOUTH WALES ASSOCIATION.

TWO OFFICIALS RESIGN.

At the council meeting of the New South Wales Amateur Athletic Association on Thursday evening it was decided to secede from the Amateur Sporting Federation. As a result, the chairman, Mr. G. F. Woolridge (G.P.S.A.A.A.) and the hon. secretary, Mr. W. B. Alexander, tendered their resignations, and refused to reconsider them, although a motion to that effect was passed unanimously.

The trouble arose out of the question as to whether the Rugby League footballers are professionals, irrespective of whether they receive money or not. The Sporting Federation some time ago ruled that they were, and since then there has been a good deal of dissatisfaction.

The retiring members spoke against the proposal, and warned those responsible for it that it would affect the future of the association.

Mr. Richard Coombes, president of the association, is strongly opposed to the decision of the council, and intends to combat it. Some of the affiliated bodies of the association may resign as a result of the decision.

POWER BOATING.

MOTOR YACHT CLUB.

The second of the series of popular lectures arranged by the Motor Yacht Club of New South Wales will be given at the clubrooms on Tuesday evening, November 3, when members will be advised on the best method of carrying out a cruise to the Hawkesbury River.

Captain Thompson, of the Navigation Department, who recently lectured before the members on "the rule of the road" as it applied to the traffic in Sydney Harbour, states that he did not advise the coxswains of motor boats to keep to "port" when crossing the entrance to Circular Quay in either direction, but to keep to "starboard." Thus a motor boat travelling west in the direction of the Parramatta River should keep as close as practicable to the Milson's Point side, and when travelling towards the sea should keep on the city side. In either case, however, the coxswain should give way to both incoming and outgoing ferry boats.

ROWING.

HEAVY BOAT CHAMPIONSHIP.

A race to decide which of our heavy-boat rowers is entitled to be called "heavy-boat champion of New South Wales" will be rowed over a two-mile course at Middle Harbour this afternoon. There are five entrants, viz., Ben Thoroughgood (Stockton), W. Ripley (Hexham), H. Pickering (George's River), and Sid and Arthur Pearce (Double Bay). Of these, Thoroughgood has had the longest and most successful career in the type of craft to be used in to-day's race, whilst Syd. Pearce has won some good match races in similar boats. The other three are young and vigorous scullers in heavy boats, and the contest generally has a very open aspect. Five equal 16ft boats from Harry Pearce's shed at the Spit will be used. Each sculler has contributed £5 to the prize fund, of which the winner will receive £20, and the second man £5. In addition, the winner will take a gold medal presented by Mr. T. P. Dessaix, and secure a "leg-in" for the Percy Marks's 50 guinea trophy. The steamer Cowan will leave Fort Macquarie at 2.45 p.m. and the Spit at 3.15 p.m., to follow the race.

AMUSEMENTS.

MAUD ALLAN AT THE THEATRE ROYAL.

The farewell appearance of the celebrated classic dancer, Maud Allan, should prove a notable attraction at the Theatre Royal to-night, where that artist, in association with Leo, Jan, and Mischel Cherniavsky, will play a season of six nights, with a matinee on Wednesday, under the Angus Macleod direction. Miss Allan's first season here was cut short by a strained ankle, but she has since danced with success at Perth and elsewhere, so that playgoers need not feel apprehensive. The star will, of course, include her elaborate scenic setting of the tragic "Vision of Salome," whilst novelties in the programme will include Grieg's beautiful suite from the incidental music to Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," in which she will illustrate in dance "Morning Voices," "The Death of Ase," "Anitra's Dance," and "In the Hall of the Mountain King." The "Blue Danube" valse will be included. Besides classic trios for violin, piano, and 'cello, the Cherniavsky brothers will render some captivating solo pieces. The plan is at Nicholson's and at Hill's, as notified.

GILBERT-SULLIVAN OPERA.

The revival of Gilbert-Sullivan opera, after a silence of eight years, has drawn large audiences during the week to Her Majesty's Theatre, where that gay opera "The Gondoliers," now in its last six nights, with a matinee on Wednesday, has reasserted all its former fascination. Next Saturday the J. C. Williamson direction will produce the beautiful opera "Iolanthe," with the following cast:—The Lord Chancellor, Chas. R. Walenn; Earl Mountararat, Frank Wilson; Earl Tolloller, Edward M'Keown; Private Willis, Albert Kavanagh; Strephon, G. Villiers; Arnold; Iolanthe, Dorothy Vane; Fairy Queen, Ethel Morrison; Leila, Pearl Ladd; Celia, Kate May; Fleta, Mary Morris-Smith; and Phyllis, Ruth Lincoln.

LITTLE THEATRE.

"Lord and Lady Algy," shortly to be replaced by "The Lady of Lyons," is most amusingly presented at the Little Theatre, and is one of those things play-goers would not readily miss. The attempted elopement of Mrs. Tudway (Lilian Lloyd) with the Marquis (Mr. Kay Souper), the tactful interposition of Lord Algy (Hugh Buckler), the arrival of the infuriated husband (Arthur Cornell), and the "clearing up showers," which end with a reconciliation between Algy and his wife (Violet Paget), close the piece brilliantly. There will be a matinee on Thursday.

CRITERION THEATRE.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate," the London production of which is referred to in our "Music and Drama" column, is drawing packed houses at the Criterion Theatre, where Fred Niblo and Josephine Cohan seem to have "struck oil" once more in overflowing quantities. There will be another matinee of this mystery farce on Wednesday.

PALACE THEATRE.

"The Glad Eye" has caught the public fancy at the Palace Theatre, and is now certain to run out the rest of the month's season at that play-house. Ethel Dane, as Kiki, exhibits a subtle charm, which gives point to every brief scene in which she appears, and no end of laughter is caused by Messrs. Shelford, Ford, Bradley, Landor, Misses Hamilton, Whittaker, and other artists. Matinees at the Palace are on Thursdays.

Miss Eveline Douglas, a clever actress from the Bertram Flohm studios, will appear for the rest of the season in place of Miss Dorothy Whittaker, who sails to-day for London.

ADELPHI THEATRE.

The new "war prices" have proved immensely popular at the Adelphi Theatre, and the great house has been packed nightly. This afternoon (2 o'clock) and evening, George Willoughby, Ltd., will stage for six nights only Mrs. Morton Powell's sensational domestic drama, "Driving a Girl to Destruction." Vera Remee will appear as the heroine, Oriel Hotson as the victim, Gwen Dorise as Mme. de Meral, Fanny Erris as a barmaid, Nell Holroyd as a cripple boy, George Cross as a sailor, Carl Francis as the vicar, Ronald Riley as Lucas List. The picturesque scenery will be by J. S. Mann.

AMATEUR ORCHESTRAL SOCIETY.

The third concert of the twenty-third season of the Sydney Amateur Orchestral Society will be given in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening next, when Mr. Alfred Hill will present an especially attractive programme. Henri Staell will play the solo part in Beethoven's great concerto for violin and orchestra. Mr. Arthur Appleby will be the vocalist. The plan is at Paling's.

ROYAL PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The Royal Philharmonic Society will give a great patriotic concert in aid of the Belgian Distress Relief Fund at the Town Hall on Saturday, November 7. Mr. Joseph Bradley will conduct the orchestra (led by M. Staell), and chorus of some 400 performers in a splendid programme of spirited music, to which leading artists will contribute, and the whole is expected to form a memorable occasion.

TOWN HALL ORGAN RECITAL.

This evening the City Organist will give a recital at the Town Hall, the first part of which will embrace the whole of the opening act of that entrancing opera, "La Boheme." Part II. will include Lemmens' "Fanfare," Morandi's "Bell Rondo," a Rhapsodie by Saint-Saens, and the overture and Death Song from "Tristan and Isolde."

MRS. PERRINS' PUPILS' RECITAL.

This evening the elocutionary pupils of Mrs. Perrins will join in a recital at St. James' Hall, one of the features of which will be a little fairy play, written by Sylvia Magnus. Miss Amy Perrins will contribute a new musical monologue, Miss Dorothy Perrins will sing, Messrs. Leslie and Eric Herford will assist, and the programme will be completed by humorous and dramatic recitations. The plan is at Paling's.

DULWICH HILL PATRIOTIC CONCERT.

On Monday night the Ramblers Comedy Club will give an entertainment of humorous sketches, with musical items by leading artists, at the Dulwich Hill Masonic Hall, in aid of the local patriotic fund.

LADY DUDLEY'S HOSPITAL CONCERT.

Lady Dudley's practically equipped hospital at the front will benefit by a patriotic entertainment at the Repertory Theatre to-night, when Miss Amy Murphy and Mr. Ellis Price will direct affairs, as well as sing and recite. Lucky seat-holders will secure handsome prizes, and the assisting artists will be Mrs. Alexander Gordon, Misses Alicia Nolan, Francie Anderson, Sylvia Roberts, Elsie Black, Mary Dowling, Messrs. Philip Wilson, Bryce Carter, Mowat Carter, Maurice Price, Frank Hutchens, Gerald Cooper. The plan is at Nicholson's, the concert being under the honorary direction of Mr. A. Stanley Warwick.

LAWRENCE CAMPBELL'S STUDENTS.

A recital in aid of the Belgian Fund will be given in St. James's Hall on Tuesday next by the students of the Lawrence Campbell School of Public Speaking and Dramatic Art. A special feature will be the reappearance of little Cecil Haines and Master Jack Radford in the "Quarrel Scene" between Sir Peter and Lady Teazle. Misses Frances Anderson, Dorothea Cracknell, Bessie Rogers, Molly Carmody, Edna Smith, and E. Potter, Messrs. Gibb, Cowie, and N. Anschau will assist. The plan is now open at Nicholson's.

DE CAIROS REGO RECITAL.

The pupils from the studios of Messrs. G. De Cairos Rego and Rex De Cairos Rego will unite in a vocal and pianoforte recital at the Repertory Theatre next Wednesday evening. Those assisting in an attractive programme will be Mrs. Kirwan, Miss Essie Milligan, Miss Muriel Hinchy, and Mr. Milton Jarvie (vocal), Misses Dulcie Butcher, Enid Elliott, Phyllis Perry, Marjorie Roberts, Doris Trenberth, and Jessie Trindle (piano). Cards at the studios or at Paling's.

MR. PHILIP NEWBURY'S FAREWELL.

Mr. Philip Newbury, who is shortly leaving upon a tour of the East, followed by a visit to the Cape and England, will make his farewell appearance at the Town Hall next Saturday evening. The favourite tenor, who will sing some fine music, will be supported by Mmes. Emily Speda and Slapoffski, Miss Lilian Frost, Miss Gertrude Palmer (her reappearance), Messrs. Henri Staell, Chas. Schmiedt, W. H. Fletcher, and Ernest Truman. The plan is at Nicholson's, where popular prices are announced.

MISS DULCIE BLAIR'S RECITAL.

Miss Beryl Murray will direct a violin recital given by her pupil, Miss Dulcie Blair, at St. James's Hall next Saturday, when leading artists will assist. Plan and invitations are at Paling's.

MOSMAN MUSICAL SOCIETY.

The Mosman Musical Society will, at the Warringah Hall, Neutral Bay, on November 10, 11, 12, and 14, revive the opera, "Haddon Hall," which was the first work undertaken by Sir Arthur Sullivan after the dissolution of the partnership that had existed for 15 years between W. S. Gilbert, D'Oyly Carte, and himself. The plot deals with the well-known heroine, Dorothy Vernon, of Haddon Hall, and the setting of the romantic story, was written by Sydney Grundy, whose ventures in this direction, "The Vicar of Bray," had then achieved great success.

MRS. GLANVILLE'S RED CROSS CONCERT.

On Tuesday, November 3, at St. James's Hall an elocutionary entertainment will be given in aid of the Red Cross Funds by the pupils of Mrs. Glanville, who will be assisted by the Petersham Glee Club and Mr. Chas. Miller. The plan opens to-day at Paling's.

ANCELON-CHAPMAN RECITALS.

The plan is now open at Paling's for the Ancelon-Chapman School of Elocution recital, which is to take place in St. James's Hall on November 5. Visitors will be pleased to learn that the Red Cross benefited to the extent of £30 by the last Ancelon-Chapman recital.

MR. MONTGOMERY STUART'S RECITAL.

On Monday, November 9, Mr. Montgomery Stuart will give an entertainment at St. James's Hall in aid of the Belgian Fund, when he will both recite and sing (accompanist, Mrs. Stuart). The Viol Quintet will assist. The plan opens at Paling's next Wednesday.

STUDENTS' PATRIOTIC CONCERT.

On Wednesday evening last Madame Christian directed a musical and dramatic evening at the Gaiety School of Music, the proceeds of which were devoted to the Patriotic Fund. An audience of about 300 people enjoyed a programme which included the National Anthem and "Rule Britannia" by the junior students, ably assisted by Miss Queenie Fenton, Messrs. Cyril Horan, Buchell Benbow, Frank Mitchell, and John Mackay. Scenes from "Julius Caesar," "The Merchant of Venice," and "The School for Scandal" formed the second half of the programme, Mr. Benbow, after singing "The Gallants of England," was presented by the students with a Union Jack.

This afternoon from 2.30 to 5 p.m. a great demonstration of Sydney's Free Kindergarten will be given at the Town Hall under Vice-regal and other distinguished patronage. Hundreds of children will be seen brightly at work and at play, and visitors are recommended to bring their own young people to enjoy the juvenile entertainment.

MOSMAN PATRIOTIC CONCERT.

Despite the inclement state of the weather the capacity of the Mosman Town Hall was fully taxed on Monday night, when a thoroughly enjoyable concert was given by Fraulein Jensen, and included the national anthems of the allied nations and orchestral selections by the pupils' orchestra; items by Miss Linda Medway (contralto), Miss Lilian Guyder (mezzo-soprano), and Messrs. R. Arnold and Willis (baritones); recitations by Mr. R. Cowie; Miss Edna Marks; and instrumental solos by Miss Bourke (violin), Messrs. MARKET BRIGHTER, BUT BUSINESS DULL.

ADELAIDE AND MELBOURNE CHEERFUL.

Though the Sydney Stock Exchange showed no improvement yesterday morning in the amount of business transacted, it was clearly noticeable that there was a better feeling existing. A like improvement was noticeable in the telegraphic reports from the Adelaide and Melbourne Stock Exchanges.

This change was attributed to the more favourable character of the war news. Indeed, many operators were quite cheerful in their summing up of the improved position occupied by the allied forces in France, but they were not in a position to back their opinion that the tide had at last turned, and relieve their clients of all doubt and uncertainty as to whether the worst had been reached. But the belief was there all the same.

There was no alteration in the state of the market during the afternoon. Business was practically dead, but the improved feeling noticed in the morning was again in evidence, and showed itself in sales at firm rates in British Broken Hill (old), Broken Hill Junction North, and Mount Morgan.

MINING NOTES.

Mr. E. S. Thompson, of Windeyer, writes:—"Will you answer the following questions:—(1) If a gold miner holds a miner's right, paying the Government the full value, which, namely, is 5s per year, can a shire council tax him on his miner's right the sum of 2s 6d or any other sum? (2) Have they any power to come on him in any way. No. 1—No. No. 2—If he is the holder of a mining tenement by virtue of his miner's right he is taxable under the Shires Act.

Samples of ore from the mine of the Great Northern Amalgamated Syndicate, about 28 miles north-west of Armidale, are to be seen at the office of Mr. H. E. A. Miller, Mercantile Mutual-chambers, Pitt-street. They were taken from an open cut sunk on an outcrop that is said to be traceable for 600 yards. The gangue is opalitic rock of a granite nature, and carries about 5 per cent. of molybdenite. Some of the ore has been taken by the Mines Department for the purpose of exhibiting it at the Panama Exhibition.

The general manager reports of the Ballina Gold and Mineral Company that the erection of the seven additional concentrators and the widening of the boxes, as decided on two months ago, have been completed, and the same have had a satisfactory trial run. He adds that the dredge will be in full swing on Monday next, October 26.

The dredges of the Araluen Redbank Gold Dredging Company, no liability, for the week ended October 23, obtained 122oz gold.

During the fortnight ended October 9 the plat at the 810ft level of the Girofla main shaft was extended to 16ft, and narrowed down to form a drive, when it was carried on another 24ft. This passed through ore which went underfoot, followed by occasional boulders in the face to 32ft. At the same level a drive was started north, and is now 10ft in ore. All the east plat and drive were in friable ore, intermixed with boulders of hard ore, the whole of much better quality than hitherto met with, and the face of the north drive is of the same quality, but in a harder, blocky formation. At the Lady Jane mine the water has receded a further 18in in the fortnight.

The manager of the Pioneer Tin-mining Company (Tas.) telegraphs:—"Have cleaned up for 44 tons of stream tin." The above return is for six weeks ended October 17.

Reporting for the fortnight ended October 8, the manager of the Tyrconnell Gold Mines Company, Q., states that he sent 82 tons of stone to the hoppers, and would clean up Monday. The result of this clean-up has already been wired, namely, 228oz from 95 tons. At the 150ft level the north drive has been extended to 63ft. The stone is small and poor. The south winze was sunk to 85ft, and showed good stone all the way. At the 200ft level the north branch drive cut the reef at 91ft, and footwall at 106ft. The reef at this point is 15ft wide, and highly payable. The stope is looking well. The new electric pumping plant has been installed, and is awaiting the cable, which is expected daily. The mill is still short of water; hence the battery can only crush about 10 hours daily.

The fall in the price of tin, which started last year, has been a severe blow even to the cheaply-manned tin-dredging plants operating in the Federated Malay States. The report of the North Tambun Tin Mines, to be submitted at the half-yearly meeting convened to be held in Melbourne on October 20, shows that, in addition to a decline in the six months' output of tin oxide from 88 tons 5cwt 3qr 18 2-3lb to 70 tons 14cwt 10 2-3lb, the most disappointing feature was the drop in the sale rate of the output from £113/9/5 to £97/5/10 per ton. This double decline in output and value meant a drop from £10,018/4/5 to £6878/15/9 in the value of the half-year's output. Fortunately for the company the yardage treated had increased from 158,500 to 271,500 cubic yards, whilst the cost of treatment per cubic yard had decreased from 11.06d to 9.31d. As the manager remarks in his report, "although the yardage is increased, the price of tin has slumped considerably, especially in June, requiring now practically double the amount to pay working expenses."

MOLYBDENITE.

THE QUESTION OF PRICE.

The quotation of 92/6 to 95/ per unit for molybdenite disulphide—the molybdenite as it comes from the ore body—as published in Tuesday's issue, was not given as the official quotation of the London metal market, but as the price obtainable locally, namely, up to £475 per ton. Information (cabled) received privately last week stated that the mineral was worth £6/5/ per unit, or slightly over £593 per ton. At least, that was the offer received locally for several tons of Australian mineral now in London. Judging by the contents of a letter received on Wednesday by a well-known Sydney man largely interested in molybdenite, it is evident that English metal buyers and manufacturers are determined to try and get the trade in molybdenite, wolfram, and other metals hitherto controlled by Germany.

The letter in question said:—"You can do nothing now with molybdenite, or any other mineral or metal with German buyers. The whole question of molybdenite, wolfram, etc., is being discussed here (London) just now, and I think that the trade, as a result, will be entirely captured for this country. I am told that some very big Sheffield firms are displaying an active and lively interest in this business."

The refining furnaces for changing the mineral molybdenite into the metal molybdenum are not confined to Germany. In fact, the bulk of the smelting is done in the south of France, and the assumption is that the furnaces are still working. It is evident from the letter referred to that British metal men are putting their heads together to secure the smelting of molybdenite concentrates. Moreover, if it is stated that the concentrates can only be refined by high-powered electrical furnaces, such as they have in France and Germany, and if they have ceased work, there are the high-powered furnaces of Norway to fall back on. Moreover, late advices from America state that that country is going into the production of metal from molybdenite and wolfram concentrates.

The fact that molybdenite has increased in price during the war, whilst that of wolfram has fallen, shows that the English manufacturer wants one metal more than the other. True, in armour-plating and for other purposes, both are used as an alloy in combination, but for toughening bullet points as well as the mouths of siege and other big guns, molybdenite is used solely. Possibly there are other grounds for the difference in the price of the two metals. Nevertheless, it is satisfactory for Australia to know that, notwithstanding the sudden stoppage of the German trade, the price of molybdenite has kept up. This can be said of no other metal, except bismuth.

MINING IN THE STATE.

WINGHAM, Friday.

The manager of the Mount Peerless Gold-Mining Company, Upper Bowman, reports that work was started about nine months ago by driving the tunnel north and south along the line of reef. The mine is situate on the side of a mountain, and is over 800ft above the Bowman River waters. After driving some little distance in the north tunnel a good shoot of gold ore was met with, and continued for 60ft. The reef averages from 10in to 12in, and is well defined. The reef under foot prospects well, and making in width. In driving the south end tunnel a very fair-sized reef was met with, carrying favourable prospects. Several tons of ore are now at grass, taken from the north drive. Eleven samples sent for assay gave returns from 7dwt to 7oz 19dwt per ton. The Bowman mines are not 20 miles from Gloucester.

MOUNT LYELL FIELD.

LAUNCESTON, Thursday.

Ore production at the Mount Lyell Company's mines is in full progress, an aggregate quantity of about 27,000 tons a month being sent to the smelters, where three furnaces are in constant operation. Excellent progress continues to be made with the Lake Margaret scheme, which is now within a few weeks of completion.

CO-OPERATION AT BISCHOFF.

LAUNCESTON, Friday.

The first report from the Mount Bischoff mine since the institution of the co-operative system of working has been made available. The various faces are producing average grade material, and 5747 tons of crush dirt was treated by the milling and concentrating plant, produced 21 tons of concentrates.

SHALE OIL INDUSTRY.

LATROBE, Friday.

The success of the Railton-Latrobe Shale Oil Company in treating the shale deposits in the Latrobe district, abandoned by the old Tasmanian Shale Oil Company, has again directed attention to the industry. Mr. W. H. Cundy reported favourably on the property, which has an area of 1500 acres, and is estimated to contain 8,000,000 tons of shale. The plant at present working comprises four retorts, and handles 12 tons of shale daily, for an average of 40 gallons of oil per ton. The products include motor spirit, turps, a substitute for rubber solvent, spray oil, and fuel oil.

ZINC CORPORATION.

RESTARTING WORK.

BROKEN HILL, Friday.

Mr. C. G. Hylton, general superintendent of the Zinc Corporation, stated to-day he had not yet received any definite instructions about restarting work on the mine, though he expects, as the cable at the beginning of the week stated, that operations will be resumed shortly. Meantime, the Corporation has recommenced the despatch of concentrates to the Proprietary Company at Port Pirie.

The first shipment was made to-day. Approximately about 500 tons of leady concentrates will be sent away weekly.

Concerning the making of zinc shavings for cyanide plants in the west, Mr. Hylton stated that experiments had been made on works to provide shavings, but so far without success.

GOLDEN SPRINGS MINE.

BATHURST, Friday.

An application from the lessees of the Golden Springs gold mine for a three months' suspension of labour conditions was to-day considered by the mining warden. Evidence was given that during the past two years the lessees had spent £2700, of which £1300 was subscribed by individual members of the syndicate. Mr. John Whear Roberts, manager, stated that the mine workings were flooded when the present company entered into possession. A pumping plant was installed, and vigorous pumping operations commenced. The main shaft was retimbered from the surface to the water level. A serious breakdown in September, 1914, resulted in the reflooding of the mine. Negotiations were then opened with a Melbourne syndicate, with a view to securing financial assistance, but the tightness of the money market had so far impeded the progress of the scheme. The warden said he would not grant suspension on leases under a cloud of an undisposed complaint, but would adjourn the hearing until the next Court. He would, however, recommend to the Minister that the company be allowed a suspension of two months, within which to comply with the necessary labour covenants.

KAMPONG KAMUNTING TIN-DREDGING, LTD.

In his report for the month of August, Mr. A. W. Freeman, managing director of the above company, states:—"I arrived back in Taiping early in the month, and towards its close Mr. J. S. Henry and his assistants reached Penang with the first shipment of dredge material, after a delay of about two weeks at Batavia. The machinery has since been loaded on to railway trucks, and is now being unloaded at the company's siding at Kamunting. The unloading and classification of the material will occupy two or three weeks, and towards the close of September erection will begin.

All preparatory works and buildings are well in hand, and with the completion of a tin-dressing shed and tin storeroom—work which can well be deferred for some months yet—expenditure in this direction will almost cease. A shipment of dredge material for Kamunting T.D., Ltd., London, arrived almost simultaneously with ours, and has already been conveyed to its erection site."

TIN MINING REPORTS.

Bourke's Hill Tin Sluicing (Emmaville) Oct. 17:—Making arrangements to shift No. 1 Plant to new site to be in readiness to resume operations when metal market re-opens.

Elsmore Tin Sluicing (Elsmore), Oct. 17:—Sinking prospecting shaft on flat near Sunlight face, where good deep alluvial tin has previously been proved.

Butler's Tin Mines (Torrington) Oct. 13:—Excavations; trimming two top vanner benches and excavating on lowest bench. Battery engine site almost ready. Put in boiler foundations and awaiting inspector to test boilers.

RADIUM HILL COMPANY, NO LIABILITY.

Mr. Radcliff reports for the three weeks ended October 10 as follows:—"No smelting is in progress, but the fractionation of chloride is proceeding as usual. The whole of the radium barium chloride from 9 tons 12cwt of concentrates smelted in August have now been recovered, with the satisfactory result that 610 grammes of chloride were recovered per ton of concentrates, as against a former average recovery of 240 grammes per ton of concentrates. This shows a decided improvement in the extraction. Uranium in the works tailing was 0.15 per cent., as against 0.20 per cent., and the tailings showed no detectable radio-activity."

The mine manager reports for the four weeks ended September 28 as under:—"110ft level: Drive east, advanced for month 15ft 6in; total measurement, 72ft 6in. 110ft level: Drive west, advanced for month 27ft; total measurement, 88ft."

The mine manager wired on the 10th inst. that the new plant was completed, and had started work that day, running smoothly and quite successfully, and everything points to a steady and increased output of concentrates. On the 17th inst. a wire was received stating that the drought had broken, and splendid rain was falling at the mine, thus ensuring ample water supply.

An exceptionally fine display of roses and hippeastrums was to be seen at the spring show of the Horticultural Society of New South Wales, held at St. James's Hall yesterday afternoon and evening. The stage section of the hall was covered with a fine array of palms, an exhibit from the Botanic Gardens, and below this, showing forth in fine contrast, was a display of hippeastrums. Exquisite colourings were to be seen in the champion rose section, in which the award was made to Mr. L. H. Newman for a George Dickson variety. Mr. W. H. Chapman, with some King White varieties, was awarded the prize for a champion sweet-pea spray. Mr. H. H. B. HEAT WAVE CONDITIONS.

EARLY RELIEF LIKELY.

With the centre of the high pressure situated on the central and North Coast of New South Wales, and the rear isobars of the system over the mainland, and running from northern to southern areas, the pressure distribution yesterday morning was one which favoured heat wave conditions.

In New South Wales since 9 a.m. on Thursday, a further rise has occurred in the temperature generally. Newcastle at 9 a.m. yesterday was 11 deg. warmer than at the same hour on Thursday, and Coonabarabran, Dubbo, and Bathurst each 9 deg. higher.

The highest readings reported from western districts were:—Narrandera 97 deg., Balranald 95, and Euston each 94, Urana, Cudgellico, and Wentworth each 93, and Condobolin, Wagga, and Barmedman each 92.

The lowest registrations yesterday morning occurred on the southern tablelands, where Kiandra was 55 deg., and Kosciusko and Bombala each 37. Elsewhere the minimum readings were all either in the 40's or 50's (deg.).

The only rainfall received in New South Wales during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday was 13 points at Gresford and three points at Manning Heads.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was fine and clear generally.

An Antarctic disturbance has been operating over Western Australia, and resulted in light to moderate rainfall over the south-western half of that State. Esperance (on the Bight) had 160 points, and Southern Cross (on the goldfields) 80 points. This disturbance should, by early next week, affect New South Wales, both with rain and a cool southerly change, and thus relieve the heat conditions indicated for the next day or two.

RAILWAY BUILDING.

MR. GRIFFITH'S STATEMENT.

The Minister for Public Works referred yesterday to comments recently made that during his tenure of office he had handed over to the Railway Commissioners only one or two small sections of completed railway lines, and that the whole of the twelve lines now under construction represented up to the present dead money, and produced no revenue.

"In the place of spending available money," Mr. Griffith said, "on railway stations, stationmasters' residences, signalling appliances, and all the many and costly appurtenances of a fully-equipped railway line, I have adopted the policy of pushing as far ahead into the country as possible with the rails, and, as soon as they are down, hauling goods and passengers with the construction engines to the nearest point of the Commissioners' system. Following out this principle, there are to-day, on lines still under construction, the following sections carrying goods and passengers:—Muswellbrook to Denman, 26 miles; Galong to Burrowa, 18 miles; Garah to Mungindi, 41 miles; Dunedoo to Binnaway, 44 miles; Wagga to Tarcoola, 33 miles; Stockinbingal to Bribaree Creek, 30 miles; Taree to Kendall, 26 miles; Grafton to Glenreagh, 27 miles; Coff's Harbour to Bellingen, 17 miles—making a total of over 250 miles.

"These sections," added the Minister, "do not appear among the lines handed over to the Commissioners, but they are doing the necessary work of enabling the settlers to get their produce to market."

ROBBERIES.

In Eveleigh-street, Redfern, at 1.30 a.m. on Thursday, Alfred Diews was set upon and robbed by three men of his watch and chain. The thieves decamped in a sulky.

Mary Morgan's grocer's shop in Kent-street was broken into on Thursday and provisions, etc. valued at £20, were stolen.

By forcing a door open with a spade a thief secured jewellery valued at £4 from H. Chapman's house in Enfield.

Alice Marr had her handbag, containing £8 15s, stolen from a telephone bureau at the General Post Office.

Peter Bastion's shop in Birrell-street, Waverley, was broken into on Tuesday. Tobacco and pipes worth £13 and £6 in silver were stolen.

FIVE MEN INJURED.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

A serious accident happened at Rockbank, about 20 miles from Melbourne, this morning, while five men were engaged in blasting operations on the railway line, working on the erection of a semaphore. They were blasting a hole with gelignite. Three charges went off, and the men returned to the spot. One of them, named George Nelson, started to use his pick, when a loud explosion took place. Nelson was severely injured about the face and head, while the four other men were also injured. It is feared that one will lose an eye. The injured men were conveyed to Melbourne, and taken to Melbourne Hospital.

NEW WHEAT.

COMMISSION'S INQUIRY.

The Necessary Commodities' Control Commission is considering the question of the new wheat.

It is stated that whatever is done in the matter of fixing a price will be done in conjunction with the other States. The Farmers and Settlers' Association is being communicated with as to the class of evidence required by the Commission for its guidance in the inquiry that is contemplated. The proclaimed price of wheat only refers to last year's crop, the incoming harvest being specially exempted.

It has been stated in the Legislative Assembly that there is a probability of a shortage, and already suggestions have been made that the Government should supply necessitous farmers with seed wheat. In political circles it is thought that the Government itself will require a lot of seed wheat for the wheat-growing scheme that the Premier gave notice of in his Budget on Wednesday.

STRIKES.

SERIOUS LOSS IN WAGES.

Despite the existence of Arbitration Acts on the Statute Book, strikes are still occurring in Australia result in serious loss of wages.

It is pointed out by Mr. Knibbs, Commonwealth Statistician, in the labour bulletin for the second quarter of the year, that in this period 83 industrial disputes occurred, involving directly and indirectly a total of 16,859 persons. New and old disputes during the quarter together accounted for an estimated loss of 306,395 working days, representing a loss in wages of £156,415. The number of disputes which occurred during the first quarter of the year was 113, the loss of working days amounting to 260,151, and the loss of wages to £130,392. Of the new disputes beginning during the second quarter of 1914, 45 per cent. occurred in the mining industry, chiefly in New South Wales.

During this quarter there were 121 changes in rates of wages brought about by awards and determinations of industrial courts and wages boards, industrial agreements, etc. These changes affected 49,373 work people, the total increase in weekly wages being £13,327, which represents an average weekly increase per head of 5s 5d.

CONGREGATIONAL UNION.

CHURCH UNITY.

The annual conference of the Congregational Union of New South Wales was continued yesterday.

The following were elected members of the executive committee:—The Revs. R. B. Reynolds, A. H. Austin, N. J. Cocks, Cunliffe Jones, J. Dempsey, G. W. Thatcher, R. A. Thompson, A. P. Campbell, Wm. Allen, A. J. Griffith, and Messrs. R. A. Dallen, E. K. Satchell, W. Roberts, R. B. Gelling, A. L. Mullens, J. T. Tillock, T. W. Harris, E. W. Greenhill, A. J. R. Yabsley. Mr. C. B. Thistlethwaite was elected treasurer, Mr. A. Gill registrar, the Rev. J. H. Thoms as ministerial secretary, and Mr. E. L. Sutton as lay secretary.

The report of the committee for the promotion of union with other Protestant churches showed a more hopeful outlook. There seemed to be a growing disposition to comprehend in any union what was essential in the polity of each denomination, and in seeking to define those essentials, so far as Congregationalism was concerned, the committee reported that progress had been made. It was suggested that, as a desirable preliminary to discussing any scheme of union, steps be immediately taken to deepen interest in the essential principles of Congregationalism.

A resolution was passed that the State Government be approached with a view to the introduction of legislation prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors after 9 o'clock.

The following motion, proposed by the Rev. A. H. Austin, was passed by the conference:—"That this assembly of the N. S. Wales Congregational Union recognises the gravity of the crisis with which the L.M.S. is faced. It pledges its heartiest support to the controlling board and trusts that, relying upon the proved loyalty of its constituency, the board may still see its way to support all the work and workers that at present compose its great and growing trust."

A resolution praying for the success of the Allies as reported elsewhere was carried.

NEWCASTLE.

COLLIERY STRIKE.

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Burwood Extended colliery has been idle for a fortnight owing to a dispute over working rates for the mine. The management decided some time ago that picks should be used instead of machines for hewing the coal. The men will resume work on Monday.

SMALLPOX.

During this week seven cases of smallpox have been reported in the Newcastle district. Five were from Lambton, and two from Wallsend. They were all taken to the quarantine station at North Stockton for treatment.

FIXING PRICES.

LACK OF UNIFORMITY IN STATES.

The want of uniformity prevailing in the various States in the legislation bearing on the prices of commodities is commented on by the Commonwealth Statistician, Mr. G. H. Knibbs, in a recent bulletin.

Mr. Knibbs says—"Victoria, South Australia, and Western Australia have each two Acts, one for fixing prices, the other providing for returns of commodities. New South Wales has one Act, the Necessary Commodities Control Act, 1914, which contains a clause providing for returns of commodities; Queensland has no provision for such returns. With respect to retail prices, extensive lists have been issued in Queensland, varying slightly for the three different districts whose centres are Brisbane, Rockhampton, and Townsville. These retail prices include quotations for such large quantities of certain commodities as a ton of flour and a hundred-weight of salt. In New South Wales the maximum retail prices of bread and gas, and in Victoria of bread only, have been fixed.

"In South Australia and Western Australia no retail prices have been declared. Queensland is the only State in which maximum retail prices of meat have been fixed, and in that State two sets of prices, one for the Brisbane, and one for the Rockhampton district have been gazetted. Even here there is want of uniformity.

THE NEW ABATTOIRS.

The Minister for Public Health (Mr. Flowers), who is chairman of the Meat Board, yesterday paid an official visit of inspection to the new abattoirs, which are being built at Homebush Bay.

A delay has occurred in operations there owing to certain machinery having been consigned in German ships. The Minister is anxious to get the new establishment going, as at present it represents a large sum of public money lying unproductive.

FIRE IN FACTORY.

ROCKHAMPTON, Friday.

On entering the can factory at Lake's Creek Meat Works of the Central Queensland Meat Export Company yesterday afternoon a foreman found the place on fire.

The flames quickly spread, and assumed large dimensions. Hundreds of workmen hurried to the scene and extinguished the flames. The damage is estimated at between £300 and £400, and is covered by insurance. There will be no stoppage of work.

DESPERATE LODGER.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

A shocking occurrence is reported from a boarding-house in Hindley-street this morning, when John Walsh, a lodger, cut the throat of a waitress, Mary Kenrick, aged 22, and then performed a similar act on himself. The man often threatened to do for her. In neither case is the injury serious, but both are in hospital.

A Solemn Requiem Mass was previously celebrated in St. Joseph's Church, Woollahra, the celebrant being the Rev. Father Kennedy. The Rev. Father Kennedy also officiated at the graveside.

The chief mourners were Mrs. Browne (wife of deceased), Mrs. Bowden (sister), and Messrs. Bowden and Wilkinson (brothers-in-law). Among those present were Mrs. Darke, Mr. Young, Mr. Taylor, and Mr. F. J. Searight.

NEW BUSINESS PREMISES.

The opening of the new premises of Messrs. Murdoch, Ltd., Park-street, was celebrated yesterday by a luncheon, at which the members of the Country Press Association were guests, in addition to a large number of other visitors, amongst whom were Mr. D. Storey, M.L.A., Messrs. Wm. Brooks, president of the Employers' Federation, Wm. Vicars, president of the Chamber of Manufactures, and Mr. A. Rickard, president of the Millions Club.

The new five-story premises are handsomely designed. The ground, first, and second floors are given over to the retail section. The two top floors provide work-room accommodation; and a lower one is occupied by the office and country order sections. A flat roof gives ample space for recreation to the employees. The floor space covers an area of 60,000 square feet. The architects of the new building were Messrs. Power and Adam; Mr. William Williamson carried out the building contract; and the shop fittings were supplied by Messrs. Bray and Halliday.

Mr. Jas. A. Murdoch presided at the luncheon, and a number of toasts were honoured. Mr. T. M. Shakespeare, secretary of the Country Press Association, proposed the toast of "Messrs. Murdoch, Limited;" and Mr. Murdoch, in reply, said that the business the coming of age of which was being celebrated that day was opened in 1893.

Mr. David Storey proposed "The Great Day—Universal Peace."

AFFLICTED CHILDREN.

DEAF AND DUMB AND BLIND.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION URGED.

The fifty-third annual meeting of subscribers of the New South Wales Institution for the Deaf and Dumb and the Blind took place yesterday afternoon, the Governor (Sir Gerald Strickland) presiding.

The report of the committee stated that the number of pupils on the roll was 140. The income on the general fund account for last year had been £7118, which was £253 short of the expenditure. The total indebtedness of the building fund was £5092. The committee were very anxious to have this large liability wiped out, and asked for the co-operation of the public in this direction. Reference was made to the loss sustained during the year by the deaths of Colonel Goodlet and Mr. Jas. R. Love, two of the oldest and most prominent members of the board. Mention was made of the desirableness of compelling the attendance at school of deaf and dumb children, and the hope was expressed that the interest and assistance so urgently required might not be much longer withheld by the State.

Sir Gerald Strickland, in moving the adoption of the report, said that he did so with feelings of sympathy. Owing to the many calls on account of the war, charitable institutions of all kinds would be more or less affected, but he felt sure that the officers of the Deaf and Dumb and Blind Institute would get through their difficult task quite as successfully as Lord Kitchener would get through his. (Laughter and applause).

Mr. W. H. Simpson, in seconding the motion, remarked that the noble work that the institution was doing in educating and training the children of the community who were afflicted with deafness or blindness deserved the warmest encouragement and assistance of everyone who was in a position to help.

Sir Philip Sydney Jones commented on the fact that the number of deaf and dumb children in the institution greatly exceeded the blind. The progress of surgical science in the treatment of diseases of the eye had made greater progress than that which concerned the ear.

On the motion of Mr. Fred Phillips, hon. treasurer, it was decided that the Government be thanked for its annual donation of £450 toward the funds of the institution.

Mr. Aubrey Halloran considered that the Government's grant was altogether too paltry. No time should be lost in making the attendance at school of deaf and blind children compulsory. At present it rested entirely upon the parents whether their afflicted children should be educated or not. Unfortunately, many parents failed to recognise their responsibilities. In the best of circumstances the children were heavily handicapped in the struggle for existence, but without education and training their condition was pitiable in the highest degree.

Votes of thanks to the honorary staff, directors, and officers of the institution were carried, and the following elected for the ensuing year:—President, Mr. W. H. Simpson; vice-presidents, Sir Philip Sydney Jones and Mr. Robert Chadwick; hon. treasurer, Mr. Fred. Phillips; hon. secretary, Mr. William Rigg; committee, Messrs. Aubrey Halloran, T. S. Holt, F. H. Reuss, J. F. Rofe, R. Vicars, W. Winn, F. Grimley A. H. Love, J. Wade, and Dr. T. Storie Dixson; hon. medical inspector, Dr. G. E. Rennie; hon. consulting surgeon, Dr. C. P. Clubbe; hon. ophthalmic surgeon, Dr. J. C. Halliday; hon. aural surgeon, Dr. J. B. Graham; hon. physicians, Drs. P. Sydney Jones and E. Selwyn Harrison; hon. dentists, Messrs. A. G. Gabriel and H. E. Walker.

A HOME ON THE FAMOUS LIVERPOOL PLAINS.

88,000 ACRES,

WARRAH ESTATE.

Australian Agricultural Company's great Property, Quirindi District, New South Wales.

Subdivided into 34 blocks of from 300 to 5000 acres, ideally situated, and suited for Dairying, Mixed Farming, Grazing, and Wheatgrowing.

TERMS EXCEPTIONALLY LIBERAL—15 per cent. deposit, balance payable by equal annual instalments over 15 years at 4 per cent.

A Genuinely Attractive Proposition to Homeseekers with limited capital.

TO BE OFFERED FOR PUBLIC AUCTION

AT QUIRINDI ON

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 11, at 12 NOON.

SITUATION.—Warrah Estate is situated in the heart of the settled middle Northern districts, on the main Northern Trunk Railway, Sydney to Brisbane. Willow Tree Railway Station, on the Estate, is 233 miles from Sydney, and 120 miles from the city and port of Newcastle. Excellent roads, in good order.

WHAT THE PROPOSITION OFFERS.—Homes, in suitable areas, conveniently situated, excellent climate, good rainfall (30 inches), remarkable terms. Every block a comfortable living area; each served by good roads; from 2 to 14 miles from Willow Tree Railway Station—those on the north equally convenient to Quirindi. Timber long killed, country sweetened by years of occupation. Basalt ridges; rich alluvial flats suitable for lucerne; undulating country awaiting the plough; ideal block for dairying and mixed farming; thousands of acres of the rich and fertile Liverpool Plains for grazing, with abundance of permanent water, reached by wells at from 40 to 100 feet. Timber: White Box, with apple tree on the flats. The grazing blocks are all fenced and splendidly watered, and ready for immediate occupation. See detailed descriptions of farming blocks with pamphlets and lithographs.

FACTS THAT SPEAK.—There is not a rabbit or weed pest on the property; fluke, footrot, sheep and cattle diseases of any kind are unknown. On Warrah (of which the subdivision forms part) 50,000 ewes last year averaged 78 per cent. of marked lambs—as high as 92 per cent. in paddocks; 20,000 fat sheep and 5032 fat cattle were sold off the Estate during the last 12 months, topping Homebush market week after week. At 1913 shearing every grown sheep cut an average of 10.94lb wool, making great prices on London market. The water and grass resources of the property have never been known to fail; this season, after a dry winter, every hoof is in good order, and fat sheep and cattle are trucked to Homebush every week. Some five years ago the Government resumed and threw open 45,000 acres of Warrah, adjoining the present subdivision; to-day every acre is occupied by a prosperous community of mixed farmers, producing marked results. The village of Willow Tree is rapidly extending into a township; has now several fine stores, an hotel, a good school, and a bank. Last year a considerable area hastily farmed late in the season yielded an average of 17 1-3 bushels. This year some thousands of acres thrown open for share farming have been eagerly rushed, and are now being got ready for the plough.

The present Homestead Block, and a couple of others, comprising about 10,000 acres, have been reserved by the Company for their own use for their long-established and widely-known sheep-breeding and stud farm purposes generally.

OCCUPATION GIVEN ON JANUARY 1, 1915.—Persons desiring to inspect from a distance, train to Quirindi or Willow Tree (the latter day train stopping only). Full provision for inspection, motor cars, with every convenience, economy of time, upon notifying Mr. W. CADELL, Stock and Station Agent, Quirindi; or, through PITT, SON, and BADGERY, LTD., Sydney.

For litho. plans of subdivision, embodying full numbers, areas, terms, and descriptive information, write or call on the agents for the vendors.

AUCTION SALES.

STANTON AND SON, LTD.,

PROPERTY AUCTIONEERS,

129 PITT-STREET, SYDNEY,

AT AUCTION,

under instructions from the Executors of the late Henry Marcus Clark,

ON TUESDAY, OCTOBER 27,

AT 11.30 A.M.,

AT THE

REAL ESTATE ASSOCIATION AUCTION ROOMS,

24 and 26 CASTLEREAGH-STREET,

(immediately opposite Moore-street).

The following Properties:—

1. PICTON ARMS HOTEL, CAMPBELL-STREET, HAYMARKET, 1 door from George-street.

This well-known Hotel, built of brick, four stories in height, contains all conveniences, including bar, dining-room, sitting-room, two parlours, 15 bedrooms, etc. There is also exceptional yard space at the rear.

The Land has a frontage of about 38ft 4in to Campbell-street by a magnificent depth of from 190 feet on one side and 220 feet on the other side; the width at the rear being 71 feet. Area, 30½ perches. Title Torrens.

An area such as this is seldom to be had right in the heart of the business centre of the city. The Hotel is what is known as a "FREE HOUSE," and is at present under a lease, with about 11 years to run, at an annual rental, free of all outgoings, of £780.

We would lay special stress on the fact that this hotel is practically on George-street, and has an astonishingly large area of land which would admit of very extensive improvements in the future. This part of the city is generally acknowledged to be advancing by leaps and bounds.

The business done on the premises is first-class, being next the Alhambra Theatre, and opposite Wirth's new Hippodrome, and amidst surroundings that have been so greatly improved during the last few years, all of which points to the fact that this property has a great future ahead of it.

2. SPACIOUS CITY WAREHOUSE, Nos. 52 and 54 BAY-STREET, SYDNEY.

This property is one of the finest stores of its class within the city boundary. Exceptionally well built and finished within the last three years. It contains a floor space of over 30,000 sq. feet. The building is four stories high, with ironbark girders, and steel ceilings in some parts. Electric goods lift, usual fire escape, and property all in first-class order.

The frontage to Bay-street is 35 feet 10½ inches; the depth along Bay-lane on one side of 221 ft, and on other side 224 feet; at the rear is Mountain-lane, to which the frontage is 36 feet. The property is detached on all sides, insuring excellent light. It is at present let, and has about 4 years to run at an annual rental of £858, the tenants paying all rates, taxes, and insurance, and doing all repairs. The title is leasehold, the lease being from the City Council, for 50 years from the 3rd December, 1910, at an annual rental of £60.

It is admitted that the area in which this property is situated is undoubtedly an excellent one for a property of this class, being surrounded by similar warehouses, and no doubt in the near future rental values will become considerably enhanced.

3. No. 82 ABERCROMBIE-STREET, SYDNEY. This property has a frontage of about 39 feet 2 inches to Abercrombie-street, and, being L-shaped, has a width at the rear of 122 feet, opening into Little Queen-street, the through depth being about 155 feet. On the land is erected an old brick cottage, roofed with iron, containing 7 rooms, and let at a nominal rental. The position is eminently suitable for manufacturing purposes, and is situated in one of the most prosperous areas of that character about the city, being reasonably close to Darling Harbour and the Central Railway Station, and within the city cartage area.

It is well-known that the locality has been remodelled recently by the City Council (Chippendale Resumption). In the neighbourhood are the factory of Robert Reid and Company, many furniture and chair factories, and immediately opposite is the well-known glass works of J. C. Goodwin.

The title is leasehold for a term of 50 years from the 1st December, 1912, with a covenant to spend not less than £3000 within the next 12 months on building upon the land.

4. No. 84 ABERCROMBIE-STREET, SYDNEY.—Formerly occupied by Woods and Spinks, Carriage Builders, and having a frontage of about 44 feet 10½ inches to Abercrombie-street by a depth along Tegg's-lane of 236 feet 5½ inches through to Milford-street. On the other side the depth is 205 feet 11½ inches, while the frontage to Milford-street is 47 feet 2½ inches. Area 1 rood 10½ perches.

Title Torrens.

This block immediately adjoins the above-described property (No. 82), and is an ideal site for factory, warehouse, or any other purpose, having practically three frontages, which means plenty of light and a large area.

The property is unoccupied, and immediate possession may be had.

5. Nos. 444 and 446 HARRIS-STREET, SYDNEY.—A pair of two-story Brick Houses, each containing 4 rooms, etc., and let at 18s per week each. The land has a frontage of about 30 feet to Harris-street by a depth of 119 feet through to Schlinker's-lane at the rear. Title Freehold.

This property occupies a valuable store, factory, or warehouse site, and could readily be converted into such. It is immediately at the rear of the store occupied by the Pastoral Finance Association, and almost adjoining the Darling Harbour Railway Station.

6. HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB. Culwulla, O'Connor-street, a modern Double-fronted Brick Cottage, containing hall, 5 good rooms and offices, sleeping-out verandah, gas stove, and every convenience, including linoleums and blinds. The land is 60ft to O'Connor-street, depth of 110ft. Title Torrens. O'Connor-street is a tram stop, and Culwulla is within 2 minutes. The position is an elevated one, and commands extensive views.

7. SUMMER HILL, No. 66 SMITH-STREET.—A Brick Cottage, containing wide hall right through, dining-room, drawing-room, and sitting-room, with folding doors, three bedrooms, kitchen, man's room, laundry, and workshop. Verandah back and front (front tiled with marble steps). The land has a frontage of 50 feet by a depth of about 280 feet. Title Torrens.

A nice home, standing well back from the street, and only 3 or 4 minutes from the Railway Station. The main rooms have steel ceilings, and the house, both inside and out, is in first-class condition. The grounds are nicely laid out in garden and lawns, and there are also a glasshouse and fernery. Early possession will be given.

8. STRATHFIELD. Magnificent Building Blocks, on the Heights, close to Sir Phillip Sydney Jones's Residence.

LOTS 12, 13, and 14 of the Llandilo Estate, 236 feet frontage to Kingsland-road (near Llandilo-avenue) by 230 feet. To be offered separately.

Torrens Title.

These blocks occupy an elevated position, about ten minutes from the Railway Station, and are surrounded by first-class residences.

9. PITTWATER.—A SURFER'S ALLOTMENT, Lot 8 of the Kyles of Bute Estate, Bayview, almost adjoining "La Corniche." Having a frontage of about 192 feet to Barker's-road. This allotment is of irregular shape, the other lines being 210 feet and 115 feet respectively.

Torrens Title.

10. WENTWORTH FALLS.—Fine Building Site, between the Railway Station and the New Golf Links, and near the Railway Water Reserve. Having a frontage of 118 feet to Lake-street by a depth of from 196 feet on one side to 213 feet on the other side, width at rear 176 feet. Title Torrens.

11. KELLYVILLE, about 8 miles from Parramatta.—Beautiful Block of Orchard Land, in a prosperous fruit-growing district, containing 41½ acres, and being portion 2 in the Parish of Castle Hill. This land adjoins the property of Mr. Joseph Nutter, and is about 1½ mile from the post-office.

Torrens Title.

Liberal Terms may be arranged for any of the above.

All further particulars may be obtained from the Auctioneers, who also have the Original Leases, which may be inspected by intending purchasers.

USE J.S.W. HAIR FOOD.

The Hair should be well looked after at all times, but particularly at the change of the seasons, if there is a tendency to deteriorate, that is the time at which the falling off in lustre or strength is most marked.

A bottle of John Strange Winter's Hair Food will work wonders in the appearance of your hair—it will lose that dull, faded look, and become glossy and full of lustre. Price, 2/6 per bottle.

For Hair that is naturally oily, the Non-oily Hair Food, price 3/6 bottle, should be used. This is a delightful and refreshing dressing.

Obtainable in our Hairdressing or Perfumery Departments.

A FEW CRUDE FACTS
FOR THE LADIES WHO ARE SUFFERING FROM

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS.

FIRST.—That the System of Electrolysis is accepted by THE MEDICAL PROFESSION AS A PERMANENT REMOVAL.

SECOND.—That I have practised this [illegible] constantly—day after day—for FOURTEEN YEARS, at my present address, 100 King-street.

THIRD.—That I give to every lady treated to refund their FEES if I fail to give satisfaction. Not only do I give this guarantee, but also will forfeit if the hairs removed grow again, and to patients previously treated I will pay personally the above amount if they can prove I have failed to destroy the hairs they had removed.

A WRITTEN GUARANTEE

FOURTH.—That any time an appointment is made A FREE TRIAL TREATMENT will be given with pleasure to convince each one of you that there is little pain, no scars, or after effects; and it only takes a few minutes.

IT WILL CONVINCE those who are dubious that my statements are true.

SO JUST COME AND HAVE A CHAT, as every courtesy and attention will be given.

which are no longer considered beauty spots, can be removed in one treatment if desired. My FEES ARE MODERATE, so do not stay away thinking it will be a costly process.

FACE MASSAGE.

I would like you to understand that the treatment of massage given by me is not used much in Sydney, as it is a system which helps to restore the contour of a withering face and drooping complexion. By its means the skin is cleansed of contained sebaceous matter, intermingled with dirt and infective germs that cause inflammatory skin [illegible] such as

and premature wrinkling. Now it seems a harsh thing to say, but ladies do not give sufficient time and thought to the care of the skin. Especially before retiring the skin should be well cleansed, so as to remove the overflow of secretions, which form every day; and, to do this, you should use

"NETTOYER" FACE CREAM.

It is to clear, to cleanse, and will restore the skin to what it was before you neglected to attend to it.

I GUARANTEE IT NOT TO PROMOTE Superfluous Hair growths, and it is also GUARANTEED NOT TO CONTAIN any animal fat. So try a pot at 2/6; 6d extra for postage.

FRECKLES AND SUNBURN

I can also cure by NETTOYER. It is quite different from the face cream, so be sure to mention which you require if writing, as it is 3/ per pot, and 6d extra for postage.
